

FLYERS LOST IN LAKE; A GIRL

PUBLIC HOUSING WORK ON LARGE SCALE ORDEREDPresident Proposes to Spend Millions.BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—In the hope of reviving the stagnant building industry, and thus to aid greatly in speeding the nation back to prosperous days, President Roosevelt has decided, it was learned today, to spend many millions of the federal public works' easy money on a nation-wide housing program.

Full knowledge of the President's ambitious plan was discussed simultaneously with the allotment of $13,545,000 of public works' funds by Secretary Ickes for housing projects in Ohio, Missouri and the Virgin Islands.

Extends Scope of Grants.
Thus far the administration has limited its housing allotments to private or semi-public corporations, but now that a far spread program has been designed, loans and grants are to be made to state and municipal corporations, it was learned.

Studies are now being made to determine the feasibility of having the federal government itself create a corporation to start housing projects in various cities. This government corporation could put up buildings and either lease them to private corporations and cities or itself manage the buildings and collect rentals.

As an experiment, to test the practicability of such a venture, the administration plans to set up such a corporation in the city of Washington, to tear down ugly and insanitary home shanties, and erect modern tenement dwellings in their place.

Expect Much of Project.
So ambitious is the President's plan, supported by Interior Secretary Ickes, that it is being hailed as a program expected to be of as great a service in boosting the nation out of the present depression as the automobile industry was in besting the depression of '07 and '21.

In this connection reports to the administration have recently carried indications of a new slump in such basic industries as steel, dropped from 59 per cent of capacity to 45 per cent in a single month.

Lumber production has dropped. Some mills must be found, the experts argue, for bringing new orders to the steel and lumber mills, and housing construction could fill the bill.

Two Motives Seen.
Two prime motives figure in the decision to stress housing projects as a major unemployment relief measure. The first, freely acknowledged by the administration, is that the building industry has sunk to a lower depth than other industries and has not responded with the others to the new surge toward better days. While factory production in July was at 98 per cent of normal, building operations were only 22 per cent of normal.

Therefore the government's strong aim is toward pumping new life into this industry and relieving the misery of the millions of building tradesmen who have been jobless for three years and more.

The second motive, which is not so freely admitted, is that the public works program, so far as it has gone, is not serving faithfully the purpose for which the $3 billion 300 million dollars was voted by congress.

Bulk to Other Sections.
A third of the money has been allocated thus far, and comparatively little of it has gone to the great unemployment centers of the country, but has been presented for the most part to western and southern states for the building of dams and reclamation projects in sparsely settled locations where unemployment is not the problem of misery and starvation that it is in the big cities.

The Chicago-based area, entitled, under any honest arrangement, to a big share of the public works' easy money, has been given dribbles. Cities in other areas have been similarly mistreated.

The reason for this failure, it is asserted at the public works administration offices, is that the cities and the states in these territories where the depression has cut deepest are not in financial position to borrow federal funds for projects which might qualify.

All in Same Boat.
The city of Chicago, the county of Cook and the state of Illinois, as well as the sanitary district of Chicago, are all in the same boat financially.

Steal $87,000

A clever confidence man utilized a telephone, the courtesy of a county employee and the geography of the county office at 6 North Clark street, where tax anticipation warrants are accepted in payment of tax bills, to steal $87,000 worth of city corporate fund and bond and interest fund warrants from an employee's desk yesterday afternoon.

Forty employees and 60 taxpayers were in the second floor office at the time of the theft, but no one saw the thief. So well carried out was the theft that a uniformed policeman, sitting less than 20 feet from the desk from which the warrants were taken suspected nothing until an alarm was sounded when the loss was discovered.

No Loss Except to Buyer.

All the numbers of the stolen warrants are known and the list of the missing securities will be mailed out to banks and brokers throughout the country today. Neither the city nor the property owners who had turned in the warrants in payment of taxes will suffer loss, it was said last evening by county authorities. The only loser would be a person who purchased the stolen warrants and attempted to resell or pay taxes with them.

R. P. Powers, an employee of City Controller Upham now temporarily loaned to County Treasurer McDonough to aid in the tax warrant office, was busy at his desk, which is at the top of the staircase entrance from Clark street, when he received a telephone call at 3 o'clock. Upon his desk was spread $90,000 in city warrants and he was calculating the interest accumulated on each.

Clerk Leaves His Desk.

When he lifted the receiver a pleasant voice asked: "Are you the man who sits at the head of the stairs?" When Powers replied affirmatively the speaker said:

"I am talking to Dr. Phillips. He was in your office just a short time ago to pay his taxes. He was carrying with him his brief case, but he hasn't got it with him now. He believes that he may have left it at the water cooler. Would you go over and see if it is there?"

Carrying in his hand $3,000 worth of warrants on which he was engaged at the moment, Powers went to the cooler, at the far end of the office, to look for the brief case. During the Finds Warrants Missing.

When Powers returned to his desk he found the warrants missing and the mysterious caller no longer waiting on the telephone line.

Other clerks and all the other men and women in the office were questioned by Chief of Detectives Schoenmaker. So was Policeman Dan Donaghy, who was sitting near Powers' desk. None of them had noticed any one approach the desk.

Examination of the city accounts disclosed that $73,000 worth of the missing warrants were from the 1931 corporate fund warrants and $14,000 worth from the bond and interest fund issue. The numbers of the corporate fund warrants, all bearing the code letter "C," are: $1,000 denominations, 7654, 70 through 79; 1626, 1627, 1629 through 1635, 1800, 1801, 1958, 1972, 1973, 2250, 2269, 2282 through 2284, 2425 through 2436, 2670, 2706; $5,000 denominations, 1231, 1533, 2226, 2237.

The bond and interest fund warrants, bearing the code letter "G," were all in the $1,000 denomination. Their numbers were 4494, 4495, 4501, 4502, 4509, 4643, 4677, 5100, 5144, 5145, 5166, 5169, 5170, and 5197.

King Feisal of Iraq Dies in Berne at 48

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 8. [Friday.]—(P)—King Feisal of Iraq died early today at a Berne hotel from a heart attack. He was 48 years old.

His health had been poor for some time. He had been under a heavy strain in the last few weeks because of reported massacres of Assyrian Christians in his kingdom. When he arrived here he refused to talk about reports he might abdicate and declared he would return to Baghdad upon finishing the cure here.

He was famous for his exploits with Lawrence of Arabia during the world war. He came here from Baghdad three days ago with the intention of remaining two weeks.

King Feisal was born in 1885, at Taif, the third son of Sharif Husain, and was a descendant of Fatimah, the only surviving child of the Prophet.

At the outbreak of the world war he was in Mecca. Later he played an important part in the Arab revolt, commanding Arab forces with Gen. Allenby's army until the capture of Aleppo, in October, 1918.

In March, 1920, he was proclaimed king of Syria, but soon abdicated, and in August, 1921, he was elected king of Iraq.

GEO. M. SUNDAY
SERIOUSLY HURT
BY 4 STORY FALL

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—George M. Sunday, aged 40, son of the Rev. Billy Sunday, the evangelist, was believed fatally injured tonight when his body hurtled four stories from his apartment on Pacific avenue after a stormy scene in which his wife said he had struck her and had ordered his aged mother, Mrs. Nellie Sunday, from the place.

His wife, formerly Maryanne La Salle, Hollywood model, told police she believed Sunday had attempted suicide after a nervous breakdown due to financial strain. He recently had been in a sanitarium.

Sunday, recovering consciousness in a hospital, whispered he had fallen from the window while watering a fern. In the hospital Mrs. Sunday threw herself at her husband's feet and sobbed forgiveness for a broken finger and black eye she said he inflicted.

Police sought to locate his mother, who left for Hood River, Ore., according to his wife, after the domestic scene in the afternoon.

His wife, who also was known as Renee Reichard, is Sunday's second wife. She was named co-respondent in the divorce action by his first wife, Mrs. Harriet Sunday, in 1920.

JURY PUNISHES PARTNER WITH 199 YEAR TERMReach Guilty Verdict

Ross King, alias Kenneth Smith, 29 years old, slayer of Policeman Harry Redlich, was found guilty of murder and his punishment was fixed at death in the electric chair by a jury in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court last night. John Bongiorno, 30, King's partner in the crime, was also found guilty and his punishment set at 199 years in the penitentiary. It was King who fired the death shot.

The death verdict was the fourth returned by a Criminal court jury since Aug. 1, when Judge John Frydlausk, then chief justice of the Criminal court, launched his war on crime. Three of the killers sentenced to death had murdered policemen. Besides the death sentences the crime campaign has resulted in 260 penitentiary sentences for criminals.

Both Are Ex-Convicts.

King and Bongiorno are both paroled convicts. King killed Redlich by shooting him in the back after the policeman had apprehended Bongiorno as he was fleeing from a robbery which the two men had just committed in the offices of the Thomas W. Compton Advertising agency, 9 South Kedzie avenue, on July 8.

Policeman Redlich was on traffic duty at Madison street and Kedzie avenue when he was summoned to the advertising agency offices by Miss Charlotte Taylor, an employee. She had seen the two men enter the offices of the company and was suspicious of them.

As Redlich entered the building King escaped by jumping from a third story window to the roof of an adjoining building. Bongiorno, however, was captured by the policeman, who was holding him prisoner in the hall of the building when King returned to attempt to rescue him.

Shoots Redlich in Back.

King approached the policeman from behind and fired four shots. Two of them struck Redlich in the back and the others wounded him in the arms as he turned to return the fire. The policeman was able to fire only one shot at King before he fell helpless to the floor.

The men escaped, but King was captured a short distance away by a police squad, which was responding to a call for help sent in by Policeman Redlich. He confessed and Bongiorno was arrested a short time later in a barricaded building in Lake street where he was living.

The men made no defense to the charge. They were identified by a score of prosecution witnesses. Attorney W. W. O'Brien, who defended Bongiorno, attempted to win the acquittal of his client by referring to him in his closing argument "as this good boy, who is sorry for his deeds."

The defense attorney told the jury that his client had surrendered to the policeman and could not be held accountable for any of King's acts.

Judge Rebukes Lawyer.

Attorney O'Brien asked Judge Miller to give the jury an instruction on the prior good character of the defendants. He was rebuked by the judge, who said it would be a travesty on justice for him to tell the jury that either defendant had a good character prior to the crime when both were paroled convicts.

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Dougherty and A. L. Hornick, who demanded the death penalty for both defendants, were unable to introduce the crime records of the defendants as evidence because the prisoners declined to take the witness stand in their own behalf. Because no evidence was presented to the contrary Attorney O'Brien contended that the defendants were entitled to a previous good character instruction.

The jurors, however, lost no time in reaching a verdict. On the first ballot both men were found guilty. Three ballots were taken to decide King's fate. Several of the jurors, it was reported, were in favor of executing Bongiorno, but it was finally decided to impose a sentence which would keep him in the penitentiary virtually for life. Under the 199 year term.

Airmen Take

Searching parties in amphibian aircraft last night were preparing to start over Lake Michigan at dawn this morning to hunt for H. W. ("Spud") Manning, world's champion parachute jumper, a young woman, and an autogiro pilot, who failed to arrive in Chicago after beginning a flight over the lake from South Bend on Wednesday morning. A search by coast guard vessels last night was unsuccessful.

Friends of the missing trio last night held to the belief that, although 40 hours had passed since the autogiro was seen to head out over the lake at Michigan City, the flyers might have managed to stay afloat. They said there was a possibility that the autogiro had run out of gasoline as a result of bucking a strong west wind, and that the two men had torn out the gasoline tank and used it as a life raft.

Young Woman in Plane.

The young woman with Manning is believed to be Miss Malena Gerard, 23 years old, 7617 Washington boulevard, River Forest. She accompanied him on Tuesday to the home of Vincent Bendix, airplane accessories manufacturer, at South Bend, where an entertainment was held for all the pilots who took part in the international air races which ended at Glenview on Monday.

Miss Gerard and Manning made arrangements while at Bendix's home to accompany Carl Otto, pilot of the autogiro, to Chicago on Wednesday to take part in the celebration of National Airmail day at Grant park. The three took off from Bendix airport at South Bend soon after 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning. Otto's last word to mechanics was that he intended to take a short cut to Chicago by flying directly across the lake instead of following the shore line—the usual air route.

Plane Seen Over Lake.

The search was not begun until last evening because there had been doubt up to that time that the autogiro had actually started over the lake. This doubt was ended when David A. Furst of the coast guard at Michigan City telephoned to Chicago that it was reported there the craft had been seen flying over the lake.

J. F. Alexander, 11322 Longwood drive, who was swimming off the Indiana dunes near Michigan City on Wednesday, also said that he saw the autogiro out over the lake headed for Chicago.

When the excursion steamer Theodore Roosevelt docked here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon her officers reported to Capt. John O. Anderson of the coast guard station at the mouth of the river that they had seen a large strip of fabric, which might have come from an airplane, floating about 10 miles off Chicago. Three coast guard boats were sent out, but returned before midnight when they were unable to find the fabric.

Flyers Organize Search.

Capt. Lon Yancy, transoceanic flyer and a noted autogiro pilot, and Capt. Ben B. Lipner, a former air lines operator and pilot, are the organizers of the searching parties. A number of Chicago pilots have volunteered to fly land planes along the lake shore, and two of the groups planned to fly in the Sikorsky amphibian planes operated by the Pal-Waukee airport from the World's Fair ramp. These craft can cruise safely over the route the autogiro is believed to have taken.

If the survivors are sighted the amphibians can land on the water and take them aboard.

It was believed that the Goodyear blimps Puritan and Reliance might be pressed into service for the search across the lake.

CUBANS FIGHT TO AVERT U. S.
INTERVENTIONRadical Junta Split
Over New Rule.BY ARTHUR EVANS.
(Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.)
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 7.—With American battleships converging in Cuban waters, Cuba tonight made a drastic effort to avert intervention by the United States.

The radical revolutionary junta of five now controlling the island in a conference with conservative members of the ABC, potent revolutionary organization, debated a program, which may give the island a new government—the third since Gen. Gerardo Machado fled—before Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson arrives tomorrow aboard the cruiser Indianapolis.

Seek to Prove Capability.

The object is to demonstrate that Cuba is able to govern itself and maintain order and tranquility.

However, grave complexities developed tonight. The army, which led the bloodless revolution, is showing signs of throwing another somewhat back to the more conservative revolutionaries.

The junta went into a conference at 10 o'clock tonight. Sergio Carbo and Prof. Ramon Grau San Martin, two of its most radical members, have so far refused to resign. The other three—Guillermo Portela, Jose Izarrat, and Porfirio Franca—have expressed a willingness to resign and turn the government back to Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, who was ousted from the presidency last Tuesday, or some other satisfactory choice.

Seek President and a Cabinet.

They favor establishing a new government by tomorrow with a president and cabinet. The junta, it is declared, will not resign, however, unless all five agree.

The O. C. R. R., radical secret society group, and the students' directorate radicals, have announced their refusal to accept a proposal for any new provisional government with powers concentrated in the president. They contend that the revolution was a revolution and that the machinery set up by the constitution does not apply to a provisional government except in the minds of diplomats who are trying to keep the books straight and show that the government was changed by an orderly process.

Reports are that the O. C. R. R. has threatened De Cespedes if he dares to accept the offer to become president again. De Cespedes tonight is being guarded at his home by the army and ABC. Meanwhile First Sergeant Fulgencio Batista, chief of staff of the army, who engineered Monday night's coup d'etat for the revolutionary junta, has joined the ABC, which took the lead in ousting Machado and in forming the De Cespedes government.

Insist Army Was Misled.

Leaders of the ABC insist that Batista states the army was misled and that Carbo of the junta presented a proposal that if the army and navy joined the revolt it would merely be to cleanse the military of officers formerly closely connected with Machado.

Batista, the top sergeant, says that the army was not informed that the junta intended to set up a new government which might provoke intervention.

Thus in less than a month the army has fopped from Machado to De Cespedes to the junta to the A. B. C.

Rumors that Col. Carlos Mendiatra, president of the Nationalist party, might be picked to head a new government were denied by revolutionary leaders. They describe him as an old type politician and hence taboo for their purposes.

Why De Cespedes Was Ousted.

The argument of the junta as to their ousting of De Cespedes is that he is a trained diplomat, but does not possess the iron fist necessary to quell disorder and that in his appointments he gave too much recognition to groups identified with the Machado regime.

The resentment was reaching a point where Mario G. Menocal, former president, was ready to capitalize it and oust De Cespedes with the aid of army officers when the junta got in a jump ahead and did it with sergeants.

The junta also argues that De Cespedes was under the domination of United States Ambassador Sumner Welles.

As if in order to prove that Cuba is capable of maintaining order, the Junta this evening suppressed a communist demonstration against its edict that within 24 hours all strikes and all acts of violence must cease.

Disturbers Melt Away.
The Reds, who fought a pitched battle with conservative labor elements, placarded the capital with announcements of a great gathering in Central park. Machine guns, cavalry, and truckloads of soldiers were placed at all approaches to the park. Sgt. Batista was in command. He armed the police with fire hose to wash out the communists.

The communists, viewing the preparations, marched down Obispo street to the waterfront while men and women ran into stores for refuge. Iron blinds were quickly lowered. Behind came the cavalry. Overhead came a rainstorm and the disturbers melted away. The expected riot was a flop. As American battleships kicked the seas with bones in their teeth, the revolutionary groups hastened to reach a settlement under which some sort of government might be set up that might be recognized by other nations.

Consolidate, Is Plea.
After a prolonged meeting with leaders of the ABC this morning the junta made an appeal for all groups to consolidate regardless of party, faction or race, to demonstrate that intervention is not necessary.

The junta and ABC leaders jointly the minority radical wing of the ABC participated in the overthrow of the government of President de Cespedes three days ago first hope to suppress the communists to demonstrate that the government has elements of stability. The Reds are supposed to be small in number but extremely active, especially among water front workers, stevedores, and dock wall-poppers.

If disorders continue the army is said to have orders to shoot violent disturbers on sight.

This was the reason for the communist effort to attempt a demonstration here and for the sacking of Oriente sugar mills and the Bacardi plant at Santiago early this morning.

Declares Violence Ended.
The junta points out that in the three days since de Cespedes was eased out quiet and order have prevailed and not a single killing has occurred in Havana.

Until the communists attempted to start trouble early this morning the junta points out, the island cities were practically free from disorder for the first time since Machado fled. De Cespedes was offered the presidency as a figurehead by the junta and ABC today, but the junta stated that he declined the offer of reinstatement. The plan was for the five members of the revolutionary junta to serve as a cabinet and run the government with de Cespedes as a rubber stamp president.

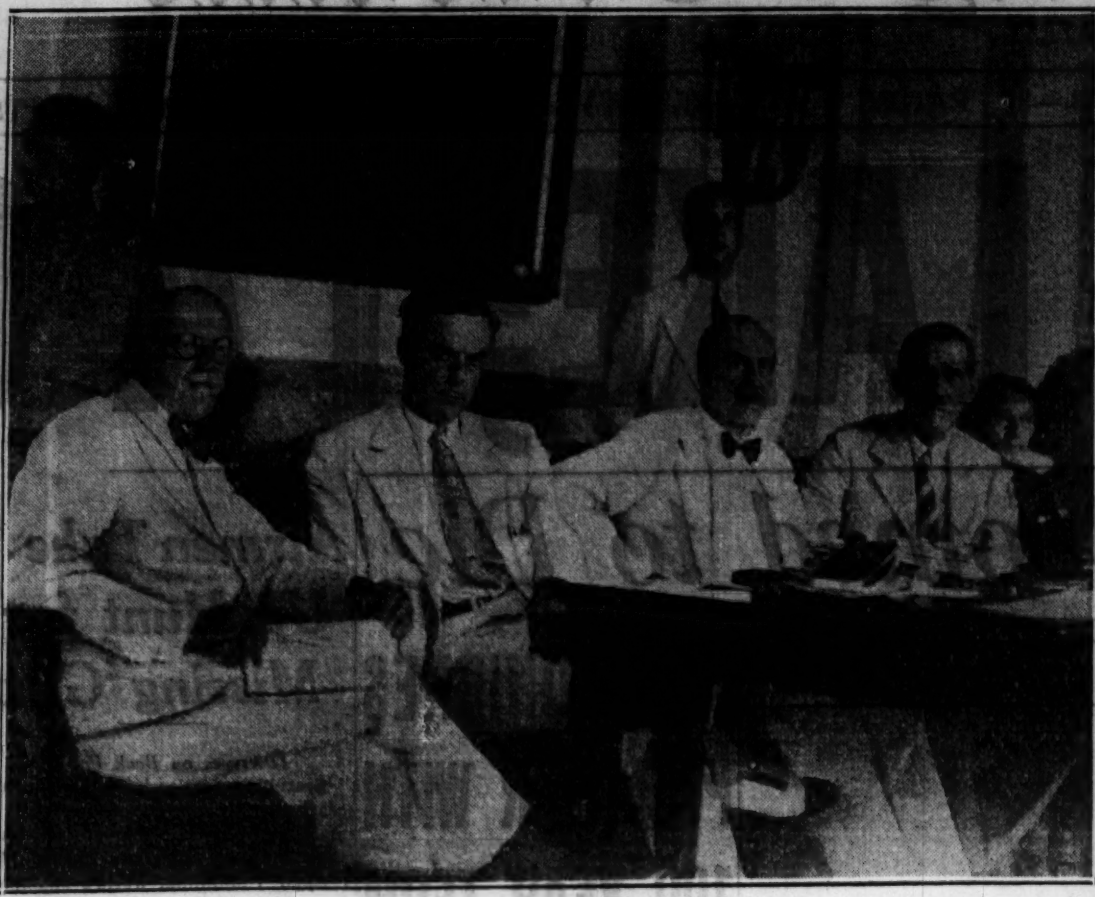

Seek Resemblance of Old Basic Law.
By this expedient, it was argued, the government would have a semblance of the form set up in the old constitution of 1901, which, as a part of the program, was to be restored until a constitutional convention is called to draw up a new basic law. The revolutionary leaders argued that this would give Cuba a government of a form which other nations might recognize.

This government, of course, would be the product of revolution, but the junta argues that the United States in the last three years has recognized several South American governments produced by revolutions. Carbo and San Martin, the most radical members of the junta, stated that the United States has granted recognition to South American governments controlled by revolutionary juntas and governing the nations without a constitution; the junta members see no reason why similar recognition cannot be tendered Cuba.

"No Reason for Intervention."
It was added that as long as the junta is able to maintain perfect peace and fully protect native and foreign life and property, and receive the unanimous support of Cubans, they saw no reason why the United States should intervene.

The Platt amendment gives the United States the right to intervene only when any form of Cuban government proves unable to maintain peace and order, but it does not give the right to dictate what kind of government Cuba shall have," San Martin said.

He asserted that this interpretation of the amendment would be demanded of the United States.

Cuba Quiet on Surface.

Meanwhile, Havana appears an abode of peace. The seriousness of a week ago seems largely worn off. The man hunts have been stopped by the junta and on the surface Cuba is back to tranquility. Reports current in Miami last night that Americans were being treated rough seem mythical. In a three hour walk through the city observers arriving today met nothing but the usual politeness and smiles.

Concentration of some 300 Americans this morning at the National hotel, where they were barricaded, was declared due to an attack of nerves. The explanation given by some Havana business men is that some American residents were thick with the Machado regime and consequently fear retaliations.

As to intervention, Cubans insist it is not necessary, and today some leaders of revolutionary groups who up to last week, were strongly applauding Ambassador Welles are now just as strongly criticizing him. They maintain that he has submitted exaggerated reports to Washington, resulting in warships being ordered here, with intervention a possibility. This is arousing resentment.

Sugar and politics are right in the forefront of developments. In urging the formation of some sort of provisional government, Batista declared that the soldiers and noncommissioned officers had agreed to reduce the army to two-thirds its present membership, that is, from 12,000 to 8,000. The navy also will be reduced, Batista said. The top sergeant announced that all officers not under public reproach for participation in the crimes of the Machado regime are already being released and reinstated.

Laborers and farmers, mostly those affected by the recent hurricanes, have planned a "hunger march" on Havana.

Ordered to Join Naval Ships in Florida.

New York, Sept. 7.—[Special.]—Eight coast guard destroyers were speeding today toward Key West, Fla., to join the navy ships under Rear Admiral C. S. Freeman awaiting orders that intervention becomes necessary.

The executive order to the destroyers was received late last night by Capt. Thomas M. Molloy, acting commander of the eastern area of the coast guard. The destroyers were at the time at long range practice in Chesapeake bay off Hampton Roads, Va.

Report on Saturday.
The destroyers are expected to report to Admiral Freeman by Saturday morning. Led by the flagship Herndon, under Commander Rose, were the following vessels: the Semmes, the Hunt, the Walcott, the Wilkes, the Upshur, the Wood, and the Badger.

The destroyers represent the entire unit of the type of vessel in Atlantic waters. Yesterday four coast guard cruisers started toward Key West on the same mission. They were drawn from the southern area. They are under the command of Commander J. L. Ahern on the Yamacraw. The others are the Gresham, the Unalga, and the Tuscarora.

Fuel Up: Await Orders.
The United States destroyers Ellis and Cole steamed into the Brooklyn navy yard today and received orders to fuel up and take on extra provisions and stand by for further orders. They were to be joined later by the Taylor, Claxton, and Barnard, which have been anchored in the North river for the last few days.

The Ellis is in command of Capt. R. A. White, who has charge of the destroyer flotilla on the North Atlantic. In the event that the flotilla should receive orders to proceed to Cuba it would be joined by the destroyers Dupont and Hamilton, the former vessel being at Boston and the latter at the Washington navy yard. Another unit in the flotilla is the Fairfax, which is berthed at Bridgeport, Conn. Each ship has a crew of 100 men and eight officers.

TRAIN DISASTER NOT ALL HIS FAULT, SAYS FREIGHT ENGINEER

Hornell, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Denying that he was wholly responsible for the wreck of the Atlantic Express at Binghamton Tuesday night, M. H. King, engineer of the milk train which plowed into the rear of the passenger, said tonight he was to blame to the extent of "going too fast to stop within the required distance."

King made his statement at a hearing called by Erie railroad officials to place the blame for the wreck in which 14 persons were killed and scores injured. He said if he had been properly signaled by the flagman of the passenger train he would not have crashed into it. Questioned by A. P. Duffy, representative of the Interstate commerce commission, King said the only signal he disobeyed was the last one as he entered the block where No. 8 was stopped.

When he saw the red light as he rounded a sudden curve, he said, he knew that the passenger train was in the block, but he did not have time to stop. He said the flagman should have signaled him farther back.

ready to take off toward Cuba on a moment's notice.

Twelve observation ships and necessary auxiliary planes from Brown field here were ordered checked up, their guns and bomb racks mounted. Pilots were ordered to pack their belongings.

COUNTY WARD, 73, PROVES THERE'S WAY TO SEE FAIR

James Perdue, 73 years old and an inmate of the Warren county farm near Monmouth, demonstrated last night that when there is a will to see the World's Fair there also is a way.

Perdue arrived at the Berwyn police station last night and asked for a place to sleep. He said he had heard of the towering Sky Ride and of wonderful exhibits of a Century of Progress to be seen and that he started out from the farm last Sunday and had been walking and hitchhiking ever since, four days.

When he left the county farm he had 15 cents and some biscuits and he still has the 15 cents, Perdue told the policemen, adding that he "guessed he would have to see the Fair from the outside."

The policemen took him to a barber shop, where he was given a shave, and then to dinner. Perdue's new found friends said that he would see the Fair today, from the inside.

BYRD BEGINS NEW ANTARCTIC TRIP ON SEPTEMBER 25

Roosevelt Asks Mail from "Little America."

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd will start from Boston on Sept. 25 on another exploration expedition in the antarctic.

He announced his plans today as he left the White House, where he and Mrs. Byrd were overnight guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and where Admiral Byrd discussed his plans in detail with Mr. Roosevelt. Admiral Byrd, who on Nov. 28, 1929, flew over the south pole, will take 70 men on this expedition with the intention of remaining away two years. His headquarters vessel will be the old coast guard cutter Bear, which has become famous in rescue work in the ice regions of the north and has had a famous record since its construction in 1872.

14,000 Items of Equipment.
"I am taking south with me 14,000 different items of equipment to sustain my expedition for two years," Admiral Byrd said. "A year ago this would have been out of the question. Greatly improved conditions have made possible the collection of this equipment."

Shortly after the famous explorer left the White House President Roosevelt made public a cordial letter addressed to "My Dear Dick," extending his good wishes to the expedition and asking particularly that Admiral Byrd enhance the President's stamp collection with a letter posted from Little America as soon as it has been reestablished.

Admiral Byrd told newspaper correspondents that he was called back to the antarctic by the prospects of exploring an unknown area as large as the United States and Mexico, a trip that is expected to involve a flight from Little America far beyond the south pole, the goal on his first expedition.

Icebound 100,000 Years.
He said there were many missing scientific links to be discovered in the frozen continent he plans to visit, links that have been held icebound for 100,000 years.

Included in his equipment will be several airplanes and dogs, some of the latter being those that were used on the first trip.

He will carry a Curtiss airplane and

CLAIRE WINDSOR NOW ACCUSES READS OF PLOT

Charges They Strive for Her Money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—Counsel for Claire Windsor, movie star, sprung a surprise in court today. Filing a supplemental plea in her defense against the $100,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Marian Y. Read, Miss Windsor's counsel charged Mrs. Read and her divorced husband, Alfred C. Read, with acting in collusion against Miss Windsor.

According to this counter attack, the Reads were charged with having agreed to be mutually helpful in the case and agreeing that whatever was recovered from the screen actress would be divided between Mrs. Read and Alfred C. Read Jr.

To Rule on Plea Today.
The question as to whether the court would accept this supplemental pleading by the defense will be decided tomorrow by Judge Joseph Sproul. Mrs. Read was on the stand today under cross-examination and Mr. Read was to follow her as a witness when the defense gave notice of desire to alter its plea. The jury of seven men and five women was sent from the courtroom. The judge said the Reads must be given time to examine the new defense plea and he would hear arguments tomorrow.

In the supplemental answer offered by Miss Windsor's lawyers, Leonard Wilson, Wilber Pierce, and Thomas Carlson, it is set forth that both before and after the alienation suit was filed Read and his former wife entered into an agreement to prosecute the suit against Miss Windsor with the understanding "that the proceeds derived from whatever judgment or settlement might be obtained should inure to the mutual benefit of plaintiff and A. C. Read Jr."

Charges Reconciliation Plot.
The changed line of defense includes charges that "Read and his wife resumed their marital relationship and lived together as man and wife" after his friendship for Miss Windsor. It also was said Mrs. Read enjoyed the affections of her husband as completely as she had at any time during their married life.

Attorney Pierce told the court he was prepared to prove that Mr. and Mrs. Read conspired to push the lawsuit against Miss Windsor, place whatever judgment was obtained in trust for their two children, later to effect a reconciliation. That was why the lawyer argued, Read gave Mrs. Read many of the fervid love letters to him from Miss Windsor and from him to her. Read said, out of court, he had agreed with his wife to burn the letters but instead of that she had given them to her relatives. The relatives, he said, had consulted an attorney.

Try to Show Discard.
Prior to his surprise move in the mid-afternoon the defense questioned Mrs. Read in an effort to show marital discord irrespective of Mr. Read's friendship with Miss Windsor. An effort also was made to show that Mrs. Read made some contributions to such discord. She rebutted both attempts in her replies to questions.

"During your married life did you always conduct yourself so as to give Mr. Read no cause to go out with other women?" Attorney Wilbur Pierce asked. "Of course," she testified.

"You were faithful to Mr. Read at all times?"
"Indeed I was," Mrs. Read replied.

Q—"Well, do you know a Mr. Harold Belasco of San Francisco?" A—"I certainly do. He was a good friend of my husband's."

Q—"At a party in the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco in February, 1929, did you not go with Mr. Belasco to a room alone, a room other than where the party was being held?" A—"Incidentally I did not."

Another Sharp Denial.
Q—"Well, did Mr. Belasco have any talk or suggestion of intimacy with you?" A—"[angrily] We had no conversation of that kind."

Mrs. Read was a picture of composure on her second day as her own chief witness.

She rebutted every suggestion that she and her husband [now divorced]

Mrs. Read and Her Children

Mrs. Marian Read, who is suing Claire Windsor, actress, for $100,000, charging alienation of affections, with her two children.

had been partly estranged prior to his friendship with Miss Windsor.

Their home life was not interrupted by jealous spats about other men, she testified. A quarrel she had with her husband at Lake Tahoe, Cal., in which name of Alberta Evans was mentioned, was "practically nothing," Mrs. Read said.

Q—"Isn't it a fact that you accused your husband of intimate relations with Alberta Evans?" A—"Why, no, she was a good friend of ours."

Q—"Did you ever accuse your husband [Mrs. Read secured a divorce] of having relations with his private secretary, Clarisse Champion?" A—"No."

Miss Champion was waiting in the witnesses' anteroom when this testimony was given, having been brought from San Francisco to Los Angeles by Read yesterday, to act as another witness favorable to Miss Windsor.

Admits Having Dispute.
Mrs. Read went on to testify that she "had had a dispute" with her husband, prior to their 1932 divorce, in which she urged her husband to discharge Miss Champion.

Mrs. Read said the "dispute" arose from her discovery that her husband's secretary had been handling and forwarding correspondence "between my husband and Miss Windsor."

"Before that I always had thought Clarisse Champion was my friend. I had entertained her in my home."

Mrs. Read testified she and her husband had separated Dec. 21, 1931, "over Miss Windsor" but "became reconciled later until March 13, 1932."

On that date she discovered evidence that the friendship between the defendant in the case and her husband had been resumed and she applied for a divorce, which she secured shortly afterward on grounds that her husband had been cruel to her and had associated with "other women."

CLAIMS SHARE OF INCOME OF MARY PICKFORD

He's 'Just One of Family,' Says Plaintiff.

New York, Sept. 7.—[Special.]—The complaint in the suit of Edward Hemmer against Mary Pickford for $250,000 was served today by the law firm of Richard J. Mickey on O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, counsel for Miss Pickford, and will be filed in the county clerk's office tomorrow. The plaintiff asserts that this sum is due him for the reasonable value of services rendered prior to 1922 to Miss Pickford and her mother.

Hemmer alleges that "prior to her meeting Douglas Fairbanks" the defendant was a star in silent films, but that since meeting him she has practically retired from any activity as an actress.

He asserts that he acted as her "guardian and foster father" for many years, lived with the Pickford family, and was on terms of intimacy with all the members, acting as her business manager and adviser.

"One of the Family."
While he worked on a salary, he contends that the bulk of his services for directing the course of the business ventures of the actress before the advent of Douglas Fairbanks was never paid for because "the plaintiff was considered by the defendant and her mother as one of the family and subject to participate in any estate the family might accumulate."

The plaintiff alleges that he and Mrs. Pickford were "vigorously opposed" to Miss Pickford's association with Mr. Fairbanks prior to her divorce from Owen Moore "and took a decided stand in opposition, but nevertheless the defendant persisted in her association with Douglas Fairbanks."

Severs Long Relationship.
Hemmer asserts that "the situation led to such disputes between the plaintiff and her mother on one side, and the defendant on the other" that in May, 1922, the plaintiff "agreed to sever the long relationship" that existed between him and the Pickford family.

Hemmer asserts that he agreed with Miss Pickford to make no claim for compensation until after the death of Miss Pickford's mother because Miss Pickford felt her mother would provide for him in his will. Mrs. Pickford gave her entire estate of $1,500,000 to her daughter, he says, for which reason he has demanded $250,000 as the reasonable value of his services and Miss Pickford has refused to pay it.

NIEMEYER GOES TO BRING SAPIRO
BACK FOR TRIAL

First Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeier departed for New York yesterday to bring Aaron Sapiro, nationally known industrial organizer, who was indicted by a Cook county grand jury for conspiracy with Al Capone and twenty-two others for alleged racket control of the cleaning industry.

Sapiro surrendered yesterday at the Tombs prison in New York, after Gov. Herbert H. Lehman on Wednesday granted the application for his extradition to Illinois. Mr. Niemeier said he was prepared to resist any possible move by Sapiro to obtain a writ of habeas corpus. He was accompanied by Sgt. Patrick Hand of the state's attorney's police.

Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan of the Criminal court here yesterday continued to Sept. 19 a hearing on the state's petition for a writ of habeas corpus against the federal government to bring Capone from Atlanta penitentiary to Chicago to stand trial. The state's attorney's office indicated it was not ready to present a case.

Other defendants in the conspiracy case are Murray Humphries, now public enemy No. 1; Al. Oscar F. Nelson (44th), Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, and Attorney Morris L. Kaplan, and various union officials.

TRADE OF WIVES GIVES COURT AN ALIMONY TANGLE

George Schwarz, 369 Rosemary terrace, Glenview, appeared yesterday before Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein on a writ of attachment obtained by his former wife, Florence. She divorced him in 1931, winning an order for $100 a month alimony, and yesterday she charged that he was $250 in arrears in his payments.

"Do you owe her the money?" Judge Epstein asked Schwarz. Schwarz admitted that he did.

"Then is there any reason why I shouldn't send you to jail for contempt of court?" asked the judge.

"I don't think that would be fair," said Schwarz.

"Why not?" asked Judge Epstein.

"You see," said Schwarz, "after my wife divorced me she married William Schmoll. They have had two children, and here I've been supporting their children with my alimony payments."

"Schmoll's wife, Gladys, divorced him about the time my wife divorced me, and I married her. She had three children by Schmoll and he was ordered to pay her $20 a week for their support. Now we have a child of our own and have adopted another one."

"So I am supporting five children in my own home and two in Schmoll's home. And he hasn't been paying my wife her $20 a week. He's $1,700 in arrears. Why should I be paying to support his two kids when he's not paying my wife?"

Judge Epstein, somewhat bewildered by the marital tangle, ordered that a full hearing of the case be given after the regular term of court open Sept. 18. Meantime, he sustained the motion of Attorney Norman Becker to quash the attachment for Schwarz.

Bomb Blasts Tear Out
Wall of Laundry Plant

A bomb, or bombs, exploded in the rear of the plant of the Marshall Square wet wash laundry, 2617 West Cermak road, early today caused damage estimated at several hundred dollars. A portion of the rear wall near the boiler room was torn away and garages across the alley were damaged.

Neighbors said there were two blasts. Officials of the firm, which displays an NRA Blue Eagle, said a labor organizer had been ordered off the premises a few days ago.

HUTTON IS SURE AIMEE WANTS TO HAVE HIM BACK

But There's Little Chance,
He Says Here.

David Hutton, husband of Aimee Sample McPherson Hutton, who has launched himself on a stage career since filing suit for divorce against the Los Angeles evangelist, admitted frankly yesterday that she wanted him back. It was a matter he apparently faced without surprise.

Arriving on the Olympian on the Milwaukee road on his way east, Hutton went to the Morrison hotel, and from a suite there outlined his position regarding women, marriage, and his wife. He made it clear that there wasn't much chance of his returning to the evangelist.

"It's just this way," said Hutton. "I'm a man's man. And what I want is a woman's woman. I like to step out and have a good time with the other boys, but I'm domestic. Well, I found that I couldn't even get my wife alone. There was always a hub-bub of temple folks around her."

He's Not Cynical, He Says.

Hutton then explained that despite everything he hadn't become cynical about women.

"Women are the spice of life, I guess," he said. "But if I ever do get married again, it's going to be a home body. It's hard for a fellow to marry a famous woman. I told her I was going to show her I could get along without her."

"Do you think you'd have got your theatrical engagements without her and the divorce publicity?" he was asked.

"Well, no," he conceded affably. "Of course, I make more money now than I would have if I'd never had the publicity. Every one wants to look at me."

"Just Her Gigolo," Says Hutton.

Alluding to Mrs. Hutton as "she" throughout his talk, he declared:

"She hates the word, but I was her gigolo. It got under my hide for her to want to take care of me. I'm a man and I must work. Also, I've got genius along musical lines. I'll have a career. I'll show 'em!"

Hutton will open a week's engagement at a Brooklyn theater on Sept. 15 and Mrs. Hutton will appear on the stage of a New York theater a week later.

"Yes, I think she wants me back," he said in reply to a query, "but I told her that the next time she got a man she ought to get rid of that crowd around her. Marriage fails when you marry a person and wake up next morning to find you're married to 20,000 church members, a board of elders, and a few old hens."

KING OF BOMBERS GOES ON TRIAL IN HOODLUM DRIVE

Change of Venue Granted to James Belcastro.

James Belcastro, king of the bombers, went on trial yesterday before Municipal Judge Robert J. Dunne charged with vagrancy under the new criminal reputation law. Belcastro had obtained a change of venue from the jurisdiction of Judge Thomas A. Green, who issued the warrant for the arrest of Belcastro and a number of other hoodlums against whom the police have made charges.

Belcastro's trial followed closely on that of Machine Gun Jack McGurn, who was sentenced to serve six months in the bridewell after being found guilty by a jury in Judge Green's court on Wednesday night. The king of the bombers is the fourth hoodlum to face trial in the current drive on men of criminal reputations. The others, besides McGurn, are Maxie Eisen, fish racket boss, and Walter Guida, a gunman, both of whom are serving jail sentences.

Staff of 3 Prosecutors.

Attorney Ellmore M. Libonati appeared as Belcastro's attorney and the prosecution staff consisted of Assistant State's Attorneys Frank S. Righelmer Jr., Gordon Nash, and John S. Boyle. Attorney Libonati asked the court to exclude all testimony pertaining to events which occurred before July 10, the date when the "reputation law" became effective and after Aug. 25, the date on which Judge Green issued the warrant for Belcastro's arrest. Judge Dunne granted the motion.

This motion had not been made in the cases tried before Judge Green. The prosecutors said they would not be hampered by the ruling. Selection of a jury was begun and will be completed today. Judge Dunne said, after which witnesses will present the evidence against Belcastro.

Sammons Fails to Appear.

James [Pur] Sammons, whose criminal record dates back 30 years and who is named in a vagabond warrant, was scheduled to appear yesterday before Judge Michael Feinberg on a reinstated robbery charge. Detectives were waiting to seize him for trial as a vagabond but Sammons failed to appear. His attorney, W. W. Smith, said Sammons would show up Monday. Judge Feinberg said he would order Sammons' $25,000 bond forfeited if he is not in court at that time.

Melville Reeves, the "skyscraper burglar," was also named in a vagabond warrant and detectives were waiting for him in the court of Judge Charles F. Mohr. He had been captured two years ago coming out of a building carrying burglar's tools. He also has been convicted twice of burglary but each time a new trial was granted. Yesterday he was scheduled to go to trial the third time but he did not appear in Judge Mohr's court. His bond was forfeited.

Another hoodlum, Dominick Marzano, was brought into the Felony court, presided over by Judge Green charged with manslaughter. He was arrested when he called at the Desplaines street police station to report the theft of an automobile owned by Michael Massena, his half-brother. Police found that the car had figured in an accident in which Joseph Bruno, 64 years old, was killed.

Supervising Police Captain John Stepe saw Marzano and Massena in court. He seized them and took them before Judge Green.

Demands Warrants for Them. "These men are worse than mad dogs," Stepe said. "They are killers of the worst type. I want vagabond warrants for them."

The warrants were issued. Then at

"King of Bombers" Goes on Trial

Step's request the charge against Marzano was changed from manslaughter to murder.

Meanwhile James Aducci, 27th ward terrorist and lieutenant of Dago Lawrence Mangano, vice and gambling boss of the west side, surrendered in Judge Green's court on a vagrancy charge and will be tried within a few days.

An associate of hoodlums, Margaret Mary Collins, the "kiss of death girl," became the first woman to be named in a vagrancy warrant in the present drive. She was a defendant before Judge Erwin J. Hasten yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct. Scanning her record, police asked Judge Hasten for a "reputation warrant" against her. It was issued and Margaret Mary was led away.

"This is outrageous," was her comment as she was locked up. Later she was freed on bond.

PROBE FORGED BOND DEALS HERE; ONE MAN HELD

With one man under arrest here, investigators from Topeka, Kas., and State's Attorney Courtney's office yesterday began trailing approximately $200,000 worth of spurious bonds which Ronald Finney, speculator and alleged bond forger, is believed to have sold to Chicago brokers and bankers.

Finney is held in Topeka under bond of $50,000 on 80 charges of forging and selling bonds. "The man held here is Joseph Martin, a real estate and security speculator, recently of Topeka. He was arrested last Tuesday and yesterday he was charged with receiving stolen property. His bond was fixed at $5,000. Eugene J. O'Connor, investigator for the state's attorney's office; County Attorney Lester M. Goodell of Topeka, and Hugo T. Wedell, special prosecutor for the state of Kansas, yesterday questioned Chicagoans believed to be holding the bogus certificates.

14 HURT FIGHTING 26TH INCENDIARY BLAZE IN LOOP

Dozen Firemen Overcome by Fumes and Smoke.

A dozen firemen were overcome by fumes and two were injured by falling yesterday in a downtown fire of incendiary origin, the twenty-sixth of that type within a month in the loop area. The fire occurred for a building at the northwest corner of Madison and Wells streets. Sewer gas which had collected in the basement of the building, mixed with smoke, is believed to have overcome the firemen. All but one of them, Francis J. Croyley of engine 40, were revived on the spot by rescue squads, who used oxygen tanks on some of them. Croyley was taken to Hennrich hospital. Firemen Robert Heppeler of engine 13 and Edward J. McCarthy of truck 8 were cut by glass.

Fire Starts in Basement.

The fire started in the basement of a smokehouse at 10 North Wells street owned by George H. Dell. Fire Marshal Corrigan said that the incendiary had set fire to the woodwork there at several spots. The flames burned through the basement of the whole building, which has entrances running from 12 North Wells street around the corner to 210 West Madison street and houses a Rakkios restaurant and several shops. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

John Frederick, 48 years old, 1712 South 9th avenue, Maywood, a jobless painter, was taken in custody at the scene on suspicion of starting the fire. After he had been questioned by Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan he was released on his promise to return to Mr. Sheehan's office this afternoon for a further interview.

Fireman Acts as Watcher.

Frederick was pointed out to police by Fireman Walter Raleigh, who, after the series of incendiary fires started, was detailed to don civilian clothes and mingle with crowds at the fire, watching for suspicious characters. Raleigh said that he had seen Frederick at several other fires of incendiary origin.

Frederick denied that. He did not remember having watched any other fire than the one last evening, he said.

Off to Explore Africa, Grow Weary in Indiana

Helms Schmidt, 14 years old, 2257 Lewis street, and Joseph Langlitz, 8 years old, 1115 Altgeld street, decided on Wednesday to explore Africa, and started out immediately, equipped only with a map and out of a family almanac. Joseph got "too tired" yesterday and came home to his frantic parents from Valparaiso, Ind. He said that Helms was still determined to get to Africa when he left him.

year sentence he will have to serve at least 16 years.

Both defendants received the verdict without any outward show of emotion. The only disturbance was the screaming of Bongiorno's sister, Carmelita.

Public Defender Joseph Power, who appeared for King, asked the jury to save his client from the electric chair. He joined Attorney O'Brien in a motion for a trial. The motion will be heard Sept. 16.

Bongiorno's crime record goes back to Aug. 18, 1923, when he was placed on probation for one year. He was fined several times after that for disorderly conduct. In 1934 he was arrested for both automobile larceny and robbery, but the charges against him were stricken off with leave to reinstate. In the same year he was sent to Pontiac reformatory when a charge of robbery was reduced to larceny. He was paroled in 1930.

Guilty Under Dyer Act.

King's record began in October, 1925, when he was sent to the Indianapolis jail for six months for violation of the Dyer act, transporting stolen automobiles. On Sept. 16, 1928, he was sentenced to seven to fifteen years to the Ionia, Mich., reformatory for robbery. He was transferred in 1917 to Marquette penitentiary. He was paroled Sept. 26, 1932.

The crime drive under the leadership of Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan, who succeeded Judge Prystalski last Monday, appeared to be having difficulty in getting under way yesterday. Two penitentiary sentences were imposed, and although nine judges were on the job only one major criminal case, the King-Bongiorno trial, got under way during the day. Only nine sentences have been imposed since Monday. During the previous drive the sentences averaged 15 a day.

Plenty of Jurors.

A new venire reported for service yesterday. The judges now have sufficient jurors and cases to start to work, court attaches pointed out. By next week the drive should be as productive of results as it was during the term of Judge Prystalski, the new chief justice said.

James [Iszy] Varacha, the youthful bandit who ended a career of rape and robbery with the murder of Frank Jordan, appeared before Judge Miller for a new trial, as ordered by the Supreme court. He was once sentenced to death by Judge Prystalski. He will go to trial on Oct. 9, Judge Miller announced.

Sam Pitts, colored, 38, of Maywood, was sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Walter F. Steffen. He was found guilty of charges made by three young girls. Foster Arrington, also colored, was the other man sentenced. He was given a 1 to 14 year penalty for manslaughter. He killed William Brimm, also colored, on May 10.

DAY 36TH STATE VOTES REPEAL TO END PROSECUTION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—There will be no prosecution of persons for violation of the prohibition law between the day the thirty-sixth state votes repeal of the 18th amendment and the issuance of the proclamation by the secretary of state declaring the amendment wiped out of the constitution.

Attorney General Cummings probably will issue an official ruling on the subject within a short time. Today he would only say that "common sense" would be employed.

When repeal action is completed by the 36th state, the amendment is repealed, without awaiting the formality of the secretary of state's proclamation, but this does not necessarily affect the enabling legislation enacted in support of the 18th amendment.

It is conceivable also that there may be some delay after the thirty-sixth state has voted repeal before its ratification convention is held. In principle the government still is enforcing the Volstead act. Actually, however, the dry forces have been reduced to such an extent that effective enforcement is out of the question.

It is expected that shortly after repeal a number of federal dry law violators, now in prison, will be released.

MOTORIST SHOT BY POLICEMAN DIES OF WOUND

Harold Lind Jr., 37 years old, 1472 Argyle street, died at the Edgewater hospital last evening of a wound received Sept. 1 when he was shot by Policeman Patrick Gibbons of the Summerdale station during a quarrel over a minor automobile collision. The shooting took place in front of the Lind home.

The shooting was termed by police officials as "unnecessary." They said that Lind's automobile had collided with another car but the damage was slight. They said the dispute was one which should have been settled in the civil courts and was without interest to the police. Policeman Gibbons pleaded self-defense, saying that Lind attacked him when told that he must go to the station. Gibbons has been ordered to appear at the inquest to be held in the hospital today.

IT'S ROOSEVELT REUNION DAY AS LINER ARRIVES

Fourteen Greet Sons of Two U. S. Presidents.

New York, Sept. 7.—[Special].—It was reunion day today aboard the United States liner Manhattan, when nearly all the Roosevelts in the country—cousins and distant cousins, sons and mothers, and even grandchildren—met by chance to greet returning travelers. Only the President was absent.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late Republican President, and Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the present Democratic President, both returned on the Manhattan.

When relatives of the two travelers had gathered on the liner's sun deck, statisticians counted at least fourteen Roosevelts, chatting, shaking hands, speaking over the microphone, and posing for photographers as hundreds of other passengers hurried past.

The wife of the President climbed the steep iron stairway with her tall son to pose for "just one" picture. As she came to the deck, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was seated on a shaded bench on the far side, listening to her son, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, speaking into the microphone of his travels in sixteen countries.

Mothers Exchange Greetings.
Walking swiftly across the deck, the wife of the President greeted the widow of the first Roosevelt to occupy the White House. They spoke for a moment and then parted with smiling farewells.

Besides Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt and their daughter, Grace, there were Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of Nicholas Longworth; Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Ethel Roosevelt Derby, the wife of Dr. Richard Derby; Mrs. Curtis Dall, daughter of the President; Mrs. Grace Alexander, mother of Col. Roosevelt's wife, and the colonel's two sons, Quentin and Theodore Jr., who met their parents at the pier.

Genealogical novices who wrote down these names soon became lost in family trees. They were found leaning exhausted against the taffrail.

Trade Compliments.
It appears that the meeting aboard ship had been the first to occur between the son of the former President and the son of the present President.

Sons of Two President Roosevelts Meet on Shipboard

Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., both sons of Presidents, with party at dinner aboard the S. S. Manhattan en route to New York from France. The son of the late T. R. is returning from the Philippines and Franklin Jr. from a vacation in Europe. The men are, left to right, standing: Charles Symington Jr., Drexel Paul, Franklin Jr., Commodore A. B. Randall, and Frank Meier. The ladies are, left to right: Miss Ernie Hoffman, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Miss Grace Roosevelt, and Mrs. Frank Meier. The former Philippine governor general is seated at the left.

They got along handsomely, despite reputed political rift existing in the family.

"What a nice boy he is," said the colonel of his youthful relative. "He is certainly a nice man," said Franklin D. Jr.

"You know," added the President's son, "an elderly woman came up after Col. Roosevelt and I had played a game together and said she didn't know the families were on speaking terms. That's a lot of nonsense. A lot of newspaper talk. We aren't that way at all and I think the colonel's a mighty nice man."

The President's son returned with his enthusiasm for bull fighting unquenched, even though he admitted having received messages from humane societies while abroad, urging him to "let down" on his praise of the sport.

"Stung" at European Hotels.
He said he had met many distinguished men in Europe and had been received with graciousness everywhere he went. Many persons asked him disconcerting questions about policies here. In some countries he and his friends found it did not pay to let it be known in advance who they were.

"When the hotels found out who we were they soaked us plenty and it sure was bad luck when we were trying to squeeze through with nobody knowing anything about it," he declared.

Mr. Roosevelt admitted that while he was in Europe he had written two letters to his father and then had neglected to mail them, but had sent some postcards.

"I guess failure to write letters is a Roosevelt trait," he said. "When I get home I'll just let my father read the letters."

To Washington By Plane.
After luncheon Mrs. Roosevelt met another liner in the afternoon, when the Lafayette docked with Miss Marion Dickerman, head of the Todhunter school, and Miss Doris Goodwin, the school's physical culture director, on board. Later Mrs. Roosevelt and her two sons went to Washington in a plane.

Col. Roosevelt was returning in a roundabout way from the Philippines, where he was governor, visiting various lands.

INDICT 2 FORMER STATE EMPLOYEES FOR TAX RACKET

Accuse Debarred Lawyer and Clerk of Fixing.

Two former state employees, one a disbarred lawyer, were reported named yesterday by the grand jury in true bills charging them with embezzlement and conspiracy to defraud a number of corporations in a franchise tax fixing racket.

The defendants are Arthur B. Steuben, Chicago attorney, who was disbarred in 1929 after he had been caught in a similar scheme, and John Little of Littleton, Ill., formerly clerk in charge of franchise tax records in the office of the secretary of state. Steuben was assistant chief clerk in the office when Louis L. Emmerson was secretary of state.

Steuben was let out of his state job in 1926. In 1928, it is charged, he approached the officials of a number of corporations, assuring them that he could obtain for them reductions in their franchise taxes and also excepting the time of payment without incurring the usual 5 per cent penalty per month.

Charge Payment of $4,700.
One of these concerns, according to the allegations, was the Kraft-Phenix Cheese company, which paid him $4,700, of which $1,200 was to have been his fee and the remainder was to have been paid to the secretary of state. Later, when the secretary of state's office asked the company for its payment, its attorneys discovered that Steuben had kept the money.

Upon complaint of the company, two employees of the secretary of state, C. M. Hoop and Harry J. Olson, were dismissed for supposed collusion with Steuben, and Steuben himself consented to his own disbarment. According to Assistant State's Attorney Philip H. Treacy, Steuben also victimized the Edward Hines Lumber company and Arnold Brothers, meat packers, at that time.

Prosecutor Treacy said that Steuben, with the assistance of Little, renewed his activities in 1931 and 1932. Their method, Treacy said, was to make fraudulent entries in the records in charge of Little, reducing the amount of tax charged against Steuben's clients. This work was done so crudely, the prosecutor said, that other clerks had no difficulty in discovering the false entries.

Among the complainants in the present true bills was the Major Engineering company, 123 West Madison street, a concern which was involved in the parole scandal in 1926 through the activities of its president, M. A. Messlein, and Will Colvin, then chairman of the parole board. It gave $400 to Steuben, it is charged.

Other complainants and their losses were the Benke Manufacturing company, $190; George M. Forman & Co., $850, and the 3000 Sheridan Road Building corporation, $250. Prosecutor Treacy said that he had been told that a score of other building corporations were among the victims of Steuben and Little.

office on his vacation last September, and failed to return. The town where he lives, a village in Schuyler county, near Rushville, was named for his ancestors.

COURT APPROVES SCHOENHOFEN CO. REORGANIZATION

A reorganization of the Schoenhofen company, brewing concern at 1926 West 18th street, which has been in receivership for a year and a half, was approved by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday and the receivership was dismissed. Irving J. Solomon is president of the new company, to be known as the Schoenhofen-Edelweiss company.

Attorney Irving Goldsmith said the new company has no debts and has a capital and surplus of $2,500,000, the capital stock consisting of 450,000 shares at $1 par.

The reorganization was effected, Mr. Goldsmith said, by stockholders and creditors and those who did not enter into the plan were paid off in full. The Schoenhofen brewery has been in existence more than 80 years.

U.S. BOARD VOICES FAVOR OF SCHOOL LOAN PROPOSAL

Harrison Halts Attack by Foes of Trustees.

A favorable attitude toward a federal loan to complete school buildings in Chicago was expressed yesterday by members of the state advisory board on public works at a public hearing. The plan as outlined by Supt. William J. Bogan, would provide for a loan of $10,000,000, using building fund tax anticipation warrants as collateral and an outright grant of approximately $4,000,000, the remainder needed for construction costs.

Carter H. Harrison, chairman of the advisory board, directed the school officials to compile figures on the amount of tax warrants that would be available for collateral. The amount of the loan will probably be reduced since the board members indicated that they would not recommend advancing federal funds for school equipment.

Harrison Halts Protest.
An effort of the "Save Our Schools" committee to block the building program was halted by Mr. Harrison. After James White, Mrs. Laura Hughes Lund, and other representatives of the protest group had attacked the present school board, Mr. Harrison ruled that their arguments had no place in the hearing.

"We're not trying to decide whether the school board acted wisely or not in its economy program," asserted Mr. Harrison. "A decision on the competency of the school trustees is outside our province."

"The school board said there was a deficit of $10,000,000," said Mr. White. "The citizens' committee said the deficit was $35,000,000, and the teachers say there is no deficit at all. Our argument is that this school board shouldn't be allowed to handle building funds if it can't handle them any better than it does the educational. Our committee is made up of prominent educators, parents, and teachers."

"Well, who are you?" inquired Frank S. Righimer, special counsel for the school board. "I never heard of you before."

Bogan Takes Responsibility.
"I think Mr. White is mistaken," declared Mr. Bogan, rising to his feet. "This idea originated with me, and I took it to the board. The board members were doubtful of the plan at first, but they told me to go ahead. If there is any blame for suggesting that funds be obtained to complete these buildings and put thousands of men to work, it should be on me."

"These people who are protesting are just trying to get their names in the paper," said Attorney Righimer. "They understand nothing whatsoever about the board's financial condition."

James L. Houghteling of Chicago and James H. Andrews of Kewanee, the other members of the advisory board, asked when the contracts had been let on the school buildings, which have been left in various stages of construction because of lack of funds.

"Four or five years ago," said Don C. Rogers, director of building survey for the school system. "Who was the mayor then?" asked Mr. Harrison.

"Well, it was a former Republican administration," replied White.

Explains Building Delay.
In his opening statement to the board Mr. Bogan declared that the school building program was halted by the world war, and that just about the time that the system was catch-

Supt. Bogan Predicts Increased Enrollment in High Schools

A formal statement regarding the opening of the public schools on Sept. 18 was issued yesterday by Supt. William J. Bogan. The superintendent also announced provisions for the re-enrollment to courses at the Chicago Normal college of the 1,271 teachers temporarily out of work because of the board of education's economy program.

An increased school enrollment for the coming term, especially in the high schools, was predicted by the superintendent. Last year about 106,000 students entered this branch of the system during the month of September and an increase of approximately 10,000 is expected this year. Added to this number will be 16,000 boys and girls formerly in the junior high schools, which have been abolished. Thus the estimated high school enrollment will be 122,000.

The elementary school enrollment is estimated at 355,000, making a total of 477,000 pupils in the public schools.

Places for 13,255 Teachers.
The number of high school teachers will be approximately 3,875 and there will be about 9,350 teachers in the elementary school classrooms.

At the Normal college only 30 college graduates and 60 high school graduates will be admitted, according to the superintendent, making the total enrollment 735 students in the three year course. Intensive courses also will be offered for the 1,271 teachers temporarily on the waiting list. These are household arts, manual ing with the increased enrollment another "war"—the depression—came along.

Mr. Rogers followed the superintendent with an argument that the loan for building in Chicago should be a preferred one. He cited the fact that many men could be put to work at once. These men, Mr. Rogers declared, were in the building trades, which have suffered more from unemployment than other classes.

A surprise speaker at the hearing was Dr. Petra M. Dahl, who said she came before the board as a citizen. She declared that in abandoning the ill-ventilated portables which had housed school children the board had made an advance in civilization. The junior high school system of instruction, which the board abolished, was really a "cave system," Dr. Dahl charged. She criticized the board's action in closing Crane Junior college.

TEACHERS GET TAX WARRANT
PAY NEXT WEEK

Distribution of $4,156,000 in 1933 tax warrants in lieu of cash to teachers and other school employees for their services during the last half of January and the first half of February will start next week. Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school system, said yesterday that the warrants would be given out in the old City State bank at Randolph and Wells streets.

Approximately 80,000 of the 121,000 warrants in denominations of $50 and $25 have been signed by Elsa Z. Brinsley, proxy for James B. McCahery, president of the school board. Charles Gilbert, board secretary, and proxies for Mayor Kelly and City Controller Upham.

According to plans, a dozen cashiers' cages will be opened so that $399,000 and $499,000 worth of warrants can be distributed in a day. It will take about fifteen days to complete the distribution.

The school board decided to declare the pay day in warrants last week when it paid cash for salaries due for the first half of January.

LOS ANGELES HAS NEW WEAPON FOR WAR ON CRIME

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 7. — [Special.]—Opening its campaign to drive men with criminal records in other cities out of Los Angeles, the county grand jury today drew up unique indictments charging Abe (Arthur) Bernstein, leader of the Detroit purple gang, and Bernstein's bodyguard, Jack Budd, with "conspiracy to become vagrants." Both were ordered picked up and held in $50,000 bail. They previously had been arrested as vagrants and while awaiting trial were out on $1,500 bonds each.

Bernstein and Budd have been living in two swanky adjoining front lawn bungalows at the Ambassador hotel. Their attorney is David Clark, former deputy district attorney who one year ago was acquitted on a charge of murdering the late Charles Crawford, well known Los Angeles politician.

MAYOR APPROVES PLAN TO ASK U. S. FOR $50,000,000

Indorses Program of Port Committee.

Mayor Kelly yesterday indorsed the program of the Chicago regional port committee calling for a 100 per cent federal grant of $50,000,000 to develop inland waterway channels out of the drainage canal and Sag channel through the Calumet and northern Indiana industrial district.

At the same time, the mayor declared himself opposed to the city asking any federal funds to finance public works here on a 30-70 basis, the government granting 30 per cent outright and the city posting collateral for a federal loan at 4 per cent interest for the remaining 70 per cent.

Such programs, the mayor pointed out, would only increase the local tax burden.

"I am in favor of any public works project which the government will agree to pay for outright," said Mr. Kelly. "I am for the government to pledge for a 70 per cent loan. In the first place, we haven't the bonds to pledge for a 70 per cent loan. In the second place, such projects would increase local taxes."

Would Increase Taxes.
"But I cannot approve any projects in which the city must shoulder 70 per cent of the cost, even if the government contributes the rest. In the first place, we haven't the bonds to pledge for a 70 per cent loan. In the second place, such projects would increase local taxes."

The waterway improvement project, as drafted by Maj. Rufus W. Putnam, director of the port committee, calls for widening of the Sag channel from 60 to 250 feet, widening of the Little Calumet and the Grand Calumet rivers, improvement of Lake Calumet harbor and reconstruction of forty-seven bridges to afford wider spans and greater clearance.

The port committee will ask the government to pay for the bridge construction as well as the dredging, since the city, county and sanitary district are without funds.

Urges Dropping of Project.
Army engineers have previously approved a $20,000,000 federal grant for the Sag channel widening, but recommended dropping of the whole improvement plan in a report last June because of the inability of local governments to finance reconstruction of the bridges.

As the drainage canal and Sag channel are now part of the waterways and will bear the nation's commerce between the great lakes and the gulf when improved, Mayor Kelly and the port committee maintain that the government should finance the whole project, bridges and all.

NRA CHIEF'S FIRM VIOLATES CODE, UNION CHARGES

Declares Wages Too Low; Denial Issued.

New York, Sept. 7. — [Special.]—Charges that Lea Fabrics, Inc., Newark, N. J., carpet makers headed by Hugh S. Johnson, the NRA administrator, is not living up to the NRA code were made today by an officer of the International Carpet Workers' union.

In a letter to Newark newspapers Eric Ross, secretary-treasurer of the union, asserted that the carpet company had reduced its working week from forty-eight to forty hours without raising wages to give the workers the equivalent of forty-eight hours' pay, and that it had discharged a workman named Herbert Smalley who had taken an active part in union organization work.

Officer Denies Charges.
"There is nothing to this man's complaint," Ellery K. Files, vice president of the company, said after seeing a copy of the letter. "The fact of the matter is that this is a radical outfit and it sees a chance to get a lot of free publicity and put us on the spot because Gen. Johnson happens to be our president."

"Our whole plan of operation is to always have been based on a 40 hour week. When our people work 48 hours, as they did for several peak periods, they are working overtime."

He said that his company's work is seasonal, and that last year it was on a 30 hour week most of the time.

Pay Higher Than Necessary.
"Furthermore," he continued, "through that period we were paying our men 40 cents an hour and we could have hired all the help we needed for from 15 cents to 30 cents an hour."

"As to the firing of Smalley, he was fired by his foreman because his work was unsatisfactory. We have made no attempt to prevent the organization of our plant. Frankly, we did not encourage Ross' union. I told him we would not encourage it, that we did not want our people to join it, and that we would prefer to have them join a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor."

"But I also told him that any time he could bring me a certified list of a majority of our employees as paid up members in good standing of his union we would do business with him. They didn't join."

HOPE OF HIGHER PAY ENTHUSES U. S. OFFICIALS

Budget Estimates Call for Increases.

(Copyright by the Associated Press, 1933.)
Washington, D. C., Sept. 7. — (AP)—The bright hope of higher salaries enthused government officials today as the budget bureau, in calling for expense estimates for next year, asked that salary figures be submitted on the base pay rate—without the 15 per cent reduction now in effect.

To prevent undue counting of dollars before they arrived, however, the bureau made clear in its general letter to budgetary officers of the departments and agencies, that its call was "not to be understood as indicative of a change in existing policy."

Expect President to Act.
This was interpreted by fiscal agents of several of the major federal agencies as a precautionary qualification, since most of them feel that by

Harrison, Tex., Sept. 7. — (AP)—Hammers rang throughout the hurricane swept area of the lower Rio Grande valley today as residents, undaunted by their enormous losses, began repairing shattered homes and business buildings.

The death list stood at 22, the number of injured at several hundred, and throughout the territory army ambulances moved into outlying rural districts in an effort to find any additional dead or injured.

Estimates of property damage ran around $10,000,000, with damage to the citrus crop virtually complete. Some fears were expressed that a flood might develop on the lower stretches of the Big river as a result of torrential rain around Monterey, Mexico, and in the upper Rio Grande valley. The weather bureau advised immediate notification of a forthcoming flood to "all interested parties."

However, the lower valley is protected by an elaborate flood control system which has functioned effectively in times of other floods, and there was no indication the present one would be in any way serious.

That's why clothes last so long and have that fresh new look after each laundering. The laundress tells me that's why her hands never get red or rough. CODE IS FRAMED BY JOHNSON FOR COAL OPERATORS

Basic Pay $3 to $5.40;
Labor Pacts Near.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—A basic code of minimum wages, maximum hours and fair competitive practices was laid down for the bituminous coal industry today by Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator.

The highly controverted labor problems of the industry, at the same time, were reported to be approaching final solution following an agreement on fundamentals today by non-union operators and officials of the United Mine Workers.

The day's developments brought almost to a conclusion the six weeks of effort on the part of the administration to formulate a code for the soft coal industry, which Gen. Johnson described a month ago as the "pineapple" of the entire recovery campaign.

Ready to Hear Protests.
With the code, came an announcement from Administrator Johnson that he will impose it upon the entire bituminous industry early next week unless the operators agree to its terms voluntarily or can suggest amendments acceptable to Gen. Johnson.

Dissenters are given until 6 o'clock Saturday evening to file exceptions and voice objections. Those protests, Gen. Johnson said, will be carefully considered and, if necessary, the code will be revised. On Monday a public hearing will be held on the completed pact and then it will be presented to President Roosevelt for his final approval.

Aside from a reaffirmation of the "collective bargaining" clause of the national recovery act, Gen. Johnson's code makes no mention of labor relations between worker and employer, although it provides machinery for arbitrating possible labor disputes.

Plan for Labor Contracts.
The unionization problems which have been regarded as the most obstinate barrier to completion of the coal code, are to be settled in basic labor contracts agreed upon by the operators and officials of the United Mine Workers at the White House last night.

This agreement was announced today by Gen. Johnson in the following statement:
"As a result of a conference with the President last night, the bituminous operators and the United Mine Workers have cleared up their points of disagreement on the wording of certain labor clauses in their proposed contracts and are now proceeding to negotiation of details with what, I am informed, are excellent prospects of success."

A committee representing the labor officials and the operators worked throughout the day with legal experts of the NRA in an effort to draft the contracts formally and in detail. John L. Lewis, president of the Mine Workers, said he believed it would take several days to accomplish this, due to the highly technical nature of the task. But he predicted completion of the contracts by Saturday.

Seeks Flexible Code.
The "basic code" promulgated by Gen. Johnson deals only with wages, hours, and competitive practices in the bituminous industry. It was de-

MINE WORKERS QUIT NRA PARADE AFTER RIVALS SEIZE SIGNS

Harrisburg, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Approximately 200 members of the United Mine Workers of America withdrew from a NRA parade here today after Progressive miners had torn signs from the "regulars" cars.

Some said the Progressives yanked banners "650,000 Strong and We're All Americans" from the United Mine Workers' machines, but Scorial Thompson, United Mine Workers' attorney, said bunting and decorations and an American flag also were jerked down.

Thompson said several bricks were thrown, one of them hitting Hoyt Edwards of Galena, a United Mine Worker in the eye and knocking him off his automobile. He said other United Mine Workers were bruised.

"The Progressives had about 25 autos in the parade, but we withdrew naturally," Thompson said. "Several locals sent wives to Gen. Hugh Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, protesting the action of the Progressives."

Thompson's version of the disturbance was that the United Mine Workers were lined up for the parade when they were "ignited" by about 500 Progressives. He said about 200 United Mine Workers were in their cars ready to participate in the parade.

Mildred Womack Rude, 26, daughter of Police Commissioner J. H. Womack, fell from a truck during the NRA parade and suffered a possible fracture of the skull. She was taken to a hospital.

Thousands of cars and trucks took part in the NRA celebration, which was county-wide. The parade was from Harrisburg to Carrier Mills and Eldorado.

The Johnson code calls for an eight hour day for all mine workers and prescribes an average 36 hour maximum work week. In order to permit employers to accommodate production to seasonal requirements, however, it would permit employees to be worked on a 40 hour a week basis for half the year, if during the other half they were required to work only 32 hours a week.

Basic wages are fixed in the code on a district scale basis, ranging from a low of 37½ cents per hour, or $3 a day, in the Alabama, Georgia, and Southern Tennessee district, to a high of 70½ cents an hour, or $5.40 per day, in the Montana district.

The minimum basic rate in the Illinois field is fixed at 62½ cents an hour, or $5 a day. The Indiana field would pay 57½ cents per hour, or $4.57½ cents a day.

The code provides, however, for possible revision of both the maximum hours and minimum wages if stipulated, will undertake, as soon as possible, an investigation into the "practicability and cost of applying to bituminous coal mining a shorter work day and work week, giving consideration to a 30 hour, a 32 hour, and a 35 hour week."

Will Confer Nov. 30.
Also to be investigated at the same time, under the code, is the "effect of and advisability of revising wage differentials in the various regions of the industry." A report on the investigations is to be made prior to Nov. 30, 1933. On Dec. 1 a conference will be called to consider possible revisions in the light of results of the inquiry.

For purposes of administering the code the bituminous industry will be divided into five main divisions, for each of which a "divisional code authority" will be created. This "authority" will have supervision of the mines in its division and will likewise supervise fair market prices for coal. These fair prices are to be fixed periodically by existing marketing agencies within each division, subject to approval of the divisional authorities.

For National Labor Board.
Labor disputes which may arise are to be handled by a national bituminous coal labor board, which the code creates. This board, consisting of three members, is to be appointed by the President, on recommendations of labor or employer organizations and of the divisional code authorities. The national board will have final jurisdiction in all labor controversies.

Within each division, however, a mine adjustment committee, a district adjustment committee, and a divisional adjustment committee will be created to deal with local disputes. If these organizations cannot effect a settlement the controversy will be taken finally to the national board.

The acute unionization problems within the industry are expected to be settled in the underlying labor contracts upon which the operator and labor officials were working today.

Union Making Concessions.
The labor contracts now being formally drafted by labor officials and operators, since a fortnight ago, have been the principal basis of negotiation between the United Mine Workers and representatives of the large non-union operators of the Appalachian field.

It was said today the labor officials have consented in the contracts to abandonment of the so-called "check-off," under which union dues are taken out of miners' pay at the paymaster's window. This was regarded as a concession on the part of the labor organization, although it was pointed out that in many cases, rent for company houses, doctor's bills and such expenses were deducted by the companies in the same manner.

CARMEN ASKED BY NRA CHIEFS TO DELAY STRIKE

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7.—(AP)—On the eve of a strike that threatened to tie up Greater Cleveland's public transportation system, the national recovery administrator took a hand tonight with a request that the walkout be postponed at least five days.

The NRA intervention was disclosed late today to representatives of both the union and the company by Mayor Roy Miller, who had called them in for a final attempt at peaceful settlement.

The mayor told the conferees that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the national recovery administrator, and Senator Robert Wagner of New York, chairman of the NRA's national labor board, had asked him to request the strike postponement until the NRA labor board officials can attempt a settlement.

"Gen. Johnson told me to point out," the mayor said, "that strikes do not carry out the spirit of the NRA."

The results of the recovery board's request were not immediately apparent. Previously the nearly 3,000 members of the carmen's union had voted to strike unless their demands for recognition and a 25 per cent increase in the wage rate were met—demands which were promptly turned down by the company. Accordingly, the call went out to strike at 5 a. m. tomorrow, but this was before Gen. Johnson had entered the picture.

FORD APPROVES MOST OF CODE, SAY HIS FRIENDS

Way of Signing.

Big Bay, Mich., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—Henry Ford remained noncommittal concerning his failure to sign the NRA automobile code today, but friends of the manufacturer said that he was "hesitating" to sign only because of certain "technical features" which he does not approve.

These friends, who include recent associates of Ford in the Huron Mountain club near here, said that Ford has indicated in conversation that the general outline of the national recovery program meets his approval. However, they said, he does not feel that he can open his books to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, of which he is not a member, nor change his relations with numerous automobile parts manufacturers, as the code requires.

Reported "Not Quite Ready."
The most optimistic of those who talked with Ford at the camp said that he was "not quite ready" to make any concessions to the code. Some of Ford's friends said that he would end his three week stay in his camp here tomorrow and would return to Detroit.

During the day Ford came out of his closely guarded retreat for the first time since last Saturday. In an automobile driven by a chauffeur, Ford was taken to Big Bay, which is six miles from his camp, shortly after noon.

Alighting from the machine at the local telephone exchange, Mr. Ford put in a call to Detroit. There are no telephones in his camp. After completing the call he returned to the car and was swiftly driven back to camp. While in Big Bay he refused to be interviewed.

Must Reduce Hours.
As outlined by sources outside the Ford company, compliance with the code would mean that Ford would be expected to reduce working hours of employees from 40 to 35 each week. He would be expected to waive his traditional stand against collective bargaining by employees and consent to some degree of supervision by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, administrative agent of the code.

It was conjectured that the revision upward from $4 to $4.80 a day in minimum wage was an initial step in the process of changing factory conditions to fit the code. It was interpreted as laying the groundwork for a reduction in working hours without reducing the income of the workers.

Hearing on Newspapers
Scheduled for Sept. 22

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The recovery administration today set Sept. 22 for a public hearing on the code presented by the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Citywide participation in the Fair, the dream of Exposition officials since opening day, will approach realization this morning with the first of a series of neighborhood days arranged for sections of Chicago which have worked with the Exposition to care for thousands of visitors and to provide talent for scores of free entertainments.

Today the southwest side will give its program, the work of several weeks on the part of forty-two civic and educational associations. Already nine other communities have been assigned definite dates for their programs and more are negotiating with the Fair every day. Several possible dates for such celebrations are still open.

Salute for Gov. Lehman.

Also honored on today's bill at the Fair is New York State, with Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Mrs. Lehman, and state officials as guests. The official party will arrive at 9 a. m. on the Exposition flyer of the Michigan Central railway and will be met by Fair officials. At 11 a. m. in the Court of Honor at the 14th street gate the party will be greeted with a governor's salute of 19 guns and a review of U. S. troops from Camp Whittier. Gov. Lehman yesterday issued a proclamation naming today at New York state day at the Fair and inviting Chicago people to visit the Exposition to participate in the ceremonies and visit the state exhibit in the Hall of States. As one feature of the formal program, opening at 3:30 p. m. in the Court of States, the state exhibit will be presented to the Fair by the governor. President Rufus C. Dawes will accept on behalf of the Fair. A program of music and speeches will then be presented.

Included in the official party will be Adj. Gen. Franklin W. Ward, Joseph Canavan, the governor's personal secretary, members of the New York commission to the Fair, and mayors of a score of New York cities. Gov. Horner will be host to the distinguished guests at 11:30 a. m. at the Illinois Host house. For two days State Senator Cosmo A. Cilano of Rochester has been in Chicago completing the arrangements.

Southwest Side to Parade.

Included in the neighborhood program today will be organizations from the following sections of the city: Marquette Park, West Lawn, Gage Park, Archer Heights, Lawn Manor, Clearing and adjacent communities. The opening event of the day will be a parade from the Court of Honor to the Court of States, participated in by several hundred marchers, three bands, and several drill teams. The parade will be led by the St. Rita school band. In the Court of States from 10 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. a program of dances, singing, orchestral music and pageantry will be presented. The activities will then be moved to the Floating Theater, where music by the Harper Kitchen band, singing by the Central West Mothers' chorus, solo singing and dancing, and instrumental music will entertain visitors.

From 4 to 9 p. m. the neighborhood program will be given in the court

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The Hinsdale Nursing and Relief society will send 200 children and their mothers from families on the relief rolls at Hinsdale to the Fair this morning. The party will be conducted by Miss Madeline Hauser and Miss Catherine Ray, both of Hinsdale. The expenses of the tour are being paid from voluntary contributions received by the society during the last month.

The baby blossom queen and king of the Garden and Flower show will be selected tomorrow at 5 p. m. in the outdoor gardens of the Horticultural building. The age limit is 5 years. Entries may be made up to the time the contest begins.

Mrs. E. W. Roth of Peoria was presented with a diamond ring when she visited the diamond mine in the General Exhibits building Wednesday. Her admission ticket was one of those marked with a red star, entitling her to the ring.

Memorial services for Viscount Grey of Fallodon who died yesterday in England, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Pantheon de La Guerre.

A group of 212 members of the Chrysler engineering party will arrive in Chicago tonight at 7:30 o'clock over the Michigan Central railway from Detroit to visit the Fair.

Twelve men and 14 women from the Netherlands will arrive tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the 14th street entrance to the Fair. Following a reception in the Administration building, they will be taken on a tour of the grounds. The party was made up by the Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant, a newspaper.

A survey completed yesterday by the traffic department of the Fair shows that only 44.1 per cent of the parking space in close proximity to the Fair is being used daily. There are accommodations for 24,500 automobiles daily in this.

Sheldon Whitehouse, recently appointed United States minister to Colombia, was accorded a military salute of 13 guns on his arrival with his family at the 14th street entrance to the Fair yesterday. He reviewed the troops from Camp Whittier and was greeted by President Rufus C. Dawes of the Exposition. Another distinguished visitor yesterday was J. E. T. O'Connor, federal controller of the currency, who spent the afternoon seeing the Fair.

After all the shouting has died down at the Fair in regard to fan dancers, visitors will now have a chance to see the inventor of the skin displaying dance. Faith Bacon, who originated the dance in 1930 in Earl Carroll's "Vanities," will open a show Saturday night at Hollywood at the Fair. She performed the dance in the "Vanities" and in the "Follies," getting arrested as a result of both shows, and the dance was almost forgotten until revived at this year's Exposition.

Charalambos Simopoulos, Greek minister to the United States, will arrive at the Fair at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to make an informal visit prior to Greek day ceremonies on Sunday. He will be greeted by a salute of 13 guns and honored at a reception by Fair officials.

Louis Bianco, a waiter in the Italian restaurant in the Italian pavilion, won the waiters' race yesterday at the Fair. He carried a tray loaded with an opened bottle of beer two glasses filled with beer, and two hard rolls on a plate, from the Firestone building to the Hall of Science, in competition with some 200 other waiters from various cafes and restaurants on the grounds. He received a silver cup and $25 cash.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Chicago as a permanent exposition town, with special fairs and shows annually, received the indorsement of Mayor Kelly and various leaders of agricultural organizations yesterday.

While the idea seems generally acceptable and a logical sequence of the success of a Century of Progress, its development depends upon the direct returns that exhibitors may expect to receive from their investment. There remains the necessity of a concrete plan and organization to present it to a business field that seems ready for the venture. And Chicago wants no mean plans, as the elder Burnham said.

Favors Extension of Fair.

Mayor Kelly said he favored the extension of the Fair for another year, at least its major features, and if it proved successful next year it could be made permanent, as in Toronto and Leipzig. Operation might be arranged in such a manner that the city and the south park board would derive a revenue from it, the mayor suggested, although he is opposed to the board managing any permanent exhibits or amusements. He said it would require legislation for the board to make new lake front leases or renew those which expire in November.

Edward A. O'Neil, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, responding to the suggestion of a permanent exposition as a new center of agriculture said:

"The idea of the extension of the 1933 World's Fair into a permanent annual exposition, as editorially suggested by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, would receive the indorsement of midwestern organized agriculture."

Particularly this idea would be favorable if such an exposition gave full recognition to America's greatest industry—agriculture. Chicago is the recognized capital of American agriculture and it would be a fine thing if a permanent exhibit for the inspiration and instruction of American agriculture could be housed here.

Use Some of Fair Buildings.

M. S. Winder, executive secretary of the bureau, said:

"Recognizing Chicago as the agricultural center of America, I would consider the establishment of a permanent museum of agricultural progress in Chicago most desirable. Some of the buildings at the World's Fair might well be retained for this purpose."

Dr. H. E. Van Norman, director of the dairy industries exhibits at a Century of Progress and executive of the National Dairy show, said that the 1,800 members of the dairy industry who invested in the building and exhibits at a Century of Progress are well pleased with the investment and might be willing, with proper plans and cooperation, to underwrite a bigger show.

"There are great possibilities in this idea," he said, "I believe that it could be developed so that manufacturers and producers in many lines would have their energies centered on getting to Chicago and getting the business here every year. I think the contest and prize idea would be the greatest stimulus, and that crowds could be drawn here just as they have come for THE TRIBUNE'S annual music festival."

Spend NRA Holidays at Fair, Employers to Ask 200,000

The employers of more than 200,000 persons yesterday pledged themselves to cooperate in the movement to have their jobs one extra day each week under the NRA program attend the World's Fair. About 200 employers made the pledges.

The pledges were received by the Chicago Association of Commerce, which is sponsoring the campaign. About 1,000 pledge blanks have been sent out to Chicago manufacturers, merchants and other employers.

Some of the concerns whose acceptance of the plan has been received are: The Borden company, Harding Restaurant and Hotel company, Hydrex corporation, Cuneo press, American La France and Foamite Industries, Inc.; Goldblatt Brothers, Inc.; B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc.; Peabody Coal company, Schutte-Johnson Canning corporation, Steele-Weddel company, William Wrigley Jr. company, Auditorium hotel, Coyne Electrical school, Elsendrath Glove company, Vacuum Oil company, and the Illinois Brick company.

Kelly Makes Appeal.

Mayor Kelly issued a statement urging Chicagoans to give their wholehearted support in the campaign.

"Pledges enlisting industrial and commercial concerns in the movement have been placed in the hands of employers of more than 200,000 Chicagoans," the mayor said. "I sincerely urge that all employers join in the campaign immediately and awaken their employees to their opportunities and duties."

Assistant Postmaster C. P. Scheel announced the receipt of 931 additional acceptances by Chicago concerns of the NRA trade code. These concerns employ 5,911 persons. The grand total is now 43,629 concerns, employing 854,071 persons, whose names have been posted on the honor roll at the United States courthouse.

Warn of Sticker Racketeers.

A warning to consumers and employers not to buy NRA stickers from any one no matter what representation is made was issued by the Chicago recovery council. A number of complaints have been received that persons representing themselves as government agents have been calling on business concerns, especially on the southwest side, and after obtaining the signature of the proprietor on a spurious pledge card have induced them to buy a Blue Eagle sticker for $1.

There are no government employees working in the consumers' drive, it was stated, and no funds are being collected by the collectors. Investigators are on the trail of the persons drawn here just as they have come for THE TRIBUNE'S annual music festival.

Great Dairy Exhibit.

"Chicago has lost the national dairy show because there is no adequate plant for the housing of the cattle. Such a plant could be found. There is also the possibility of a great machinery exhibit. Also an exhibit in home economics. Dairy products would probably come to the conclusion that there would be benefits in such an exposition, year after year, that would warrant the initial investment."

G. L. Noble, secretary of the National 4-H club, which is also based on the community contest idea, said that his directors probably would favor a summer congress of farm boys and girls in Chicago if it did not interfere with the International Live Stock show in which they now participate.

The International Live Stock show gives prizes—blue ribbons. These are valuable to the farmers. The prize product idea has been eliminated from the exhibits of a Century of Progress, but its revival for an annual exposition may be considered.

Read How Clever Women Lost 10 to 40 Lbs. of Fat

Lost Double Chin Lost Big Hips Lost Bulging Abdomen Gained a Shapely Figure Gained Physical Charm Gained Glorious Health

The letters we print below are from Wise Women—so cleverly wise that when a "store" tried to sell them a substitute for Kruschen on which they made bigger profits the answer was:

NO! Nothing But Kruschen for Mine I Know That TAKES OFF FAT

How would you like to lose 20 pounds of fat in a few weeks—fat you don't want and don't need—fat that robs you of a charming figure and becomes a heavy burden as you grow older.

And while losing your unsightly fat how would you like to gain in health—in energy—in physical attractiveness—in other words get that glorious Kruschen feeling that changes indolence and tiredness to spirited activity—always ready for work or play—cheerful and happy all day long and restful sleep the whole night thru.

If you want to lose fat as the women who wrote the letters below did—ask for Kruschen Salts and refuse anything else that may be offered—you can't lose fat with cheap imitations of Kruschen—you can lose fat with Kruschen as millions of people know.

A jar of Kruschen Salts costs but a small sum at any drugstore in the world—it lasts 4 weeks—take one-half teaspoonful in hot water every morning and watch fat leave you. To hasten results avoid fattening foods, taking another half teaspoonful at bed time.

Kruschen can't be duplicated—it is a blend of various salts that acts on stomach, liver, gall bladder, kidneys and bowels, and the little daily dose keeps all these organs functioning naturally.

TAKES OFF 25 POUNDS

"I've been taking Kruschen the last 3 months and have lost 25 pounds. I eat whatever comes along. The results I'm getting are marvelous." Mrs. George Foster, Ithaca, N. Y.

REDUCES AFTER MANY FAILURES

Mrs. M. Davis of San Francisco, writes on April 21: "I'm taking Kruschen to reduce and have lost 6 lbs. in 10 days. I've tried many reducing salts, pills, etc., but never any results until I took Kruschen. I weigh 340 so you see I have some job ahead." On June 13, Mrs. Davis again writes: "Have been taking Kruschen 2 months now and have lost 30 lbs. Am going to keep on taking them until I'm down to normal."

REDUCES FAT AFTER OPERATION

"I had an operation and gained 20 lbs. more than I ever weighed. Someone told me about Kruschen. After 2 bottles of this wonderful Salts I lost 14 lbs. and ate anything I wanted. Besides giving you plenty of pep which all fat people would love to own, it makes your health much better." Mrs. M. Slope, Washington, D. C.

NURSE LOSES WEIGHT

"Kruschen surely does keep me fit and on my toes. Have taken it as a reducing remedy the last 5 or 6 weeks and have reduced 20 lbs. I'm glad if my experience will help others." Mrs. Dora Wallenstein (Nurse), Philadelphia, Pa.

16½ POUNDS OF FAT GONE

"I've lost 16½ lbs. and have taken about one-third of my second bottle of Kruschen. I'm feeling fine." Mrs. J. E. Burnworth, Fort Wayne, Ind.

RELIVING UPON KRUSCHEN

"I'm using Kruschen to reduce. I used it two years ago and lost 35 lbs. Since then I've had a baby and gained most of it back—so I'm relying upon Kruschen again." Mrs. M. H. Woods, Midland Park, N. J.

"IT'S THE LITTLE DAILY DOSE THAT DOES IT"

FROM 198 TO 175 POUNDS

"Since I've been using Kruschen I've reduced from 198 to 175 lbs. I've been taking them about 7 weeks steady. I feel 100% better and my friends say I look 10 years younger." Mrs. Floyd Still, Ninevah Jct., N. Y.

LOSES 20 POUNDS

"Am at Camp and loafing around and eating too many times a day makes one too stout. I've tried everything else and Kruschen is the only thing I get results from. I've lost 20 lbs. so far and only have 15 lbs. more to lose. Even after I'm down to normal weight I'll continue Kruschen for it makes me feel great." Helen Smith, Haverhill, Mass.

RECTOR'S WIFE ADMITS DOING RHUMBA, TANGO

on Divorce Action.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Dorothy Eckhart Williams, heiress wife of the Rev. E. Reginald Williams, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church here, today gave the second installment of her story of her domestic life, elaborating her charges of drunkenness with charges of cruelty in her suit for divorce.

The defense counsel questioned the wife of the pastor of the fashionable church, the daughter of the late Barney Eckhart, capitalist of Lake Forest, Ill., and Chicago, concerning her private life since she left her husband to go to California to live. That was last winter.

The Rev. and Mrs. Williams have been married 25 years.

Mrs. Williams admitted she had taken dancing lessons in Pasadena and that she specialized in the rhumba, tango, and waltz.

Once her safety was endangered, she testified, when the minister threw the bathroom scales at her, her life was a nightmare, she declared.

Answer to Be Filed.

Mrs. Williams was questioned before Court Commissioner Richard J. Hennessy. She was examined under a Wisconsin statute permitting a defendant after suit is filed to examine the plaintiff as to the basis of the charges to sustain the facts on which he is to build his defense.

An answer to the divorce complaint will be filed by the rector and his attorneys, Leo W. Slensky, Milwaukee, and Nicholas Socrates, Chicago, within ten days. There will be "plenty" in the answer, the attorneys said.

Mrs. Williams wept at one time during the examination, but was composed and collected for the most part during the four hours' grilling. She was dressed in a black black print dress. Her gaze was constantly centered on Attorney Slensky and she rarely looked at her estranged husband.

The dramatic climax of the examination came when Mrs. Williams related the throwing of the bathroom scales—that "night" she said, and she interjected by the rector.

"The incident took place on a Sunday morning, when he was experiencing what Mrs. Williams described as a 'hangover.' He was in a 'rightful mood,' she said, and 'kicked the dog.'"

Tells of Sexion's Call.

"The telephone rang and I told the sexion, who was calling, that I did not think that Mr. Williams would be able to conduct the service after the night he had. I told him to hold the line a minute while I took a look at him in the bedroom."

"After looking at him I told the sexion that he would not even be down for the 11 o'clock service. Suddenly the door was opened with a bang. He threw the bathroom scales at me. I screamed as the heavy scales landed on the pillow next to me. They would have killed me, I guess."

"You know he didn't mean to hit you?" Attorney Slensky asked.

Mrs. Williams shook her head. "He had threatened to kill me several times. He threatened me at least three times."

Quizzed on "Rhumba."

Another high light was that concerning Mrs. Williams' "rhumba" dancing on the west coast on her recent trip there.

She testified that "like most other women at the Huntington hotel in Pasadena," she took lessons in the rhumba, tango, and other modern dances from a local dancing master. "I did it for recreation and amusement," she said.

Attorney Slensky asked, "Did you dance with any gigolos?" Mrs. Williams replied somewhat indignantly, "I did not."

Q.—Did any of your friends dance with gigolos? A.—None of my friends have gigolos.

Q.—Do you know what a gigolo is?

A.—Yes. Two of the women at the Huntington hotel had them.

Q.—Did you have a moving picture, 200 feet in length, made of yourself while doing the rhumba? A.—Yes.

Q.—You said the rhumba when you were supposed to be convalescing?

A.—Yes.

Sends Film to Daughter.

Q.—Did you send the film of yourself doing the rhumba back to your daughter and project the film for her?

A.—Yes. I did it as a joke.

The defense made an apparent attempt to prove that some or all of the incidents of violence which Mrs. Williams has alleged were the figments of nightmares. She denied this.

She admitted, however, that she had had nightmares, but was not subject to them, and that she took sedatives to gain sleep.

A letter from Mrs. Williams to her husband, dated two years ago, was read by Attorney Slensky to strengthen the defense's contention. The letter read in part: "I had a nightmare last night. I screamed loud enough to awaken everybody in the hotel, mother said. I guess I thought the English butler was chasing me."

Mrs. Williams said that the reference to the English butler was meaningless, that she had commented earlier in the letter on the two English butlers employed by a family whom she knew.

"I wrote that part of the letter as a joke," Mrs. Williams declared.

Quizzed on Sleeping Tablets.

Attorney Slensky then questioned her closely on her use of a sedative which Mrs. Williams admitted taking. She said that she took the sleeping tablets because "Mr. Williams kept

SEEKS DIVORCE

VIOLET DUNN.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 7.—(Special.)—Violet Dunn, New York and London actress, today filed a divorce cross-bill against Hamilton MacFadden, movie director here, in which she accuses her husband of a plot to desert her by stranding her in New York while he made movies. MacFadden had sued her, charging cruelty. The couple settled property and temporary alimony differences out of court. It was announced, Miss Dunn today withdrawing her demand for $400 a month.

me awake until the early morning hours. I had to get up early to take charge of the household affairs, and some of the business of the parish while he slept until noon or after."

Q.—What effect did you get from the sleeping tablets? A.—Sleep.

Q.—Did the pills ever give you illusions, toxic effects or sweats? A.—No.

Q.—How long have you used them? A.—Since father died.

Q.—How long would a bottle last you? A.—I haven't any idea.

Q.—A month? A.—More than a month.

Q.—How many tablets are there in a bottle? A.—Fifty.

Q.—Did you take more than one at a time? A.—Once I took two in one night, but I always used just one at a time.

Q.—How would you determine the number you would take? A.—By the way Mr. Williams acted. If he was worse than usual I used them more often. I only needed them when I stayed at home.

Q.—When did you discover that you didn't need them? A.—The day I left home.

Orders Tablets from Coast.

Q.—Then why did you need them out on the Pacific coast? (Mrs. Williams had testified that she sent for some of the tablets while in California, as they could not be sold there.) A.—I needed them some times, because I was worrying over the divorce case.

Attorney Slensky then dug into the circumstances in which Mrs. Williams filed the divorce complaint served on the rector. It was brought out that Mrs. Williams first swore to a milder complaint than the one served on her husband. The former was to have been used if he consented to the divorce, "a quiet divorce" as Mrs. Williams wanted it.

Q.—What did you mean by the statement that you wanted a "quiet divorce, one that would save us all the parish, Mr. Williams, and everybody"? A.—I wanted a quiet divorce. I talked with my attorneys, Mr. Whyte and Mr. Campbell, about it.

Attorney Malcolm K. Whyte, who is representing Mrs. Williams, objected to a question by Slensky on the content of the conversation between Mrs. Williams and her attorneys. He asserted that the question was objectionable on the grounds of "privilege." Court Commissioner Hennessy overruled the objection.

Q.—Did your attorneys report to you that Mr. Williams was unwilling to get a quiet divorce? A.—He ran away.

Wouldn't Have Quiet Divorce.

Q.—Will you please answer the question yes or no. A.—No, then Mr. Williams wouldn't have a quiet divorce.

Q.—Weren't you told he didn't want one? A.—He didn't want one, so he ran away.

Q.—When did you go to Chicago? A.—I ran to Chicago when he threw the bathroom scales at me.

Q.—Where was the divorce complaint signed? A.—In Chicago, on March 19, 1933.

Q.—Did you ever sign a complaint with allegations that were less hideous? (Attorney Whyte's objection to the word "hideous" was sustained.) A.—You have my complaint.

No more dull headaches—no more peopless, irritable days! Feels and looks like a new man.

"You can't imagine how much better I feel, Bill. It's really a miracle. Only a couple of weeks ago I lay awake night after night—worrying lest something really serious was the matter. And yet that dull, aching feeling should have told me what was wrong. I'm so glad I followed your advice. I feel like a million dollars now."

What was wrong with him? And with millions like him—dragging along only half-alive? The answer is simple.

It's ASTHENIA

(Run-down condition, usually caused by Constipation)

That's the insidious thing about Asthenia... it drags you down, slows your mind, robs you of your joys and pleasures, yet you hardly realize you're slipping.

You think that you're not the least bit clogged—you say that you're "regular" as can be—but physicians will tell you that it is only too easy to deceive yourself in this respect and stay doped with poisons. Thus millions of micro-organisms accumulate in the intestinal tract and produce that dull, aching, peopless feeling known as Asthenia.

PUBLIC HOUSING WORK ON LARGE SCALE ORDERED

Roosevelt Projects Call for Spending Millions.

It is stated here, and, like other cities and states in the middle and central west, can not legally issue any more bonds to procure loans for public works.

So the public works administration and President Roosevelt personally, have interested themselves in finding some means whereby loans could be made in these areas, which, at the same time, would have a general beneficial effect on employment throughout the country.

Housing projects were brought under consideration and architects and engineers were assigned to make surveys. It was reported to Secretary Ickes and the President that the proposals were sound in principle; that work would be given to carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, electricians, glaziers, and the like, and also to those working in the lumber industry, brick and glass and shingle mills, and other capital industries supplying the materials going into buildings.

Orders National Program.

Thereupon the President directed the housing program to be pushed nationally. Officials have been sent to New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and at least twenty other cities, contacting with existing authorities on housing projects and those which were ready for an immediate start have been given or promised federal loans.

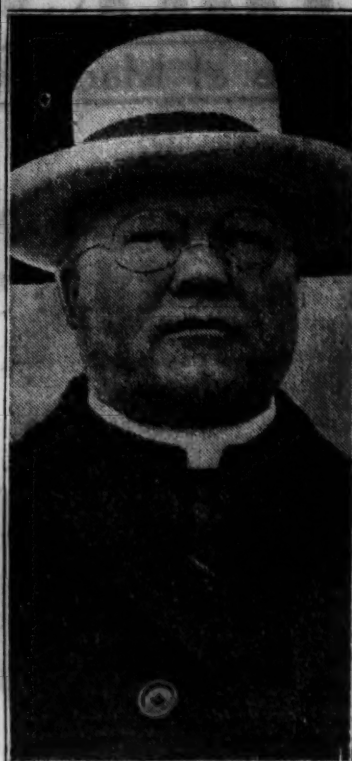

Five housing projects have been approved and the loans made, in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Boston, and Hutchinson, Kas., and eight more are ready for the final approval of the President. In all the thirteen projects represent loans amounting to $40,000,000. At present some eighty-one housing plans are under study by the public works administration under the direction of Robert D. Kohn, a New York architect, and, sped by the recruiting work being done in the field, the projects are now coming in at the rate of six or seven every day.

Chicago Area Surveyed.

At Chicago N. Max Dunning, assistant director of the housing division of the public works administration under Director Kohn, today interviewed Hugh E. Young and other officials of the Chicago Plan commission on the progress they have made in the study of housing construction possibilities in that city. The section under study there is fifty-six square miles in area, bounded by Belmont avenue, 63d street, Kedzie avenue, and Lake Michigan. It is expected that the study will be completed within three weeks, when recommendations will be made to Washington.

Meanwhile Director Kohn has urged Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois to cause the proposed special session of the legislature to adopt a law permitting state municipalities to engage in housing projects. Mr. Kohn said today that, while housing loans to private corporations have been found practical, loans to municipalities are the more inviting because under the national recovery act municipalities may be given federal grants outright of 50 per cent of the cost of the projects.

HOME IS GUARDED

and loaned the 70 per cent remainder. One state, Ohio, has recently passed a new law allowing its counties to engage in housing ventures. Los Angeles and Milwaukee, under their charters, already have such authority. The loans made to private corporations are at 4 per cent interest, with amortization in 30 years. Some loans are up to 60 per cent of the cost of the projects, others as high as 80 per cent, and if the project is unusually attractive to the administration, loans up to 85 per cent will be allowed, it was stated.

Some opposition to the program has come from real estate operators and representatives of real estate bond and mortgage holders. It was admitted, the objections being based on the ground that tenants can not be found for housing facilities now available.

The reply of Director Kohn is that many of the places now used as homes are ancient, tottering, dirty and unsafe. He insisted that the government has no idea of permitting public works' funds to be used in putting up frillish apartment buildings, and that no municipal housing projects which would be in competition with private capital would be allowed.

Twelve Million For Cleveland.

The most extensive housing program thus far presented, included in today's allotment of funds, is at Cleveland, O. Secretary Ickes announced that $12,000,000 would be loaned to a "limited dividend corporation," organized under the auspices of Mayor Ray Miller and a number of prominent Cleveland citizens, including Newton D. Baker.

The civilian sponsors have agreed to provide $2,000,000 in private capital, making a total cost of $14,000,000 for the buildings to be put up. The Cleveland city plan commission made a survey, along the same lines now being pursued in Chicago, whereby three slum areas of 33.7, 61 and 19.5 acres are to be cleared and replaced by two and three story apartments, two story fireproof row flats and row houses. The areas to be cleared are indicated by surveys to be the centers of crime, vice and delinquency, and with highest death rates. Rentals in the projects will be between $3 and $3.50 per room per month. SEIZE SUSPECT AFTER CARDINAL IS THREATENED

Would-Be Extortionist Is Believed Insane.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP)—A man who police said "talked and acted incoherently" was held by Suburban Lower Merion police tonight after he was found wandering aimlessly about the residence of Cardinal Dougherty, who previously received threats demanding $50,000.

The suspect, who told federal investigators he was George Haidich, 45, a native of Poland, but recently living in Pittsburgh, was identified by detectives as the man who has been making "repeated calls" at the archbishop's office and at the cardinal's home to demand money which he believed was owed to him by the cardinal or Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Faces Deportation.

"As predicted by Cardinal Dougherty, it became evident from questioning of the prisoner that he was harmless in his present mood, but mentally affected," said Lieut. Walter Brown, who made the arrest.

Police arranged to turn Haidich over, through R. George Harvey, special agent of the federal bureau of investigation, to government immigration authorities. If, as suspected by Lieut. Brown, the man is not a citizen he will be deported.

Cardinal Dougherty's chauffeur notified police of the man's attempt to get money from the prelate only after he had noticed him about the cardinal's residence in a lonely section just west of the city limits.

STUDY PROCESSING TAX FOR NATIONAL MILK INDUSTRY PLAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—(AP)—A processing tax on milk is likely to be a part of the national relief plan for the industry now being worked out.

The milk program has been studied for weeks by Dr. Clyde L. King, head of the administration's dairy section, and others. The conclusion virtually has been reached that a tax is the only way to assure production control. Suggestions that the farmer be paid from funds raised by the levy to remove old cows and poor producers from his herd, are receiving consideration.

Marketing agreements for milk shed areas will probably fit into the national plan, but administration officials are expected to write into it limits on price spreads and the minimum return which may be given producers.

The butter industry, the evaporated milk industry, and ice cream all have a definite relation to fluid milk, and will be affected directly if the proposed national program is adopted.

nal's residence in a lonely section just west of the city limits.

Police said they have not learned whether the prisoner is responsible for a letter written some days ago to the cardinal demanding money.

Notified of the arrest, the cardinal said he was not worried about the threats, but asked only that the suspect be given "good care and treatment, if needed." Because of this request police bought the prisoner a dinner, rather than question him immediately.

GIRL AND 2 MEN LOST IN AUTOGIRO TRIP TO CHICAGO

Over Lake Today.

evening explained that the autogiro probably was unable to complete the journey of nearly 90 miles across the lake, because of an insufficient gasoline supply. The craft which Otto flew had a gasoline tank of 50 gallon capacity, which allowed him two hours of flying time.

It was said by the pilots that the west wind on Wednesday would have slowed the progress of the craft so that the gasoline would be exhausted before shore was reached. The ordinary cruising speed of the autogiro was 85 miles an hour, and this would have been cut down to less than 55 miles an hour by the wind, they said. Otto had been flying for nearly 40 minutes when he started out over the lake, they said.

When the plane settled into the water, they added, it would soon sink. An autogiro lacks the buoyancy of an ordinary airplane, because it is wingless, being supported in the air by four rotor blades of wood and fabric. It was said at Bendix airport that the autogiro carried no life preservers or life rafts.

"I believe that the three are still alive," said Capt. Yancy last evening. "It is not difficult to tear out the gasoline tank of an autogiro. It is even possible to take out the oil tank. Both of them make excellent rafts." "It's essential that the search be carried on early in the morning before the sun has time to exhaust any one who would still be clinging to the tank. Early in the morning the lake is usually calm." At the home of Miss Gerard last evening her mother and her brother, Bernard, a motorcycle policeman in the village of River Forest, said the girl had telegraphed from South Bend that she would arrive home on Wednesday. They said that she had known Manning for two years. Bernard Gerard and Policeman Anthony Brown of the Oak Park force, who is a plane pilot, will join the airplane searchers today. They will fly in Brown's airplane.

Champion Parachute Jumper.

Manning has performed as a parachute jumper at the national air races for the last six years, and has made parachute drops as a movie stunt man. He originated the delayed drop in which the jumper falls for several thousand feet before opening his parachute. He held the first world's record for delayed jumps by making a drop of 5,000 feet several years ago.

In competition with other jumpers recently he increased his fall to 15,000 feet, which is the present world's record. He made a jump of 14,000 feet each day at the recent international air races at Curtiss-Wright airport.

Otto is employed by the Lee Tire company, which used the autogiro for advertising purposes.

HUNT MISSING BALLOONS

Forest rangers throughout the province of Quebec were instructed yesterday to start a search for the crews of two missing balloons which took off last Saturday from the Curtiss-Wright airport at Glenview in the annual James Gordon Bennett cup race. From the direction of prevailing winds since then, it is considered likely that the two balloons drifted to lonely landings in the Quebec forests.

The search for them, dispatches from Quebec said, was begun at the request of Secretary of State Hull, who instructed Warren D. Robbins, American minister to Canada, to ask the co-operation of Canadian authorities. The missing balloons are the Good-year IX, manned by two Americans, Ward T. Van Orman, three times winner of the Bennett trophy, and Frank A. Trotter, and the Polish Sp-Ad, manned by Capt. Franciszek Hynek and Lieut. Zdzislaw Burzynski. The two Polish officers participated in the cup race last year in Europe.

Little fear has been expressed as yet for the safety of the aeronauts, in view of the fact that their course probably took them to regions from which it would require days for them to communicate with civilization. Unless their big gas bags landed in one of the great lakes, aviation authorities said, their perils would be only those of any party set down in the wilderness.

The Pay-off

WHEN a service man clumps into the kitchen to pound life back into an asthmatic refrigerator he rates the treatment accorded any relief agent—even though the user may be vexed at the breakdown. But when the victim is made to pay for inconvenience—that's the payoff, as the saying goes.

Thousands of people have suffered such experience. Sooner or later those people with erratic refrigerators are faced with the final payoff—that time when it is necessary to trade in the old machine and get a new one to avoid paying out repeatedly for service.

That is the time to take a good look at the service records of various refrigerators. If your experience has been with other machines you will be surprised to find that the patented General Electric Monitor Top runs smoothly along without fans, belts, pulleys, or such parts which invariably call out for attention.

If you have been nettled by the sound of service men in the kitchen and the sight of service bills on the desk you will find General Electric's four-year guarantee on the Monitor Top mechanism a great relief to harried pocketbooks and worried housewives.

Thankful are the thousands of Chicago people who have "squiggled" their names to General Electric Monitor Top order blanks. They have put an end to interrupted refrigeration. They have found new savings which can be banked. They have poked around and convinced themselves that the Monitor Top has no exposed moving parts... no place for dust or dirt to sneak into the working parts of the machine, grind out their life and cause service breakdown.

Be warned by the lot of thousands of owners who bought machines other than General Electric only to find that the expense of service, maintenance and inconvenience was so great that it was cheaper to "trade in" the other refrigerators and buy General Electric.

Avoid that Payoff! Decide on the General Electric Monitor Top in the first place.

URGES TIGHTER RULES FOR TAXI BOAT OPERATION

Asks Better Fire Fighting Equipment.

Stricter regulations governing the equipment and operation of taxi boats such as those plying to and from the World's Fair were urged by a leading boat distributor in an interview yesterday. At the same time inquiry at the United States courthouse disclosed that some of the operators have resisted inspection.

In recent weeks two speed boats have been destroyed by fire, after their passengers jumped into the lake, and another speed boat crashed into a cabin cruiser, with a loss of three lives.

L. B. Kidwell, vice president of Wilson & Richardson, Inc., distributors of Chris Craft boats, pointed out that under existing laws governing pleasure craft almost any one may obtain a pilot's license from the steamship inspectors, there being no fee, no examination and no eligibility requirements. He also declared that inspections should be made more regularly, with particular regard to fire extinguishing equipment.

Urges Better Equipment.
"There have been a large number of boat losses in Chicago this season," said Mr. Kidwell, "many of which have not been reported to the press, and the loss of these could have been prevented had suitable fire prevention steps been taken beforehand."
"I believe it is quite obvious to most of us who see these boats burn and recognize the equipment that they are using that this same firefighting apparatus is in use 20 years ago. My belief is that the only really safe fire fighting equipment is a carbon dioxide extinguisher, or what is commonly known as a smothering type of extinguisher, such as the navy is now using."

Regular U. S. Inspections.
Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki declared that regular inspections of all passenger carrying speed boats have been made by his office, but that the 1910 act of congress under which the inspections are made does not specify a carbon dioxide extinguisher, permitting some kinds now considered obsolete.

Mr. Czarnecki said his authority to inspect the World's Fair taxi boats had been questioned by L. F. Northrup, a representative of Chris Craft Water Transit, Inc., and that in one instance two of his inspectors, Harry Craigs and Charles Baudy, were ordered off the dock by the operator of one of the boats. The boat at the time had 14 persons aboard, with one sitting on the lap of another.

COUZENS CALLED LIAR AT DETROIT BANK HEARING

Father Coughlin Also Target of Attack.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—James O. Murfin, a former director of the First National bank, Detroit, testified today before the special grand jury investigating Detroit's bank holiday crisis that every time Senator James Couzens mentioned his name on the witness stand he lied. The investigation is being conducted by Judge Harry B. Keidan, who is acting as a one man grand jury.

Murfin also expressed his opinion of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, who testified two weeks ago.
"It is too bad Father Coughlin does not devote his life to saving souls instead of assassinating character. And it is too bad that Senator Couzens, with all his gifts and opportunities, could not really show a helpful spirit and try to cooperate with the community. But in the Coughlin case there is no money in saving souls. That may explain his attitude."

He's One of "Orphans."
Murfin said Senator Couzens knew nothing of the First National bank's affairs except hearsay. He said that if any widows and orphans had been sold Detroit Bankers' company stock that "I am one of the orphans, because I accumulated $60 shares in the last twelve months."

Asked how he accounted for the statements made by Senator Couzens which he (Murfin) classified as falsehoods, the witness replied:
"O, the senator was in a slanderous mood. I think he was careless when he talked and he didn't know what he was talking about. He wasn't an officer of the bank. What did he know about it? Nothing but hearsay. We got our information from daily contact."

Letter to R. F. C. Read.
Another highlight in the testimony was the introduction of a letter, dated Feb. 28 and signed by Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the board of the First National. Mills had been accused by Senator Couzens of blocking Henry Ford's new bank plan last

ILLINOIS LIQUOR BOARD OPPOSES SALOON'S RETURN

Commission Meets Today for Organization.

Strong opposition to the return of the open saloon in Illinois when potent liquors are legalized was expressed yesterday by members of the state commission on liquor control, which will hold its first organization meeting today in the county building.

Preliminary work today will include the selection of a chairman. It seemed likely last night that this job would go to Senator Harold G. Ward (Dem., Chicago), who performed outstanding work toward bringing about the repeal of the state prohibition and search and seizure laws during the last general assembly. Senator Ward has been studying the prohibition situation for several years and in recent months has devoted much attention to the proposed control laws under consideration in other states.

Members of Committee.
Others on the commission are John P. Harding, Ralph M. Shaw, and Conrad H. Popenhausen, Chicago; Reed Green, Cairo; Arthur S. Smith, Bloomington; and the following state senators: F. J. Huckin (Dem., Chicago); Roy C. Woods and A. H. Roberts (Rep., Chicago); and H. C. Stuttle (Dem., Litchfield). State representatives on the commission are: David E. Shanahan (Rep.), Matt Franz (Dem.), and William W. Powers (Dem.), all of Chicago; Michael Fahy (Dem., Toluca); and A. B. Lager (Dem., Carlyle).

Interviewed yesterday, several of these men gave emphatic pledges that they would do all in their power to prevent the return of the open saloon. "There are too many saloons now," said former Speaker Shanahan. "I haven't given much thought to spe-

KENTUCKY VOTE ON DRY REPEAL IS SET FOR NOV. 7 ELECTION

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 7.—(P)—The bill providing for Kentucky to vote Nov. 7 on repeal of the 18th amendment was signed today by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. It provides that 19 delegates, chosen by state-wide vote, shall meet in convention here Nov. 27 formally to pass upon the amendment.

The delegates will be chosen by petition, three from Jefferson county, Louisville, and two each from the other eight congressional districts. They will be unpledged in order to avoid any chance of the convention being unconstitutional in that the convention would not be a deliberative body, but repeaters offered no objection to that feature.

The governor also signed a bill to enable state banks and trust companies to avail themselves of federal bank relief legislation.

cific regulations, but I certainly oppose the sale of hard liquors for consumption on the premises. And there must be no liquor dispensing establishments close to churches, hospitals, and schools."

Mr. Harding, who is a restaurant proprietor, is "not interested in seeing liquor sold over the bar," he said. Senator Woods regards the stand of both major political parties, in state and national platforms, against the open saloon "as a mandate." "I shall never be for it," he added.

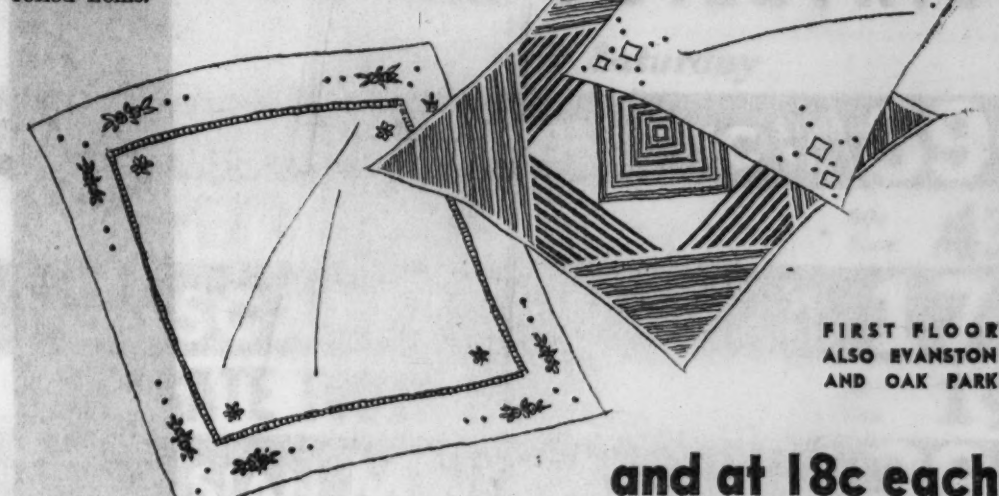

PREPARE FOR HARD LIQUOR.
New York, Sept. 7.—[Special.]—Anxious to clear the stage for the almost certain return of hard liquor, the state alcoholic beverage control board announced today that applications for beer licenses would not be received beyond Sept. 15. The board is just beginning to get caught up with the work attendant with the issuing of 40,392 licenses to sell beer, and its officers are anxious to have the desks clear for the expected deluge of applications for licenses to sell hard liquor.

CANNED OIL

... Sealed at the Refinery

PROOF AGAINST DIRT, ADULTERATION, SUBSTITUTION

NOW you don't have to worry about bootleg oil when you drive up to a filling station. Now you can ask for a quart of oil without the slightest risk of short measure, substitution of cheap inferior oil, adulteration with crankcase drainings.

Today, thanks to the individual refinery-sealed cans of Continental, you can be absolutely sure that the motor oil going into your engine is just as fine and pure as when it left the refinery.

Today, thousands of motorists are turning to canned oil because it is cleaner, quicker, absolutely safe and usually costs no more.

When you buy canned oil, you see the refinery-sealed can opened right before your eyes. The knives in Continental's patented cutting funnel pierce the top of the can. The oil is poured directly into your engine. No chance for dirt to get in. No possibility of substitution or adulteration. No danger of short measure.

Leading refiners now offer their products in refinery-sealed cans. In fairness to yourself and your car, ask for canned oil at your filling station.

A QUICK SUMMARY

Prevents substitution... you see exactly what you're getting. The brand name and also the S. A. E. grade number are on every can.

Prevents adulteration... when oil is poured from a refinery-sealed can directly into your car, you know that it hasn't been diluted.

Prevents short measure... Refinery-sealed cans contain the full measure of oil when they leave the refinery (1 qt. or 5 qts.) and they must deliver that full measure to you because they are tamper-proof and completely drained in your presence.

Cleaner... No chance for any dust, leaves or other foreign matter to contaminate the oil.

Saves time... Cans are opened in an instant by a patented cutting funnel and poured while the attendant takes care of your other needs.

Costs no more... Most filling stations charge no more for the absolute protection of refinery-sealed cans than you have been paying for the same oil served in the old-fashioned way.

11 GERMAN REDS GET DEATH FOR KILLING 2 NAZIS

Courts Order Convicted
Men Beheaded.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Eleven communists were sentenced to death today when they were found guilty of the killing of two Nazi storm troopers.

In Duesseldorf nine men were sentenced to the executioner's ax in connection with the murder of Kurt Hillmer near the village of Eckkrath fourteen months ago. A group of communists ambushed and shot to death Hillmer. A Hitler guard named Gross was seriously wounded. One defendant was sentenced to fifteen years at hard labor and two were acquitted.

In Koenigsberg, East Prussia, two communists forfeited their lives for the murder of a Nazi, Will Hoelger. A third defendant was acquitted.

Push "Bigger Family" Drive.

Meanwhile the Nazi campaign for bigger Nordic families received an impetus today. The municipality of Heide, in Holstein, announced that landlords who "display an unfriendly attitude" toward parents of numerous children will be sent to a concentration camp. Refusal of landlords to lease dwellings to large families will be characterized as "sabotage of the work of national reconstruction."

All officials at Bamberg earning more than $100 a month have been ordered to purchase tickets for the local state owned theater. Only those with large families are exempt.

It was officially announced that introduction of compulsory labor service will be deferred until 1935.

Saar Nazis Protest French.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

SAARBRUCKEN, Saar Territory, Sept. 7.—The Saar's Nazi party today addressed a proclamation to miners of the territory which French circles regard as a deliberate effort to French operations in the mining industry and as further propaganda for the return of the Saar to Germany in the 1935 plebiscite.

The proclamation objects to the recent discharge of Nazi miners by French mine owners and includes an alleged inflammatory paragraph which reads:

"The frontier country is in misery. This is the cry that moves the whole world. There is fire to the west. The battle for the bloody western frontier with all its political servitude and deprivation of rights is drawing near. Nobody feels the whip of servitude more than miners subjected to foreign domination."

The French are indignant. They declare that they had to discharge the Nazis because of their open attempts to proselyte fellow workers by terroristic methods.

Einstein to Leave Belgium.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 7.—Dr. Albert Einstein today announced the absence of a report appearing in a London paper that a secret German Nazi organization had set a price of $4,000 on his head.

"I did not know my head was worth that much," the scientist remarked at his Coeur-sur-Mer retreat.

He and Mrs. Einstein plan to leave Belgium on the yacht of a friend tomorrow. Their destination is unannounced.

World Jews Urge Boycott.

Geneva, Sept. 7.—(UP)—A boycott of German goods until the rights of Jews have been restored in Germany was urged in a resolution adopted today by a committee at the world Jewish conference. The resolution, which will be presented to the plenary session tomorrow, was agreed to only after an all day battle. Italian Jews were supporting the measure while some Swiss opposed an avowed boycott.

Seek Anti-German Front.

(Copyright, 1933, by the New York Times.)

WATSAW, Sept. 7.—Reports are current here concerning a secret Polish-Russian-Rumanian conference at Zaleszyki, a holiday resort in southern Poland near the Rumanian frontier, where Marshal Pilsudski has been staying since last Sunday.

A number of high Polish officials are said to have departed for Zaleszyki, to be joined later by Foreign Minister Josef Beck. Premier Valda, Voivod of Rumania is also expected to attend, while Klement Voroshiloff, soviet commissar for war and navy, and the Rumanian minister to Warsaw, are mentioned as possible soviet representatives.

Official circles here refuse to make a statement, but other sources say the object of the secret conference is to discuss the possibility of the formation of a Polish-Soviet anti-German front, with Rumania likely to join.

A Warsaw socialist newspaper indicating the possibility of the conference today was confiscated.

ALKY CARRYING YOUTH IS SEIZED AT GATE OF FAIR

Forrest Bryan, 19 years old, who came to Chicago from Clendenia, Va., several months ago, was arrested last night as he was entering the 23d street gate of the World's Fair with two 5 gallon cans of alcohol.

Seized by Lieut. Ernest J. Scholdorf of the fair police, Bryan said that he did not know the contents of the cans he carried.

"I was just sent out to the gate to meet a cab and bring in what they handed me," he declared. "I thought it was syrup."

One of the cans was to be delivered he said, to a man in the Manhattan Garden and the other to some one in the Oriental Village. He added that he carried three cans Monday and five cans Tuesday. Lieut. Scholdorf decided to hold his prisoner for federal agents.

CHECKER DRIVERS LOSE FIGHT TO BALK CAB SEIZURE

Many Settle Their Debts to Company.

Checker cab drivers in arrears in their payments to the company yesterday lost their court appeal to restrain the company from seizing their cabs. Under the order of Judge George T. Page of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, the delinquent drivers must surrender their cars, but Michael Sokol, president of the company, said those making the required payments could retain their automobiles.

Originally more than 400 drivers had withheld their payments, but last night Mr. Sokol said that half of these had settled their obligations and that the others were expected to do so soon. The company is not disposed to deprive the drivers of the cars, which they owned, but the title to which they turned over to the company under the terms of their contracts, Mr. Sokol explained.

In proceedings in the federal court Judge John P. Barnes cut the drivers' payments, temporarily, from $56 a month for a single shift cab and $76 for a double shift cab, to $40 and $60 monthly. The rate they eventually must pay for service and the accident fund depends on the outcome of the pending litigation.

The company alleged that certain of the drivers were in a conspiracy to wreck the company by advising all the drivers to refuse to pay their share of the costs of operation of the

86TH DEATH FROM "SLEEPING SICKNESS" AROUSSES SCIENTISTS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Pitching camp in a battered hospital building of world war days, army medical experts today unpacked "pure-bred" mosquitoes, monkeys and assorted rabbits and joined science's efforts to solve the mystery of deadly "sleeping sickness."

Maj. James A. Simmons, explaining the army's work, said he was taking "a long shot" in an effort to hook up a study of encephalitis with other army investigations of equine encephalomyelitis and herpes-encephalitis. Four additional experts of the United States public health service also arrived in St. Louis today to reinforce their fellows.

Five more deaths from encephalitis occurred as the new experts joined a laboratory chain spreading throughout the greater St. Louis area. This brought the death toll here to 86.

The army laboratory has been set up in the old hospital building at Jefferson barracks.

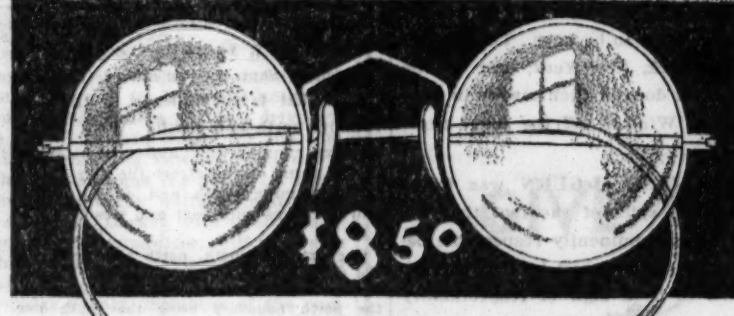

The army scientists came to St. Louis at the invitation of Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming.

Last evening no cabs had been seized under the court order, and at the office of the attorneys for the drivers it was said the drivers were not contemplating a strike.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR CHICAGO

1. Cut taxes in half.
2. Pay the defaulted bonds.
3. Overcome crime.
4. Speed up railroad passenger service.
5. Make Chicago the first city in the world

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

PUBLIC WORKS FOR CHICAGO.

The projects for the development of port facilities in the metropolitan district and improvement of navigation on the Sag and drainage canals are as worthy of consideration for federal aid as most of the projects on which money from the public works administration will be spent. In fact, we think a better case can be made for them than for several of the most costly enterprises already allotted large sums, both from the viewpoint of eventual returns to the nation and from that of immediate employment relief where it is most needed. Hundreds of millions are going to be spent upon projects in the far west and south which would better be saved, but since congress and the administration have adopted a public works program as a measure of relief and recovery we think the middle west should share in whatever benefits, immediate or eventual, may be derived from this policy. We shall certainly bear our share of the burden it will impose and much more than our share.

But while Maj. Putnam and his committee are preparing their port plans we hope the airport project will not be overlooked, and we heartily endorse and welcome Senator Dietrich's declaration that the construction of the lake front airport should be adopted immediately "as part of the vast building program of the national recovery administration." The senator is right in asserting that this airport will be a benefit not only to Chicago but to the whole nation, since Chicago is the air hub of the nation's air transport. The lake front terminal would reduce transfer time from about an hour to five or ten minutes and thus greatly facilitate mail as well as passenger delivery. Travel by air is growing rapidly, and better facilities in Chicago would bring great benefits not only to travelers but in the mail service. A more legitimate and profitable application of the public works fund Administrator Ickes will not find.

CUBA AND THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

The latest turn of events in Cuba seems to have taken the state department completely by surprise. The dispatches from Washington leave hardly any doubt on that score. If this is the case it reflects anything but credit upon the department. It cannot be expected to know in advance precisely what is going to happen in every country on the globe, but it ought to possess at least a hint of what is likely to happen in the countries which are closest to ours and whose domestic disorders are our special concern.

This is said without any intention of blaming the present administration of the department for its deficiencies. Mr. Hull has been in office only a few months and much of his time has been taken up by the economic conference. Too many of our diplomats spend their time nursing their social ambitions. We ought to have men in the state department who know Cuba as well as a suburbanite knows his garden. They ought to know everybody who amounts to anything in industry, labor and politics and know them well enough to receive confidences.

Mr. Hull's predecessor, Wrong Horse Harry, earned his sobriquet when he was badly advised regarding a previous Latin-American uprising. So far as any one knows he took no steps to prevent repetitions of the "unfortunate incident." It is to be hoped that Mr. Hull will not take the discomfiture lying down. A thorough overhauling of his department is indicated.

HENRY FORD AND THE NRA.

Henry Ford preached the gospel of high wages and short hours—and practiced it—when to do so was heresy. The doctrine that high wages make for high purchasing power and therefore a high degree of national prosperity was not discovered by Ford, but he was unquestionably the most conspicuous as well as the most determined of its adherents and he was roundly abused for his policies. More than that, he has been consistent. He has adhered to his creed through prosperity and depression.

Now he has apparently determined not to sign the automobile code, but he has raised wages. The minimum pay at his plants is $4 a day, but it has been increased in many departments to $4.80 and is well above the minimum prescribed for the industry. The Ford employees are working five days of 8 hours a week, whereas the code calls for a maximum work week of 35 hours. Mr. Ford's week is somewhat longer but the wages he pays are materially higher.

Under these circumstances it is difficult to believe that public opinion will condemn him. With all his eccentricities, the fact remains that Mr. Ford has been a benefactor of his country. He pioneered the field of cheap automobile transportation. For years he has provided employment at better than standard wages for tens of thousands of workmen. It will be no easy task to convince the public that an employer with his record, who today is paying higher wages than he need pay to get the Blue Eagle, is not within his rights when he refuses to sign away control of his business.

THE BANKERS FOLLOW THROUGH.

The hope that the American Bankers' association would speak out forcefully and plainly has been realized. The resolutions which have been wired to President Roosevelt are temperate in expression, but the punch has not been pulled. Any one accustomed to the dreary style and the weasel phrasing characteristic of convention resolutions must have been startled by the clearness of argument and the definite note of warning embodied in the bankers' statement.

As was to have been expected, the convention laid particular stress upon the deposit guarantee provisions of the banking act. To the general theoretic objections to the proposal the bankers have added another argument based on purely practical considerations. Any guarantee system is dubious, but a guarantee system which does not provide for most careful scrutiny of the assets and liabilities of the banks to be guaranteed is an invitation to disaster. The present law provides that the system go into operation next January, but there is not time enough for anything like an adequate examination of all the banks by that time. Not every one is competent to be a bank examiner and it is, therefore, a practical impossibility to recruit an adequate staff and complete the work on time. If the system is put into effect before the examinations have been completed the assets of sound and well managed institutions will be jeopardized, perhaps gravely. The depositors in good banks will be sacrificed to save the depositors in weak ones.

In discussing other matters the convention was no less thoughtful. The resolutions recognized that there are serious faults in the banking system and recommended that a commission be set to work at once upon a study of the present banking structure and the drafting of legislation to strengthen it and make it more serviceable to the nation. Meanwhile, "we recommend to the administration and to the congress the advisability of refraining from experimental amendments to our banking legislation and from experimental manipulations of our money system."

It is profoundly to be hoped that this advice will be followed.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The campaign against professional crime in Chicago, we think, deserves attention elsewhere. It is a vigorous and successful expression of local initiative and efficiency which has not had or sought external inspiration or aid. Chicago, confronting an intolerable and, it almost seemed, incurable condition, has used its own resources to deal with them. It has not appealed to Washington. It has not asked for the suspension of constitutional rights. It has acknowledged an emergency and made use of its own lawful agencies and formal procedure to overcome it.

The crime campaign is a local enterprise. That is why it is of national import. At a time when impatient reformers and harassed communities are everywhere turning to the central power for the easy accomplishment of their objects or the solution of their difficulties, it is a demonstration of the importance and efficiency of local self-government. The wisest men in our history have understood and declared that the liberty and progress of our people are dependent upon the vitality and independence of community spirit. Nothing in our national life has been more regrettable than the drift of recent years toward centralization and the growth of the delusion that the government at Washington is a deus ex machina to save us from every ill.

SOLDIER AND SCHOLAR.

The transfer of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker to the position of command in the Philippines will be regretted throughout the Sixth corps area, where the general has made a noteworthy record. Gen. Parker came here with a reputation earned on the field of battle as an intrepid soldier. He had commanded a brigade in the First division with extraordinary skill. Unlike many officers of his rank, he was not content to take his information regarding the situation at the front at second hand. He was literally and not figuratively the leader of his men.

While here Gen. Parker has proved himself adept in other spheres. He has shown himself to be a diplomat, tactful, genial, and dignified. At the same time he has made of his corps area a real organization of national defense. In this connection he has prepared what may well be judged the best instructions in English for the conduct of war. His own experience at the front, and what he learned in this country and at the French school of command, are all distilled in his writing.

In army circles the transfer to the Philippines will be regarded as a promotion. Needless to say, it has been well earned.

Editorial of the Day

OLD MAN RIVER COMES BACK.

[Peoria Transcript.]

Steamboating days are coming back to the river. Perhaps they will not bring back the romance and easy tempo of the old Mississippi days or the gala excursions that Peoria once knew, but they promise to enliven the commercial possibilities of the entire river valley.

For two years Peorians have made annual trips up the Illinois river, by auto and bus, looking at the river from the shore. This year the annual inspection tour of the Illinois waterway, now being planned by Chairman Daniels of the waterway commission of the Association of Commerce, is to be made by water.

All the locks and dams on the waterway have been completed and a large number of the bridges have been remodeled to permit passage of boats from St. Louis to Chicago. The government has just allotted an additional $10,000 for making further improvements on the waterway.

At present several bridges are too low to permit passage of some types of boats. By selecting the proper type of river steamboat the waterway committee plans to make the trip from here to Lockport by water. By next year, waterway sponsors hope, all types of boats suitable for river service will find clearance between St. Louis and Chicago.

The two former tours had cooperation from the associations of commerce in Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peru and many smaller cities along the river. It is hoped that they will participate in the event this year, which will mark the first time that a passenger boat of any considerable size has ever navigated the upper part of the waterway.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT MAKES US FEEL OLD, that item in the papers yesterday. That is, those of us who sat in front of Col. Roosevelt during his presidential campaigns and watched him bang his fists and show his teeth while he roared: "And if I am walking on the street and a man crowds me into the gutter then I will walk on the other side of the street. And if somebody there pushes me off the sidewalk then I will walk in the middle of the street. But if they follow me and try to crowd me out of the middle of the street, I'll fight." Our memory of Teddy is of a youngish looking man all full of pep and ginger and a-rarin' to go all the time. So that's why the item in the papers yesterday made those of us who remember Col. Roosevelt so vividly feel old. The item said his grandson, Cornelius Van Schack Roosevelt, would be in the freshman class at Harvard this fall. We prefer after that not to regard ourselves as of the generation of Col. Roosevelt. We will claim that we are of Franklin Delano's generation, because, while his son, Franklin D. Jr., is also enrolled in the freshman class at Harvard this fall, that's easier than to link up with the generation that has a grandson at Harvard.

OUT OF DREAMS.

When you walk out of a dream, my lad,
Never again look back;
Be it happy or be it sad,
Make it a one-way track.

For dreams are precious, you know, my son;
They come not ever again;
Pregnant with passions gone and done,
Drowned in the deepest fen.

But when you come out of a dream, my boy,
Cherish the memory still
As only the hob of a restless buoy
Or a beacon upon a hill.

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

ANYHOW, there seems to be hope. They've got that Watkins Glen park, New York, deer off the ledge, and if they can do that then maybe in time they can pry Claire Windsor off the front page.

MACHINE GUN JACK MCGURN was found guilty of vagrancy in spite of the fact that his lawyers insisted he was eminently respectable because at the moment of his arrest he was playing golf, which seems to be a sign of respectability these days just as in former years all doubts against a man's character were put at rest by the slogan: "He goes to church on Sunday."

AN OPEN LETTER TO OUR FAIR VISITORS.

Dear Folks: I see you sitting across from me on the elevated, on the street cars, in the buses these days of our Fair. Pardon me if I suggest you seem unduly self-conscious before a Chicagoan's gaze. Why? Don't you know it does one good to see you? First of all, you seem so honestly happy. You are fulfilling that most elemental of human desires, "to go places and see things." Then, too, you are well dressed and have a general air of holiday. Almost diffidently you stop me in the hall and ask the telephone number of the bus station so you can tell it to come past your street door. I do not laugh, because you may come from a town where the busmen may do that very thing; I only tell you what the custom is in our town. Then, again, you bring the whole panorama of one grand united country before our eyes. Your men are rugged, your women wholesome, your sons and your daughters are tall, fair, and marvelously clear-eyed. It is good to see the great American race, blossoming forth in such fine specimens as you are. But still, as I said, you seem self-conscious. Why? Don't you know we envy you? Invariably you ask for a second helping of butter in our restaurants. It is a little thing, but it gives you dead away. Because it speaks of tables where, what with preserves and pickles and everything else, one is hard put to find a vacant place on the tablecloth; where the cream puffs from the pitcher in mighty chunks; where a short step out in the garden brings the filler for blackberry pie; where folks are still "just folks" and not drawn into their shells as most of us are. No, my friends, you shouldn't act self-conscious before us at all. Because, you see, most of us here are from the farms and the little towns ourselves.

TERRY.

THE BEST SOLUTION for the upheavals in Cuba would be to put the turbulent little island under NRA; only five revolutions a week and not over six hours for each revolution. Two full days every week without a revolution would be a great help to Cuba, and it would give the soldiers time to sell tickets to the American tourists for the next battle.

WAIT, WIND!

(For Nancy.)

Roar out your fury on this lesser day,
Break like great waves against this weathered breast!

Too long have I lived so, a being at bay,
By fortune pummeled and by life oppressed,
To be now covered by your fierce ravagings!
Let loose your clamorous cacophony!
Bellow and scream your thunderous trumpets,
But spend your bitterness entire on me!

Let you be gentle as soft-throated Spring,
When you leave here to pass her house tonight;
Go softly as the brush of feathered wing,
Lest from her dreaming the awake in fright.

She is so sweet, so one with loveliness;
Lash me and flail me, Wind, but her caress!

THE GERMAN HIKER.

CABLE from Berlin carries the information that the German government has created a bureau to promote hiking and has put a physician in charge, "as the title of command." Such a bureau would rank about on a level with our federal bureau of education and our United States public health service.

In the German plan for the promotion of public health, building muscles, training in posture, and developing wind and endurance have always been prominent. They appear to proceed upon the theory that a good physique ranks with vaccination, sanitation, and quarantine as measures for the prevention of disease. So important do they hold physical development to be that they have never been willing to leave it wholly to the individual. In the old days they promoted turner societies and group gymnasium activities and they required military training with its setting up exercises, posture requirements, and compulsory living, according to the laws of hygiene.

They still go in for the great gymnasium societies. If we may call them that, and they foster as much military training as conditions will permit. The newer development is an enormous growth of the German hiking system. This is a part of the German youth movement.

Just how the new bureau will go about developing their field remains to be seen. Such a bureau functioning well enough to justify its existence must go far in the field of physical education. There will come about much unwholesome in all seasons of the year except winter. On a long hike those participating live out of doors night as well as day. Probable winter sports will be developed and this will do something to overcome the prevalence of sickness in the cold months. Hikers gain endurance. They learn something of the simple life. Such a bureau will lead to training in personal hygiene and in meeting simple emergencies. Some of the long hikes are intended to be educational in the ways of nature. Some have as a side line education in folk ways, folk songs, and folklores. Some lead from one historic spot to another, thus adding strength through interest in German history. Other nations will watch with interest the workings of this new bureau.

The government machinery is well developed in such fields as the promotion of war on land and sea, judicial procedure, international relations, postal facilities, the promotion of agriculture and commerce. All of them are inimitably weak in machinery for the promotion of health. The Germans offer one new method for promotion of the health of the citizen.

SWOLLEN ANKLES.

Miss H. H. writes: Every summer for the last three or four years I have had trouble with my feet or ankles. It seems every time it gets real warm my feet and ankles swell. What causes this and what could I do to keep them from swelling?

REPLY.

Most people of middle age and beyond have some of that in hot weather. When there is no organic disease it is troublesome, but not very important. Loosen your stockings and ankles swell. What causes this and what could I do to keep them from swelling?

E. S. writes: Do you think a short tongue has anything to do with stuttering?

REPLY.

No.

CITY BOUNDARIES.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—[Friend of the People].—What is the mileage of the city running north and south? What is the mileage running east and west? What is the name of the street that city limits begin running north and ending south and the same with east and west?

The extreme length, north and south, of the city of Chicago is 29 miles. The extreme width, east and west, is 15 1/2 miles. The north boundary being the south line of Calvary cemetery (7330 north) and the south boundary being the east line of the State Fair road or the Illinois-Indiana state line and the west line being Pueblo avenue.

DIVIDING ESTATE.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People].—My father died a year ago. His will stated that his estate, both real and personal, was to be left to his wife to use and to hold during her natural lifetime and upon her death to be divided between my brother and myself equally. She sold the furniture for cash and gave a few of the choice articles to my brother. She is executor and administrator of the estate. 1. Has she any right to sell the personal property and collect the cash for her own use? 2. What should I do about it? 3. All funeral expenses including burial lot, etc., were paid out of the estate. Has she any right to give the balance of lot (space for four people) to my brother? 4. In event she refuses the mortgage of this estate, since I am an interested heir, will my signature be essential? 5. What can she do about it, if I refuse to sign for refinancing the mortgage? C. E. V.

1. Not on the bare facts stated.
2. Tell her that she has no right to do it.
3. No.
4. The old mortgage will continue to be a lien and hence the holder may be satisfied with her signature to an extension agreement.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing, or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

R. L. P. asks: Are there any net wages for hired help, or number of hours he can work, in the government crop reducing scheme?

Answer: No.

F. N. asks: What percentage of our pigs and sows are we allowed to send to market for the government to buy?

Answer: All pigs weighing between 25 and 100 pounds can secure the premium; sows weighing more than 250 pounds and that show plainly they will farrow soon.

N. P. asks: My tenant reports that he was ready to ship some young pigs to market to collect the government premium, but his local shipper informed him it could not be done without the owner's signature. Is that true?

Answer: Yes. Under a new ruling of the department of agriculture the premium for pigs weighing 25 to 100 pounds will be paid only to the original owner, who must make application for shipping not more than 200 such pigs through his regular commission firm or local buyer. The ruling is designed to stop speculators from buying up large quantities to collect the premium, and to regulate the supplies sent to packers.

Mrs. R. S. asks: The tenant on my farm operates on a share rent basis. He wants me to sign a government contract with him to reduce our wheat acreage next year. Couldn't he take some of our worst land out of production this way without my knowing about it?

Answer: The contract must carry both the owner's and tenant's signatures and runs for three years. It specifies that the land taken out of production must be the average of that under cultivation, and the county wheat production control association is expected to enforce this.

Question: I own a small retail furniture store. Have one helper for deliveries and other duties, while I wait on all the trade myself. What bothers me is that many times it is not convenient for me or my wife to come to the store during the day. Before the NRA came into effect I made evening appointments. What can you say about my situation?

Answer: Retail furniture stores will come under the retail code, which probably will be signed by the President before the end of this week. As soon as the details are available they will be announced in this column. Meantime your letter is somewhat confusing. If you and your wife work in the store and you have one helper you really have 2 workers. As the owner of the store, your hours under the NRA are not limited. However, those of your wife and of your helper must conform to the hours prescribed in your retail code. In the meantime, if you wish to fly the Blue Eagle you may put them both on a 45 hour basis, pay a minimum wage of $14, sign the President's reemployment agreement which you can get from the downtown postoffice. Sign also the certificate of compliance, turn it over to the postal officials, who will give you your insignia in return.

Question: When will the hearing of the code for the periodical publishing industry be held?

Answer: On Sept. 14, in the Palm room of the Willard hotel, Washington.

ABOUT THE BLUEHOUSE.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—"Cape Codder" in today's Voice of the People refers to a feud between the schooner Bluehouse of Nova Scotia and the Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, Mass. This feud, he alleges, is over docking rights at the Fair grounds, which the Bluehouse is not using, yet compelling the Thebaud to dock miles from the Fair.

Allow me to point out the serious inaccuracy of this statement. The Bluehouse paid a considerable sum of money for docking privileges at a Century of Progress, and a further large sum for the construction of a dock. After we withdrew from the Fair seeking a more accessible anchorage negotiations were opened with a view to selling our docking rights to the commonwealth of Massachusetts for the use of the Thebaud. These negotiations have been conducted satisfactorily for all concerned. Inasmuch as the Bluehouse is the international champion fishing schooner, and the Thebaud the American champion, there is quite naturally a great deal of sporting rivalry between the two vessels, but certainly nothing of an unpleasant nature.

"Cape Codder" further states, "The Bluehouse carried passengers for hire—technically in violation of the coastwise act." This statement is utterly without foundation. The Bluehouse adheres strictly to the law in all regards, and our passenger carrying activity is under the supervision of the United States customs office.

The truth of this refutation may be determined by any one sufficiently conscientious to investigate the facts rather than voicing an opinion based either on malice or hearsay evidence.

LEWIS LAYTON,
Business Representative, the Schooner Bluehouse.

IN THE FOREST PRESERVE.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—For the last eight years I have been visiting the Cantigny woods, the forest preserve south of La Grange, and now during the last week the road has been plowed and barricaded against the motoring public in order to form a bridge path for horses rented out by a private stable in the vicinity. We have never objected to having horseback riders parade through our gatherings, but to have our particular spot denied us to form a race track for the benefit of private interests is something we are going to protest.

It would be a good idea to build a fence around the forest preserve, have aerial pictures taken, and mail one to each taxpayer so that at least he has something to look at for the money he was compelled to spend.

JAMES CERNESHOUS JR.

CRUELTY.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—I am sorry that a Century of Progress cannot produce some amusement more elevating than the Rodco.

Humans societies in many places have protested against these deplorable spectacles of degraded humans using their superior wits and mechanical contrivances to harass in the name of sport unfortunate creatures who have no possible escape from their tormentors.

THERESA RUSSELL.

TOO MUCH BORROWING.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 3.—It is my belief that the country's troubles come from debts. I think the debts are caused by weak natured people buying things they cannot afford and also by shyster finance companies and banks extending, and in fact, offering, credit to these same weak people. In my boyhood days people were not encouraged to buy things they could not afford. Now they buy everything they can get on a credit. I think the country has had the wrong leadership in this matter. Coolidge, Hoover, and now Roosevelt, have advised people to buy, buy, buy. Maybe that is good advice to give but poor advice to take.

Now it seems the people who want in debt have the upper hand. Their great cry is "Soak the rich!" They have fooled away their all and now propose to take what the conservative people have saved and fritter that away too. The only thing I can see left to do is organize the conservative minded people into a political party and vote only for candidates who are sworn to protect the public treasury and thereby protect the country.

PICTURES.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Why is it that in the picture section of THIS SUNDAY TRIBUNE you continually have pictures of doings in England? In today's issue there are six pictures of happenings in England of no importance. There is also a picture of a model in Paris, two Japanese and one Chinese picture and only nineteen American pictures, six of which are women displaying gowns. Why don't you put these down displaying pictures in the women's section of the paper and give your readers pictures of other things? Cut out printing pictures of England's military maneuvers and give us pictures of our own army. And for gosh sake stop printing pictures of the duke of York or the prince of Wales doing this or that, as there are many people besides myself that don't give a darn what those guys do. This is America and we are Americans; so let's see America first. There are plenty of American pictures to give your readers, so let's have some.

AN AMERICAN.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

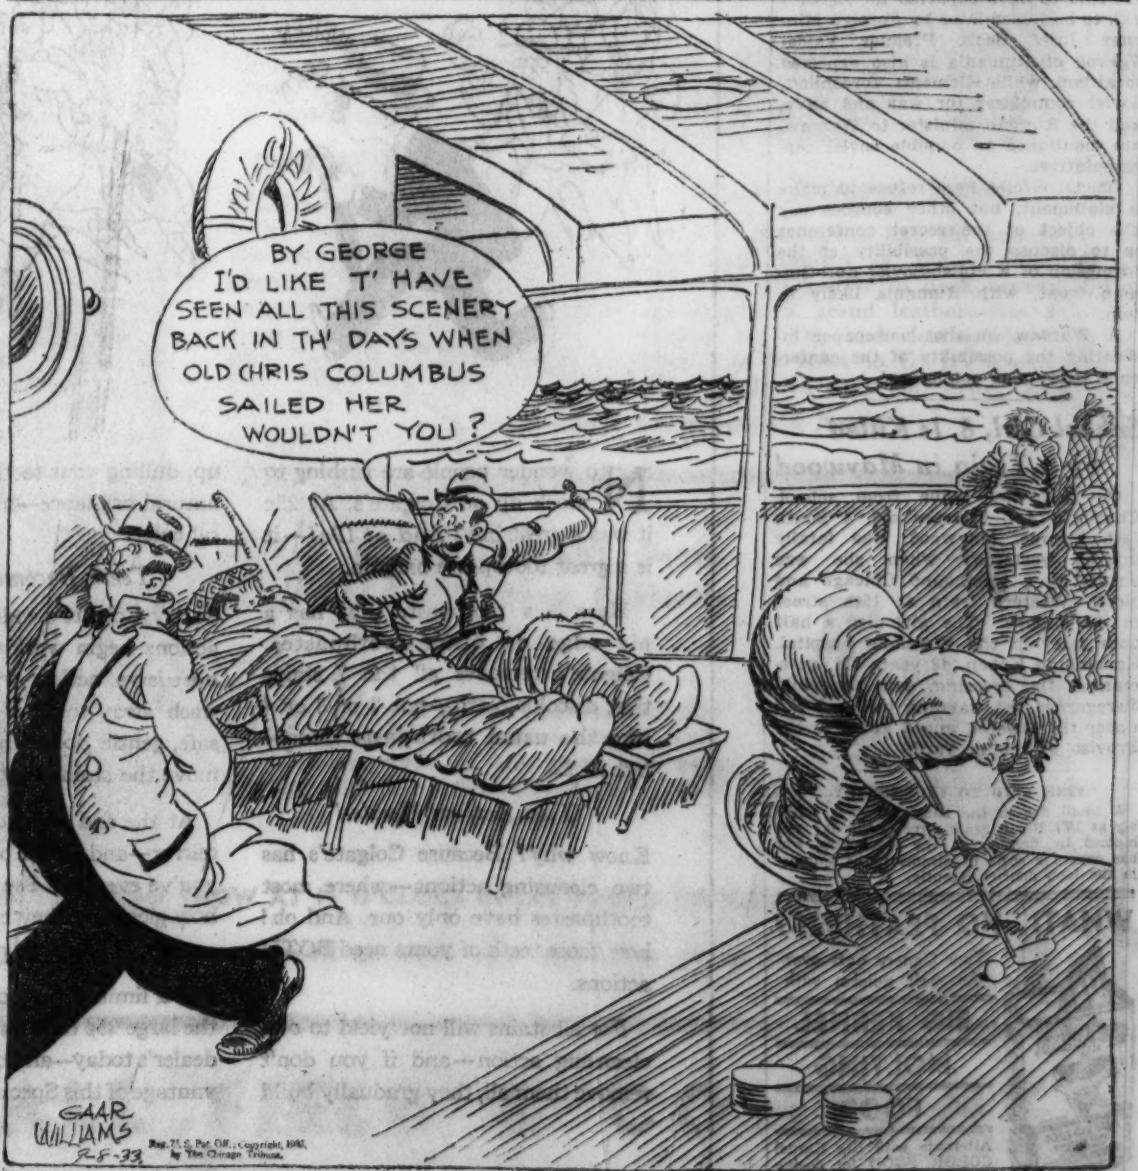

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 25.—Now that the people of the United States are coming to their senses in the matter of liquor control it would be well if they would look into the good sense (or nonsense) of trying to force children to go to school till they are 16 years old, regardless of whether they have any aptitude for education or not.

Trying to force a young person to become educated is like forcing the mule to drink when he has been led to the tank or trying to enforce the Volstead law. It can't be done.

Several of the states will cut down their high school bills substantially and the world will be a better place to live in, in their locality. If they will ditch some of their compulsory education laws and let the young people decide for themselves whether or not they want to go to school after they have finished the eighth grade.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $2,430,978, making a total of $50,439,158 collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act was started on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Sept. 7.....	$1,555	$3,889
Uncollected....	17,843,336	47,969,543
1930.		1931.
Sept. 7.....	194,642	2,350,092
Uncollected....	74,600,520	88,827,253

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $4,111.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday removed County Treasurer McDonough as receiver of 33 income bearing properties when he was informed that substantial payments had been made on the tax bills. The treasurer had been acting as receiver to collect delinquent taxes on the properties under the Kerner-Skarda act. Under the act, Judge Jarecki, at his discretion, may take the properties out of receivership.

When the properties were placed in receivership, they owed a total tax bill of nearly $100,000. The owners produced receipts yesterday to show that in some instances the bills had been paid in full and in other cases 75 per cent of the bill was paid while objections are pending to the remaining 25 per cent.

Tax Collection Wagon.
"I am glad to take these properties out of receivership," Judge Jarecki said, "for the Kerner-Skarda act primarily is intended as a tax collection weapon and not to put the county in the real estate business. The county is saved considerable expense if the owner will manage his property, provided, of course, that he keeps the county's interest first in his mind at all times."

Judge Jarecki stated that in the cases where only 75 per cent of the bills were paid, the properties would still be under his jurisdiction. "These cases will not be dismissed until the taxes are paid in full if the objections are overruled," he said, "and if any attempts are made to evade payment, the receiver will be put in charge again."

Place Two in Receivership.

Judge Jarecki appointed the treasurer as receiver for two other properties. The properties are at 1217 Washington boulevard, on which $3,672 is owed, and at 6923 Sheridan road, on which $4,637 is due. Attorneys for other properties paid a total of $35,000 to avoid receivership.

URGES COUNTIES TO CUT TAXES BY HIRING MANAGERS

The consolidation of county functions under a county manager plan of administration to reduce the cost of government to the taxpayers was urged yesterday by State Auditor Berta E. Baker of North Dakota. In a talk at the convention of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers, and Treasurers at the Congress hotel, she declared further that the city manager plan for the governing of cities has long passed the experimental stage as an economical and efficient form of metropolitan management.

In some states the city manager plan has been in effect for forty years," said Miss Baker. "But counties have retained the same form of government as originally planned with a few exceptions. In North Carolina and Virginia legislation has been passed to permit county boards to employ managers. The plan was adopted to reduce taxes and improve the administration, and the outcome will be watched with interest."

NEW YORK PLANS ADDED TAXES TO NET $40,000,000

New York, Sept. 7.—[Special.]—New taxes expected to add $40,000,000 to New York's income were recommended to Tammany Hall today by Samuel Untermyer, the city's special financial expert.

The new levies are:
Five per cent on gross income of firms or individuals in the brokerage business, expected to bring in $5,000,000.

One and one-half per cent on gross incomes of public utility firms, expected to net $3,000,000.

Five per cent tax on all taxicab rides, to bring in $8,000,000.

Fifty per cent boost in water rates, to net $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

One-fourth of 1 per cent on values of investments of all savings banks and life insurance companies, expected to yield about $6,000,000.

A stock transfer tax of four cents a share.

A salary slash, affecting all city employees from the mayor down, to save $25,000,000 was contemplated, but was dropped by the board estimate as a move too drastic on the eve of election.

WAR ON DICTATOR RULE IS VOTED BY BRITISH LABOR

Unions Are Warned Against Fascism.

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 7.—(P.)—The British trades union congress declared today in a resolution it would "take all possible steps, including the formation of plans for industrial action," in the face of any attempt to establish a dictatorship.

John Bromley, member of the general council, who submitted the motion, urged united action against forces which seek to usurp democracy. He called upon the union to strike "if necessary."

Walter M. Citrine, secretary of the congress, declared dictatorship did not come from the clouds. He said it existed in certain parts of Europe prior to the war. It was new in Germany, he said, but had already come in various forms in Italy, Finland, Yugoslavia, and Russia.

Points to German "Phenomenon."

"It is an extraordinary phenomenon that 63 per cent of the working class of Germany should have voted to put their backs under the heel of a dictatorship," Citrine continued. "I can tell you from first hand knowledge that adequate means of resistance were prepared. The International Federation of Trades Unions and the International Transport Federation made plans for a general strike but they had to consider 6,500,000 unemployed in Germany. It might have brought about a civil war."

The secretary declared Fascism was busy in Britain. In London there were hundreds of Fascist black shirts supporting unofficial strikers, speaking in front of workshops and hoping to come in conflict with trade union officials.

Opposed to Labor Dictatorship.

Citrine was equally opposed to a dictatorship by labor.

"Every time you give way to any form of dictatorship, you wreck your own movement," he said. "Earlier, Leon Jouhaux, president of the federation, had told the congress that President Roosevelt's recovery experiment in America 'is a good one.' 'I would ask my American comrades how much stronger their position would have been had they been affiliated with the International federation,' he said."

Jouhaux added that he hoped it would be possible in the near future to welcome American comrades into the ranks of the International federation.

GLIDER FLYER TO TRY TO REGAIN LOOPING RECORD

Charles F. Abel, the federal reserve bank clerk who formerly held the world's record for looping a motorless glider, will try to recapture the record at 8 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Sky Harbor airport. To do this he will have to loop his biplane glider more than 43 times consecutively.

Abel will be towed to a height of 9,000 feet by Capt. Vincent Taylor, former instructor in the British royal flying corps, who now is an instructor at the airport. At that height Abel will cast off from the towing plane and begin his series of loops, continuing until he is within a few hundred feet of the ground. Abel built his glider at his home at 245 South Broadway street, Palatine.

MOVE TO ASSESS HOSPITALS IS BALKED BY LAW

to Tax Properties.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs is making efforts to place on the assessment rolls profit earning hospitals which for years have escaped taxes on the ground they were charitable institutions not operating for profit. It was learned yesterday. But his efforts to tax the hospitals have been virtually fruitless so far, the assessor admitted. Not one of the large private institutions has yet been added to the tax rolls.

A number of minor hospital properties were assessed for the first time last year, and these, he said, were ruled untaxable by the board of appeals. The cases involving the right to assess these properties are now before the state tax commission.

The chief obstacle, Mr. Jacobs said, is the law. He pointed out that several state Supreme court rulings have held that hospitals not incorporated for profit, which hold outright the titles to their properties, and which can show a room or a ward or a few beds used exclusively for charity patients, are not taxable.

"Law Prevents Assessment."

"I believe that most of the hospitals make money and should be assessed in proportion to their charges," said Mr. Jacobs. "The same as we have assessed the loop Temple building to the extent of 80 per cent of its value, since only 20 per cent of its value is used for religious purposes. But the law stops us."

"We are, however, conducting a rigid investigation of the exemption claims of the 200 hospitals and sanitariums within the county. Those which we find not operating strictly within the provisions of the law will be assessed."

The assessor said that the law as it is construed does not permit his office to examine the balance sheets of hospitals. That financial data would show what profits were being made annually and to what use they were being put, he said. If the balance sheets could be considered, he declared, a substantial number of the medical institutions would be found assessable.

sent as used for charity hospitalization or religious purposes were cited by Walter R. Kuenhle, supervisor in charge of the assessor's exemption department. One building supposedly being utilized as a hospital was found to be a restaurant. Another was found to be a filling station. A third was discovered to be a public golf course near Glenview, which was owned by a church official.

When Assessor Jacobs took office more than a year ago he found 14,000 parcels of real estate, with a total value of $20,000,000, on the exemption books. Since then 20 per cent or 3,000 of the parcels which have been investigated and put back on the assessment rolls. Of a total of 150 new claims for exemption from the 1932 real estate assessment, 75 per cent have been denied, the assessor said.

CHICAGOANS HEAR WELFARE PLEA OF PRESIDENT TODAY

In Washington this morning President Roosevelt is scheduled to address a conference of social welfare leaders from many cities on the part that social welfare must play in the national recovery program and the return to normal community life. The gathering will last two days and is preliminary to the 1933 Mobilization for Human Needs, of which Newton D. Baker is chairman.

The period from Oct. 15 to Nov. 12 has been set aside by the mobilization committee for its intensive activities. During that time a national drive will be waged to raise funds for the community chests of various cities, out of which must come the funds for maintenance of many welfare institutions.

Albert D. Lasker, vice chairman of the general committee, will represent Chicago at the conference, together with Edward L. Ryerson Jr. and R. Douglas Stuart, members of the committee. Other Chicagoans who will be present include Samuel A. Goldsmith, Capt. Lorin F. Corliss, Miss Elizabeth H. Webster, and Mitchell McKewen, representing the Emergency Welfare fund.

THIS MAKE WORK JOB WILL LAST QUITE A WHILE

2 Pull Hay Fever Weeds
as 43 Look On.

Some forty-five laborers, furnished by the "make work" division of the emergency relief commission to pull up ragweed and other pollen bearing weeds as a means of preventing hay fever, moved into the area about 1034 street and Calumet avenue yesterday. Leisurely, they set about their work.

Several of them sat down and began to extirpate weeds within their reach as they sat. Others found the sitting more comfortable on the two shady sides of a small real estate office set in the prairie nearby.

Heavy Demand for Water.

The morning was hot, and a constant stream of the men moved to and from a filling station a block away, where drinking water was available. The foreman in charge of the gang stood there for some time, talking to the attendant. Most of the men, when they worked, did so with bare hands. Some used pocket knives. One had a scythe.

During two hours while a reporter watched the group, two elderly men were the only steady workers. The others regarded the reporter suspiciously when he approached, but did not speed their efforts.

Dr. M. H. Bleckham, head of the "make work" division of the relief organization, when told of the behavior of the men, hazarded that the loafers in the group were probably from shelters for single men. These men get 25 cents a day and their keep, which they would get anyway, for the work. Men whose families are receiving relief are paid the regular rate of city laborers, corresponding reductions being made from their relief ration orders.

"Our experience has been that the men from the family relief division are fairly good workers," said Dr. Bleckham. "The men from the shelters usually aren't. Many of this class are mentally deficient. They couldn't work at any kind of a job."

Half from Each Class.

The men were working under the supervision of the city street department and more directly under the orders of Edwin Watson, superintendent of the 8th ward. Of 90 men whom he had working on the ragweed campaign yesterday about half were from shelters and the rest on family relief rolls, he said. Ford Paulsen, a street department laborer, was acting foreman of the gang.

"I visited the gang several times today," Watson said last night, "and they were all working when I went around. I'll admit they were not working as hard as our street department laborers do. We don't have the same control over them, and, anyway, they're not a very high type of laborers. They are unfamiliar with that kind of work, and many of them are too old to work hard."

Dr. Bleckham said that physicians and clubwomen who sponsored the ragweed campaign have told him that it has resulted in an appreciable decrease in hay fever cases.

5,000 See Artillery Fire on Targets Towed by Planes

More than 5,000 visitors gathered at Fort Sheridan last night to witness a demonstration of the efficiency of ground batteries against airplanes. The demonstration was given by the 202d coast artillery regiment of the Illinois National Guard. Six huge searchlights were used to illuminate the targets, towed by planes, and several thousand rounds of ammunition were fired. The guns used have a maximum range of eight miles and are effective against planes flying as high as five miles.

Mr W E Donahue Advertising Mgr
The Chicago Tribune
Chicago Illinois

Dear Mr Donahue

You know that our entire store did a remarkable business in August, but I know you will be particularly interested in what happened in our Womens' Rothmoor Coat Department.

Its been one of our big volume departments for years, and in spite of this it increased its August sales 331% over August 1932...and more than $40,000.00 over the biggest August on record.

Because of this large volume we were able to employ 50 more people than were in the department a year ago.

Developments under the N.R.A. and the fact that we passed on to our customers the savings from our advanced buying have of course been a stimulus.

However, it is significant that we used 6365 lines of Tribune space on Rothmoor Coats during August - or 2 1/2 times the amount placed in the only other paper used.

We have told you many times that it paid us to concentrate in the Tribune. This is another proof.

Yours sincerely,

MAURICE L ROTHSCHILD

331% increase over August, 1932 . . . more than $40,000.00 over their biggest August...again Maurice L Rothschild hang up a new record!

And again the Chicago Tribune carried the bulk of the advertising . . . 2 1/2 times the August advertising of Rothmoor Coats which appeared in the only other Chicago newspaper used.

Begun years ago as a part of a policy of expansion, the Rothmoor Coat department is now one of the big volume producers in the store. It is known as one of the biggest women's coats departments on State Street. Even in times like these... despite the stimulus of the NRA and the World's Fair . . . its sales have caught the attention of merchandisers from coast to coast.

The record set in August is only a highlight of a remarkable success which has been emphasized by the past few years... years in which Maurice L Rothschild twice expanded facilities and floor space to handle increasing business. And a success in which use of advertising in the Tribune has been an important factor.

During the first eight months of this year Maurice L Rothschild concentrated 59% of their entire advertising in the Tribune.

Let a Tribune representative give you the complete history of Maurice L Rothschild's concentration year after year in the Tribune. A letter, phone call, or wire will bring him.

WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

WORLD JOINS TO PAY TRIBUTE TO VISCOUNT GREY

Memorial Services to Be Held Tomorrow.

BY EUGENE SPECK.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Sept. 7.—Tributes to Viscount Grey of Fallodon, who died early today at the age of 71, poured in today from all parts of Great Britain as well as many other countries. King George, David Lloyd George, British war time premier, and Prime Minister MacDonald headed an ever swelling list of notables who paid their respects to the man who was British foreign secretary for eleven years.

Viscount Grey, as foreign secretary, shaped to a great degree England's entry into the world war and exerted a profound influence on many phases of British policy. He died after a serious illness of about a week at his home at Fallodon on the Northumbrian coast. High blood pressure is believed to have been a contributing factor to his death. The exact nature of his illness was not announced.

Body to Be Cremated.
Memorial services will be held Saturday at Embleton parish church and in Newcastle cathedral. The body also will be cremated on that day. A third memorial ceremony will be held Monday in Westminster Abbey.

Lloyd George paid one of the most moving tributes to the viscount.
"I have nothing but grief at the death of one with whom I worked for so many years in complete personal harmony," he said.

For years Lloyd George and Viscount Grey had been bitter political enemies within the Liberal party, and it was regarded as an unfortunate coincidence that Lloyd George's "War Memoirs" were released by his publishers today. In the memoirs is a biting attack on Viscount Grey's handling of the situation when the world was wondering whether Germany's invasion of Belgium would plunge all nations into war.

Lloyd George distressed.
In the book Lloyd George asserts that Grey—then Sir Edward Grey—would have had the whole of Britain behind him had he used a strong arm with Kaiser Wilhelm and warned the one time monarch that the violation of Belgian neutrality meant war.

"But," the book says, "his hand trembled in a palsy of apprehension. Had he warned Germany in time of the point at which Britain would declare war the issue would have been different."

Lloyd George appeared distressed because of the publication of the book today.

"The chapter in question was written a long time ago," he said. "In fact it was written last year when Viscount Grey was in perfect health. It has actually already appeared in the Daily Telegraph in serial form and after the first appearance the viscount appeared at a number of public functions."

Churchill Defends Grey.
The late viscount had one vigorous defender this morning—Winston Churchill, former cabinet member and prominent Conservative. He asserted that Grey would not have had cabinet or national support had he attacked the Kaiser before the Belgian invasion.

"On the contrary," he said, "the cabinet would have broken to pieces and the Germans would have been exultant spectators of a British confusion and paralysis during the awful fateful days which preceded the world war."

Hated by Germans.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The death of Viscount Grey of Fallodon, the most hated Englishman here during the early years of the world war, evoked a flood of bitter memories in Germany of events leading up to the conflict. Official circles as well as newspapers proclaim his "historic guilt" because he failed to reveal the Anglo-French military understanding or clearly define England's policy.

The foreign office claims that Viscount Grey's whole career reveals his desire to isolate Germany. The Boerschen Zeitung declares the aim of the allies was to crush the Prussian spirit. It adds that "Grey has taken with him to the grave the knowledge that the Prussian spirit is immortal."

TICKET AGENCY
OWNER INDICTED ON FRAUD CHARGE
Robert J. Mautner, 38 years old, who formerly operated a ticket agency at 139 North Clark street, yesterday was reported named in a true bill charging larceny by bailee. He was accused of having made no accounting for 8,000 tickets he was given to sell for 60 cents each for the annual hill climb of the Windy City Motor-cycle club. His bond was set at $2,000.

Mautner had also been sought in a similar case involving $3,100 worth of tickets for the American air races. A warrant will be asked against him on the charge, air race officials said.

John Zukla, 17 years old, 6224 South Ada street, was in the Englewood hospital with both wrists broken yesterday because he did not want to disturb his parents' sleep. Returning home after midnight and finding the doors locked, John tried to climb to an upper window. A wooden railing on the roof of the porch gave way and he fell to the ground.

EMIL WENTZLOFF.
(Tribune Photo.)

Emil J. Wentzloff, who was secretary to a former Republican mayor, yesterday was reported named in a true bill charging him with the embezzlement of $9,029 of the assets of the closed Boulevard State Savings bank, of which he was formerly receiver.

Shortly before this Wentzloff was held to the grand jury in $10,000 bond on the same charge by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Felony court. It was the 13th time the case had been called in court. Five of the continuances were needed by the state before R. J. Murphy, whose audit disclosed the shortage, could be brought to testify.

Other continuances were obtained by Wentzloff, who once was assistant secretary of the Cook county Republican committee, because it was understood he was endeavoring to make restitution. None of the money has been paid thus far, however, to the bonding company which covered the loss for depositors. It was said yesterday.

Wentzloff is 56 years old and lives at 3817 North Lawndale avenue. His removal as receiver at the bank had been demanded some time before the audit was made in October, 1932.

CAPTIVE PAIR IDENTIFIED IN 35 ROBBERIES

James Webb, 22 years old, 3541 South Park way, and Edward Prendergast, 21 years old, 6542 South Persimmon street, arrested on Tuesday evening as bandits, were identified within forty-eight hours as participants in thirty-five robberies. It was announced last evening by Capt. Daniel Lynch of the Woodlawn police.

Webb was arrested at 63d street and University avenue by the squad of Sgt. John Kourke, after Max Leon, owner of a laundry agency at 6311 University avenue, had pointed Webb out to the squad as one of two men who robbed him of $24 and two bundles of laundry on Saturday night. He identified a shirt Webb was wearing as having been in one of the bundles.

Prendergast's address was found on Webb's person and he was arrested.

BAIL OF $400,000 FIXED FOR FIVE HELD AS ROBBERS

Five young prisoners were held to the grand jury in bonds totaling $400,000 on charges of robbery before Judge John Gutknecht in the Boys' court yesterday. Those held and the bonds fixed for each are Lyle Vitell, 18 years old, $140,000; Fred Kemper, 23 years old, $120,000; Chester Rice, 25 years old, $80,000; Sacco Baxile, 18 years old, $40,000; Roy Chrysler, 18 years old, $20,000. Vitell was arrested on Saturday in an attempted robbery of a hamburger stand and the others were seized after they had been implicated by his confession.

Fourth Passenger in Auto Crash Dies of Injuries

The death yesterday of the fourth passenger of an automobile which crashed into a safety island while speeding eighty miles an hour Wednesday increased the Cook county motor toll to 707. The victim was Mrs. Nora Malone, 35 years old, 2937 Maypole avenue, colored. Two men and another woman, all Negroes, died shortly after the accident at 15th street and Western avenue.

Mrs. Ada Warner, 47 years old, of South Bend was killed last night when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband, Wilbur, collided with a beer truck on the Michigan avenue viaduct over the New York Central tracks in Hammond.

ALL-BRAN STOPPED HIS SLEEPLESSNESS AND TIRED FEELING

Cereal Relieved His Constipation

Read this enthusiastic letter from Mr. Haraden:

"My system had been run down for quite some time. About three weeks ago, I started taking ALL-BRAN for breakfast. I had been unable to sleep nights, but now all I have to do is turn in, and before I know it, I am fast asleep."

"I used to have a tired feeling all day, but now that ALL-BRAN is in my home to stay, there will be no more tired feelings with me"—Mr. Carl Haraden, Main Street, Hamilton, Massachusetts.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking pills and drugs—often harmful! Just take two tablespoons daily for most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

NORMAN BLOOD 'FAMILY TREES' CALLED A FAKE

"No Word of Truth in Them," Scientist Claims.

BY EUGENE SPECK.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Sept. 7.—Norman blood exists only in the handwork of "pedigree fakers," said Lord Raglan, head of the anthropological section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, today at the society's meeting at Leicester. Family trees purporting to reach back to the Norman conquest are the product of just another racket, Lord Raglan said.

The British scientist might have been talking to American suckers who come over every year to pay fistfuls of dollars in order to get their ancestry traced back to some duke or earl. Instead he was talking "turkey" to some of the oldest families in England.

Called "Pedigree Fakers."
He was the most outspoken speaker before the 2,000 delegates gathered to discuss the thirteen branches of science.

"In this country of the many families whose 'traditions' take them back to the time of the Norman conquest, it can be said without fear of contradiction that not one of these is a genuine tradition," the peer said. "All of them are the work of pedigree fakers who have flourished from very early times and there is not a word of truth in them."

"No English family can trace its descent to the Saxons and though there are a few families with a genuine Norman descent, this in no case goes as far back as the eleventh century."

Mentions Some Names.
Lord Raglan mentioned some names. Sir Hereward Wake, 13th baronet, comes from a family claiming descent from the famous Saxon hero, Hereward the Wake, famous for his resistance to William the Conqueror.

Lord Raglan declared that Sir Hereward was never called the Wake, that he was probably a mythological character anyhow, and that no member of the Wake family was christened Hereward until 1851.

He asserted that Robin Hood even should be left to the story books. Lord Raglan added that the location of Sherwood forest is uncertain, that a number of counties claim Robin Hood, and that the legends describe him as everything from an earl to a churl.

"I disclaim the tradition, fostered by Shakespeare," he continued, "that Henry V. spent his youth in London in drinking and debauchery, and changed his character completely on accession to the throne. The facts are that at the age of 13 Henry became his father's representative in Wales, spent seven years in continuous warfare, was warden of the Cinque ports and Calais, became regent at the age of 22, and continued as such for the next three years."

Urges Return to Gold.
LEICESTER, England, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Eventual and cautious return to an international gold standard was advocated today by Prof. J. H. Jones of Leeds, England, noted British economist, in his presidential address to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

"I venture to express the belief," he said, "that restoration of the gold standard is necessary to the progress of the world."

He added, however, that he would not suggest that the return be made immediately, and expressed the fear, on the contrary, that political considerations would force a restoration before what he described as the essential preliminaries had been properly considered.

Lists Preliminary Conditions.
Among those preliminary conditions he listed:

The establishing of a precise rate of exchange that would enable international trade to be distributed in the manner determined by real costs of production.

Abandonment of the system of trade restrictions to overcome occasional deficits on current accounts.

Formation of an international exchange stabilization fund under control of an appropriate body.

Prof. Jones singled out the United States as "the outstanding but by no means the only example" of the change that "has taken place in the financial relationships of nations without a corresponding change in their industrial structures."

FRIENDS RAISING FUNDS TO BURY YACHT VICTIM

Miss Jane Ann Collins, 30 years old, 627 1/2 Arlington place, a friend of Miss Clara Moore, who lost her life when she plunged into the lake from the deck of a yacht Tuesday evening, announced yesterday that she would bury the body when it is recovered.

Miss Collins said that a group of friends of the girl were collecting funds for the burial. One man has contributed $100, Miss Collins said.

On Wednesday Miss Moore's mother, Mrs. Lottie Lattak, 1592 Alameda avenue, Lakewood, O., telegraphed to police here saying that she would be unable to pay for the burial of her daughter. For a time it was thought that the body would be buried in Potter's field when it is recovered.

Coast guardsmen watched the lake yesterday, but the girl's body was not found. An inquest into her death will be held after the body is recovered. Five business men and three other girls who were in the yacht party with Miss Moore were questioned on Wednesday by Coroner Walsh.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men
Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, bad disposition, headaches. You have become an unlikable, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candles or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decayed poison in your bowels. It is Carter's Little Liver Pills which starts a free flow of your bile juice in Carter's. Only fine mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. See it true signs. Refuse "something just as good" for it may cripple, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. ©1933, C.M. Co.

Draperies and walls stay clean!

when you heat
your home with Gas

To prove that every home can afford to heat with Gas...we will install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

GAS HEAT is clean heat. You never see or breathe dust, dirt or grime. It ends hours and days of endless house cleaning, dirt-streaked walls and curtains, grime-covered furniture and furnishings. No more are rugs and carpets tracked up with basement dirt.

When you have gas heat in your home you save days and nights of back-breaking coal shoveling... dirty hours of hauling ashes... the nuisance of chopping kindling... the anxiety of waiting for heat to come up... trying vainly to keep even heat. A single match is your kindling pile. You fire your furnace from your easy chair.

Every home can afford it
Certainly you want the luxury of automatic heat. Everyone does. And now every home can afford it. For the cost of gas heat is now one-half of what it was in the season 1930-31. But we don't ask you to purchase any equipment before you try it.

Let us install gas heat in your home. We will put the equipment in your furnace or boiler and pay every cent of the cost. During the nine heating months of the first year you pay $3.00 a month rental for the equipment in the average home. This charge will be included with your monthly gas bill. You pay nothing during the three summer months.

If at any time during the first year you decide that you don't want gas heat, you order it out. And out it comes. We replace your former equipment in good, workmanlike order. If you decide you want to keep gas heat, the rental you pay applies on the purchase price.

More Volumes About Chicago Go on Market

Picture Book Included in New Consignment.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Today, just this and that. . . And still they come, books about Chicago. . . A very attractive little one, "Chicago's First Hundred Years" by Ruth McKenna [old Fort Dearborn] a swift survey of the century; "Chicago and a Century of Progress" [Educational Advertising Institute] a simply well picture book "Chicago Then and Now" compiled and written by Ernest Butt [Finch & McCullough] which contains a reprint of the first city directory published in Chicago in 1844 followed by a short description of then and now.

A Century of Progress "Authorized Guide to Chicago" [Consolidated Book Publishers] is by John Drury [author of "Dining in Chicago" and "Chicago in Seven Days"] and contains all sorts of news to this some one, he was brought to Chicago at the age of five and found her first gray hair here. "Chicago and its Jews," by Philip P. Bregstone [privately printed], is an exhaustive record of one race in Chicago.

Minna M. Schmidt, who has supplied the costumes for more social and historic events in Chicago than any other living human, has written "400 Outstanding Women of the World and Costumeology of Their Time" [privately printed], in which are to be found short biographies of great women as well as an assortment of interesting information about the author's specialty. And a new and delightful edition of George Ade's "Thirty Fables in Slang," which inaugurates a new series "Arrow Editions," in New York. You remember it was by doing a daily two column feature about the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893 that George Ade got in practice for his golden "Fables in Slang."

"Lost" Volume of Jane Austen.

With the publication of "Volume the First" [Oxford University Press] Jane Austen appears on the lists of contemporary novelists. This "First Volume," known to have existed, but apparently lost forever, turned up recently in the Bodleian library at Oxford, and is now printed. It contains several short "novels," two dramatic pieces and some fragments. They are all clearly the high spirited jokes of a child writing for the amusement of brothers and sisters in a family rich in private jokes.

Even to outsiders, and even now, a hundred and fifty years after they were put to paper by a childish pen, the jokes are still funny. The volume has been edited by R. W. Chapman, who superintended the edition of the novels, and published, last year, "The Letters of Jane Austen."

Two Books about Holland.

Two grand little books about Holland have recently been published. "An Indiscreet Itinerary," by Hendrik Willem Van Loon [Harcourt Brace] is written on amore by "one who was actually born there," and is illustrated with the skilled and satirical pen that has made "Van Loon's Geography" the best seller of its day. "Letters from Holland" [Putnam] is also illustrated by its author, the famous "R. U. R." dramatist, Karl Kraus. They are such delightful books that it is a tragedy to read them for one who two years ago was wholly enchanted by the peace and fertility and beauty of the Dutch canal-side. . . a tragedy because they make her yearn for another look at the joys they extol, and she seems to be permanently chained to her galleys!

Tell Story of Banking Crisis.

"Twenty-Eight Days," by C. C. Coit and N. S. Keith [Greenberg] is a "history of the banking crisis" gone, but anything but forgotten. And "The World's Greatest 99 Days," sponsored and pasted by Ben Duffy and Harford Powell [Harpers] adds seventy-one to the famous twenty-eight and pictorially gives in newspaper headlines, cartoons, statistics, and short items from the press a history of stirring (all) 99 days.

Cards Announce New Dogs.

Florence Ryerson and Collin Clements, whose new cards "Millions" [Asplund-Century], have further amused their friends recently that they have.

Struthers Burt

has written four fine novels—
"The Interpreter's House" (1924); "The Delectable Mountains" (1927); "Festival" (1931) and now

Entertaining the Islanders

which we believe is his best and most entertaining novel. It is the story of a young man and woman caught in the complexities and muddled morals of modern civilization, and their successful fight through to a saner scheme of living. It has action, passion, considerable caustic wit and pungent conversation, and carries the conviction that, after all, the world is not yet entirely lost. The backgrounds are New York, a Carolina plantation, and an exotic island in the West Indies. Read it for enjoyment.

Roslyn Paine Is Presented at Garden Tea

Miss Roslyn Paine was the first of the three dozen debutantes of the season to make her bow to society. She was presented at a tea yesterday afternoon. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Garritt Smith, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Kenneth McLennan, received the guests in the garden of their Greenwood boulevard home in Evanston.

Miss Paine, a slim brunette, was wearing a lovely gown of white bengalia satin, made with a long, full skirt, long, draped sleeves, and mink epaulets that gave the fashionable wide shoulder effect. The flowers she chose to carry on this important occasion were yellow and brown orchids. Mrs. McLennan, Mrs. Smith and 15 year old Gertrude Smith, who assisted in the quiet, unobtrusive way in which sub-deb sisters are permitted to assist at their sisters' debuts, all wore gowns of blue crepe in pansy shades. The other assistants were Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Dorothy Davis, Miss Cornelia Fabian, Miss Mary Louise Morris, Miss Virginia Thatcher, Miss Nancy Harris and Miss Allene Withers.

After the tea Mr. and Mrs. Smith gave a cocktail party for their daughter and her assistants and their beaux, and then they all went to the Glenview club for dinner and dancing. Miss Davis was hostess to the younger group and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Upham entertained Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Miss Paine was graduated from Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville, N. Y., last June.

with postcard announcements, the first a formal one of the betrothal of their prize winning dachshund, Freda von Schattenhof, and—a proper period elapsing—the second with a drawing of Freda mounting the front steps proudly followed by her offspring, three boys and a girl. The girl's name is Vicki. Which reminds us that Arthur Meeker Jr. took his dachshund, Vicki Baum, to Switzerland with him and when they landed in Havre the French steward parted with her with vociferous affection and he conducted affectionately to Mr. Meeker that he had noticed that although she ate everything with admirable impartiality she had a special fondness for carrots. The novel which Mr. Meeker finished just before he sailed will be published next spring by G. P. Putnam's.

A. E. Housman Writes of Poetry.

A. E. Housman, whose "A Shropshire Lad" is the al of lyric poetry of our day, has, at the age of 75, written an illuminating and penetrating short study of "The Name and Nature of Poetry" [Macmillan]. He says that he has often been asked to define poetry and that he has always "replied that I could no more define poetry than a terrier can define a rat but I thought we both recognized the object by the symptoms which it provokes in us."

What the Market Will Do.

A gentleman who consistently remains anonymous tells the world "What the Market Will Do" [Ballou], and his authority is based on the fact that during the last few years when the rest of the world has lost its shirt and tie he has been quietly, consistently, and soundly piling up money in the market. He tells how he did it. . . writes down his system. . . and has already, from that writing, assembled another little pile to play with.

Offer Novels of Saki.

"The Novels and Plays of Saki" [H. H. Munro] [Viking], complete in one volume, a companion piece to "The Short Stories of Saki," also complete in one volume, offers us some of the most delicious prose that England has ever produced. One either takes Saki or one refuses him, but all his favorite people TAKE him. He's a wit, minor, but mellifluous in his merry-making.

TWO Hollywood producers who have been lying to each other for years met in a Hollywood cafe, Variety reports.

"What are you doing?" one asked the other.

"I'm going with Columbia next week," answered the other.

"Look," said the first producer. "You tell me you're going to Columbia to make me think you're going to Universal when all the time you know you're going to Columbia. Why lie to me?"

THEN there was the girl who wrote Concert Pianist Moissaye Boguslawski:

Ferry, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, will speak at the anniversary banquet at the Lawson Y. M. C. A. Other speakers include Bishop Benjamin F. P. Woman Waits 45 Years for Night Bloom of Cereus

Morris, Ill., Sept. 7.—[Special.]—After waiting 45 years for a night blooming cereus to blossom, the patience of Mrs. J. W. Johnson of this city, was rewarded when two blooms of the plant burst forth. The blossoms are lily white and twelve inches in diameter. The outside petals resemble a lily and those on the inside are more like the petals of a peony. In the center of the flower the bloom resembles a star and beneath it is formed a cradle. Fable has followed the cereus connecting it with the Star of Bethlehem and the birth of Christ. Hundreds of people witnessed the blooming which will not occur again for a half century.

Society Goes to Rodeo, Aids Child Charity

The rodeo added several hundred dollars to the treasury of one of the city's important charities last night when the Red, White, and Blue club received a share of the proceeds from the evening performance in Soldiers' field.

Society was well represented in the boxes on the west side of the field. The wrestling and riding of the Mexican steers and the performance of the dashing Gen. Jesus Jaime Quiñones brought enthusiastic applause. Occupying a box next to that of James Minotto, the state senator from Arizona who is responsible for bringing the rodeo to Chicago, was Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock, the president of the board of the Red, White, and Blue club, which looks out for the well being of more than 500 boys and girls at its clubhouse on Wade street, in the heart of the Polish district. Wearing a smartly tailored black costume, she and Mr. Gowenlock had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hotchkins, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hersey, Miss Mary Olmstead, Mr. and Mrs. Potter d'Orsay Palmer, and Mrs. Palmer's sister, Miss Mathilde Martinez de Hoz.

Preceding the rodeo the Gowenlocks and their guests enjoyed a buffet supper in one of the private dining rooms of the Century club, with several of the other officers and directors of the club who were entertaining box parties at Soldiers' field.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter—Mrs. Carpenter was one of those who worked the hardest for the success of the benefit—had with them Mr. and Mrs. Niles Trammel and Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederick Reeve.

During the intermissions more than one pair of eyes was focused on Dr. Edward W. White, dressed in a cowboy suit and a ten gallon hat befitting the occasion. In the absence of Mrs. White, who will be back in town from Lake Geneva next week, Dr. White was host to a group that included Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jennings, Mrs. Charles Jackson, and John Wentworth. This party enjoyed dinner at the Chicago Athletic association.

Dr. and Mrs. O. E. Van Alvea hurried through their dinner at the Tavern to be in time for the opening of the show. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler were their guests, and so were Miss Anne Small, James Meloy, James Peirce, and O'Neill Ryan.

The Frank Whartons, who moved here last year from New York, had places in the box of the Thorne Donnellys. Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly were Lawrence Callahan, William Grunow, and Joshua S. Carson.

Mrs. Charles K. Corsant, who has been confined to her home because of illness, was unable to come to town last night for the performance, so she gave her box to a party of friends. Then there were the Frank Berings and the Ernest Byfields, with the actress, Margalo Gilmore, for their guest; the Temple McFaydens, and the William Scudders, Mrs. Corsant, Mrs. McFayden, and Mrs. Scudder are all hard working members of the Red, White, and Blue club.

Landscape Found on Back of Picture Wins Honor

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 7.—[AP]—Robert L. Rigby, young commercial artist, submitted three pictures for the annual exhibition of American art at the Art museum. None of the pictures was selected, but an uncompleted landscape he had started on the back of one of the canvases, as an economy measure, was discovered and awarded honorable mention, the highest honor the judges could give a picture.

Service Club Will Tell Debs of Revue Plan

First Party Will Be Held at Winnetka.

BY JUDITH CASS.

CONVERSATION next Wednesday afternoon in the drawing room of Mrs. John Dern's Winnetka home will center around fall fashions and the individual talents of some thirty or forty debutantes of this autumn and winter season. On this occasion Mrs. Dern, the charming president of the Service club, is introducing the young women who are making their bows to society during the next several weeks to the club directors.

The first fall gathering of the Service club board is always a signal for a parade of the newest and most interesting autumn fashions. It is also the beginning of weeks of conversation about the casting, staging, and producing of the annual Service club revue, which pours several thousand dollars each year into charity's coffers. This season's show, "Dancing Debs," will be presented Oct. 13 and 14.

Mrs. Dern has invited her guests for 3 o'clock at her Winnetka house, which is at 840 Locust road. After the debutantes have greeted one another—most of them are already acquainted or have been friends for many years—and been introduced to the board members, Mrs. Dern will tell them of the Service club plans for the next fortnight and serve them a cup of tea.

Tryouts for the revue are to be held at 10 o'clock the morning of Sept. 21 at the Lake Shore Athletic club. After luncheon the debutantes—and a few of their older sisters with particularly brilliant talents—chosen for the cast will return to the club for the first rehearsal. There is to be a general meeting at 10:30 next Friday morning at the home of Miss Alice Bremner.

The board members who will attend Mrs. Dern's party Wednesday include Mrs. Herbert Kennedy, Mrs. Edgar L. Marston, Mrs. Leslie B. Olmstead, Miss Bremner, Miss Mary MacCaughy, Mrs. Horton Conrad, Miss Letitia Channon, Mrs. Scott J. Dow Jr., Miss Ethel Dixon, Miss Edna Doering, Mrs. Robert Hoffman Jr., Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Frank S. Sims, Mrs. John I. Shaw, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, and Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley.

HERE'S ONE BOOK ON WHAT TO EAT THAT MAY HELP

Bewildered Meal Getter Will Value It.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

(This is the first of a series of reviews of new books of interest to home makers.)

What Shall I Eat?

By Edith M. Barber.

The Macmillan company, New York City.

Price: $1.75.

Indeed, what? That bothersome question has bedeviled us so persistently lately, especially under the barrage of food, fads and fantasies, new vitamins and split calories that have avalanche down on us, that Miss Barber's new book arrives like a nice cool breeze on a torrid brow.

If you are a scientist with a profound knowledge of the inside workings of mankind you will find nothing new or startling in "What Shall I Eat?" But if you are a bewildered meal getter, or even a gentleman or lady bachelor with a flair for eating three times a day and still keeping that smiling disposition and youthful figure, then this small book may be just the guide for which you've been looking.

Need of Common Sense.

Briefly, Miss Barber gives us the reasons for accompanying our dining with a dash of common sense and a bit of knowledge, with a word about just how such maneuvers promote for charm, beautiful complexion, slim forms and general high stepping health and bubbling good nature. She reviews with us what we know, but are always forgetting... just which foods and how much of them should be rung into each day's dining for the normal person, for the over heavy, for the embarrassingly thin. She plans out for us well balanced menus—a whole week of them—and converts that bug-a-boo of budgeting the food allowance from something formidable to a very simple formula.

Even the hustlers at the one arm lunch spots and sandwich counters gallop into the picture in the chapter headed "That Business Man's Lunch," and run off with a few valuable tips about intelligent eating at hurried noontime hours.

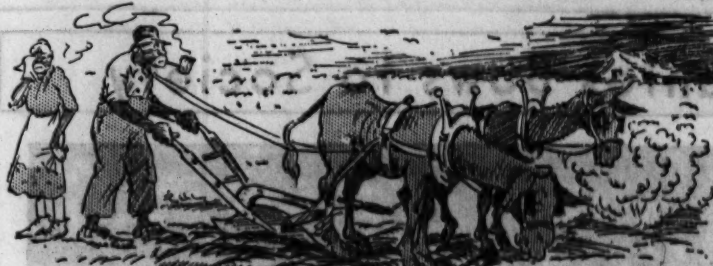

Debunks Some Fads.

From here Miss Barber sets herself to debunking some of the diet fads ailing themselves these days to many people's sorrow. She advances to food prejudices and offers understanding, usable suggestions to mothers with "problem children" (or even problem husbands). She takes us traveling and we learn something about keeping well on train trips, ocean voyages and when dining from foreign cuisines. Colds, indigestion, constipation and other nuisances bring up more food questions. Finally the problem of eating well but cheaply completes the lineup. Each subject is handled in the same practical, common sense manner against a background of Miss Barber's excellent scientific knowledge and a foreground of her delightfully rollicking humor.

In conclusion we feel like saying with the ecstatic professor in the illustration—"O, Charles! Lovely!" They consist of authentic height-weight tables; a list of 100 calorie portions of all common foods, and a chart of these familiar foods, each one marked to indicate its importance as a source of minerals and vitamins, of muscle building and energy boosting materials.

THIS TELLS WHY CAVIAR IS SUCH A COSTLY DISH

Russia Is Principal Source of Supply.

BY DOROTHY MASTERS.

Considering the fact that a single sturgeon is credited with spawning around 3,000,000 eggs in one season, it seems strange that caviar, the prepared roe of sturgeon, costs 35 cents for a small jar.

But on the other hand, all the spawned eggs are lost to the caviar-eating populace. Only those eggs still in the fish can be used. Most of the caviar eaten in this country comes from Russia.

Two Kinds of Caviar.

There are two kinds of caviar, black and red. The former, which is obtained from sturgeon, is available in three forms, although only one is familiar to the average household. This is the canned caviar, with the eggs a trifle larger than a pinhead. Fresh caviar, retailing at around $16 per pound, is far beyond the ordinary purse. It must be shipped with cracked ice, and is difficult to market. A third form, confined principally to Russia, is pressed caviar, a paste.

A cheaper caviar, and to many people the more desirable, is the red variety, which comes from salmon.

Source of Best Caviars.

The best grades of caviar come from the sturgeon, a fish of the sturgeon family. It attains a length of 12 feet or so, and has been known to live as long as 90 years. After the eggs are removed, the fish is usually dried, smoked or salted for commercial purposes.

There are some sturgeon in America, but the caviar obtained from these is so limited in quantity that it cannot begin to supply the demand.

Household Hints

Large buttons and button holes are recommended for the small child's garments, for they help him learn to dress himself.

Treat fruit stains while they are fresh to insure removal. Boiling water poured over the fresh stain makes it disappear.

FOREIGN FOOD PART OF CHARM OF WORLD'S FAIR

Italians Add Songs to Native Dishes.

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

At A Century of Progress with its innumerable gay American and foreign cafes daily pleasing thousands of World's Fair visitors, housewives will find ample inspiration for the tempting of faded family palates with unique and little known dishes of far lands or piquant variations of our more stable foods.

The colorful and atmospheric Italian restaurant, adjoining the Italian pavilion, for example, will stir into being that recurrent longing for spaghetti, spumoni, the ice cream of ice creams, or minestrone soup. Under the deft management of W. J. Curroto, Italian songsters nightly fill the air with music. Accordions sigh of their longing for sunny shores of Italy.

Gondolas glide past. Midnight blue waters of the lagoon lap softly almost at one's very feet in the outdoor garden of the restaurant and gondolas gliding by, splinter the reflection of the moon into a thousand shivering waves of light. Back in the large kitchen [this night can't go on forever], fifteen cooks and four potato peelers scurry under the command of Corrado Arrigoni, king of this domain.

It is here that 100 chickens, 500 pounds of steak, 100 pounds of veal, 400 pounds of lamb, 50 pounds of beef tenderloin, and 500 pounds of spaghetti are served from daily. It is an art this spaghetti cooking, explains Corrado Arrigoni with a wave of Latin hands.

Secrets of Spaghetti.

"The water must be salted and boiling before putting in the spaghetti," stated Arrigoni. "And also it is not right to break up into small pieces the spaghetti. The flavor is not so good then. Cook from twelve to fifteen minutes or until tender. The sauce, she is the most important of all, and now, my friend, I give to you this, my own recipe for the mushroom sauce."

Following is Arrigoni's recipe for a quart of mushroom sauce: Chop up one good sized onion, add a tablespoon each of butter and olive oil and brown. Soak two ounces of dried mushrooms in hot water and add to browned onion. Grind one-quarter pound of pork and beef equally divided and place into pan with onion and brown. Pour into this two cans of Italian tomato paste diluted with one quart of water. Add chopped celery, parsley, and season to taste. Boil slowly for one hour for proper thickness, adding water if needed until acid taste of tomato disappears.

One Good Turn Deserves Another, Says Squirrel

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP)—There's money in feeding peanuts to squirrels—at least for Mrs. Andrew O'Neill of Chestnut Hill. Mrs. O'Neill says one of the little animals appeared at her home and was given some peanuts. Several days later it reappeared and dropped a dollar bill—slightly chewed and wet, but still a dollar—at the door.

To end soap waste, just sprinkle Climalene in wherever water of any kind is used in cleaning. It's the mineral salts in hard water that waste soap because the soap cannot dissolve. Climalene softens water. This makes your soap two times more effective. I WOULDN'T ALLOW A BUTTER SURPLUS

SAYS George Rector

CHEESE SOUP

1 small onion 1½ cups stock
2 tablespoons butter 1 quart milk
2 tablespoons flour Salt and Pepper
½ cup grated American cheese

Chop the onion, and cook it in the butter for a few minutes. Then stir in the flour, and add the stock gradually. Cook until the mixture is thickened. Add the milk, and heat almost to the boiling point. Then add the cheese, and stir until it is melted. Season with salt and pepper.

BUTTER FROSTING

2 tablespoons soft butter ¼ teas. vanilla
½ cups confectioners' sugar Milk

Mix the butter and sugar together thoroughly. Add the vanilla. Add just enough milk to make the frosting soft enough to spread.

ANCHOVY BUTTER

4 tablespoons butter Few drops onion juice
1 teas. anchovy paste Few drops lemon juice
Few grains cayenne pepper

Cream the butter until it is soft and add the other ingredients. To be spread on hot broiled fish or used in cassapés

"The other day Mr. A & Mr. P called me in and said: 'George—there is a tremendous surplus of fine butter. Dairy Farmers need help to sell good butter—what do you think about it?' I said: 'I wouldn't allow a butter surplus!' In the first place I think it would be a shame to have the cows laboring in vain and in the second place butter is vitally important in cooking. I can't begin to name all the delicious dishes that are prepared with butter. They asked me if I could explain that to the public so I drew up this ad (by the way what do you think of it?) On the left hand side you'll notice a few famous recipes, that in themselves if used by every American housewife would eliminate the butter surplus. Try them today."

WEEK-END BUYERS TO GET BUTTER AT LOW PRICES

U. S. Seeks Sale of Large Stocks to Aid Farmers.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Week-end food shoppers are being urged to stock up on freshly churned creamery butter. Chicago's storekeepers, acting on an appeal by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, are co-operating in an effort to dispose of large supplies of butter being produced in the rural areas at prices which give a distinct advantage to the consumer.

Most stores are offering butter in pound cartons at low prices as a result of the governmental effort to aid dairy farmers. Eggs, too, are coming into Chicago in quantities sufficient to assure good quality at reasonable cost.

At the same time housewives may be prepared for an increase in the price of milk throughout the Chicago metropolitan area in the near future. In a public hearing called by the federal department of agriculture in Washington, D. C., the farmers and milk dealers who have been granted a virtual monopoly over the milk industry in this area are asking that the price of milk be increased from 10 to 11 cents a quart.

Seek to Boost Farm Income.

The aim of this proposed increase is to give farmers added buying power so that they may purchase more of the goods that city folk produce. The price was advanced in Chicago and suburbs last May from 9 to 10 cents a quart. At that time milk companies informed customers that the price boost was granted in order to pay farmers more for their milk, but farmers obtained only a part of the 1 cent increase.

This time, according to government spokesmen, if any increase in the retail price is granted all of the increase must be passed along to the farmers. Government auditors in Chicago have been going over the milk companies' books to make sure that any price adjustments will be based upon facts.

Meat Cuts Are Cheap.

Steaks and roasts of beef, as well as most of the pork cuts, are low in price this week, due largely to excess supply. According to a committee of meat packers who testified in a Washington hearing this week, there are larger supplies of pork on hand than in many years and the stocks of lamb now in storage are the largest in the history of the meat business. Coffee, tea, spices and breakfast cereals continue to be priced about as low as they have ever been, seemingly having resisted the general rise in food prices of the last four months. Apples and potatoes are somewhat cheaper, while home grown tomatoes, cantaloupes, cabbage, onions, squash, beets, carrots, eggplant, and cucumbers are reasonable in cost.

CUPBOARD SHELF RESERVES PLACE FOR GRAPE JELLY

Use of Pectin Calls for Fully Ripened Fruit.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented today by Mary Meade over station WGN-N. Tune in at 11 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Glasses and small squat jars are showing each other in high glee these days—all up and down the jam and jelly shelves—getting quite excited over the newcomers they hear are speedily making ready to join them. For no matter how important they believe themselves, they can't deny that no self-respecting jam cupboard can get along through the winter without its quota of tawny blue grape specials. So, since the tip-top of their season is close upon us, let's have a look at the whole grape family and lay plans for helping them put their best foot forward.

There are hundreds of varieties of grapes, both wild and cultivated, any of which will make grape jelly, though some are better than others for the purpose. In a word, the best ones are those which are high flavored, richly colored, tart, and juicy. Concord is first class examples and make some of our best jellies. But whatever you use, select grapes which are fully ripe (if commercial pectin is to be used) or are slightly green and firm if the long boil method is the choice.

Flavor with Lemon.

Among the cultivated varieties there are the tight skinned types, such as the Tokay and Malaga, and the slip skin kinds with which we are most familiar. Since California is the home state of the tight skinned types, jelly making is an economical process there. When possible the western "grape juices" are used.

Since the flavor of tight skinned grapes is quite mild, addition of juice of a lemon to pep it up always helps. Or, to add another type of zest to the jelly, turn tight skinned grapes into speeded grape jelly, such as the one given below:

SPICED GRAPE JELLY.

¼ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon cloves
2 teaspoons cinnamon
8 cups sugar
¼ bottle commercial pectin

Stem three pounds of grapes and crush thoroughly. Add the vinegar and spices and bring them to a boil, continuing to simmer for 10 minutes. Drain through a jelly bag. For very clear jelly let the juice drip and use the remains for jam. Now measure out the juice and sugar, and combine in a large preserving kettle. Bring to a full boil and add the pectin, stirring constantly. Bring again to a hard boil and boil vigorously for ¼ minute. Take up the fire, skim, and turn at once into clean hot jelly glasses. Seal immediately with hot paraffin. You will need about 11 average size jelly glasses.

Long Boil Jelly.

Then there is also the matter of the long boil grape jelly. And did you know handy bottled grape juice, which is purchasable at the grocery store, is also an excellent start toward a regiment of jellies?

OLD FASHIONED GRAPE JELLY.

Pick over the grapes, wash them, and remove the stems. Turn into a preserving kettle, heat to boiling point, crush thoroughly, and then boil for 30 minutes. Pour into a jelly bag and let drip without squeezing. To hasten the process the bag may be shaken slightly, but should not be pressed.

2 tablespoons butter
2 cups cooked fish
1 teaspoon salt
Milk

Bake potatoes. While hot, cut a slice from the top of each. Put through ricer. Add fish, butter, salt, and enough milk to make of the consistency of mashed potato. Beat until light and redish shells with the mixture. Put a bit of butter on top of each, sprinkle with paprika, and heat thoroughly and serve at once. Serves six.

CABBAGE ROLLS, GOOD SEASONING, PROVE POPULAR

Cabbage rolls are popular in several countries under various names, with different seasonings, according to the taste of that nation. Americans have found the following recipe especially to their liking, say home economics women at Cornell University:

2 cups of mashed potatoes
1 medium sized onion
1 green pepper
1 cup of cold cooked Sausage to taste, meat, ground or chopped

Combine the vegetables except the cabbage leaves with the meat and seasonings and shape the mixture into small rolls. Roll each of these in a cabbage leaf which has been wilted by placing it in boiling water for five minutes and put them in a greased baking dish. Add enough boiling water to stock to cover them about half way, and if desired, tomatoes, green peppers, and onions chopped in small pieces. Cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit until the cabbage leaves are tender.

It is suggested that cabbage rolls, whole wheat bread and butter, fruit for dessert, milk for the children, and tea or coffee for grownups make a well balanced and hearty meal. It takes about 2½ to 3½ pounds of raw tomatoes to make one quart canned, or roughly, a bushel of raw tomatoes to make an eight months' supply for one person.

SYNOPSIS.

Uncle Cress and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cress's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cress's stepbrother, keeps a written private account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cress. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dams Cress's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cress's in order to protect Florence. Cress made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cress, who was a drunkard and a debauchee. The Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important of the servants, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray finds bread out on Cress's desk, a new will disinheriting Florence. As it is unsigned, the old will stands. Cress disapproved of Florence's moneyless sweetheart, Gregory Thorpe, who had arrived the day before Cress died, having driven east from his home in Ohio in response to an urgent word from Florence. Thorpe can be reached at the local hotel, where he registered as George Thomas. Florence is on the verge of premarital. Thorpe's car is seen near Peckskill. Redd has seen Sabino prowling around his home. Bray learns that Cress deserted a common-law wife and fled to his home in China. A strange Chinaman has recently been seen in the neighborhood. Thorpe's car is picked up, driven by a Detroit gangster.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.
A PERFECT ALIBI.

"It seems that Danny Gleason won't tell how, or why, or when he came into possession of the two seated folk," said Bray, "and he's equally backward about relating how he came to be wearing a polo coat that don't fit him and a tan cap that's inches too big for his head, and has a Toledo, O., dealer's name in the crown of it. . . I don't know how clever those Michigan bulls are at applying the screws to a lad that won't talk, but I could wish I was with them today to give the vice a turn or two myself. Maybe I might induce him to loosen up that tongue of his. And there we are, Gilly, there we are!"

"Well, what do you make of it?" I asked, although privately I had ideas of my own.

"Precisely what I was going to ask you?" he said. "But I'll tell you what young Mr. Motley makes of it and that should hand you a laugh if so be you feel like laughing this gloomy morning. Mr. Motley, he has the brilliant thought shimmering in his dome that Gleason must be Thorpe's accomplice—accessory to the crime of murder, either before or after the fact, but probably before. He can't see any other way, being afflicted with the deluded notion that a young fellow desiring to bump off an elderly gent in a hurry can get expert assistance in the undertaking from the first rough looking stranger he chances for to run into. Or if it's not quite that bad with him at least he's willing to swallow the goofy tale that you can always hire you a good reliable killer off any back street in any slum in any big city, and especially New York City, and for a set price get him to do the job for you

'Twas a Polack that drove by in a cart with his boy and found him.

In a finished and satisfactory manner. But as for myself, ever since I got this word I have the feeling in me, and it's getting stronger with every minute flits over our heads, that trying for to catch up with young Mr. Thorpe we've been casting too wide a loop over the face of the land." He stood up to go.

"Wait a minute," I told him. "I'll run my Lizzie out of the garage and take you down to the village."

As we climbed out at the Western Union's door he said:

"If anything new bobs up during this day—and something tells me there should be something new bobbing up during this day—you shall be among the first to hear it, Gilly."

Well, something did bob up and I was among the first to hear it.

Just after lunch I was out at the kennels with Abe Dore when Mrs. Bevil came dusting across the yard to see Capt. Bray had just telephoned and asked me to join him at the Cress place as quickly as possible.

"I'll say that chariot racing Jew lad—what was the name?—O, yes, Ben Hirsch—I'll say Benny Hirsch had nothing on you when it comes to taking sharp corners slick!" exclaimed Bray admiringly as I jumped out from behind the wheel to meet him where he stood between the tall white porticoes at the front door.

"Didn't I warn you I had a burning ear?" he went on. "Well, a word has come that you'll be wifely to hear—your amongst others. Any other time I'd say it would be a bad word to be hearing to that young girl upstairs, but now I'm claiming it's about the best word could come to her. I haven't told her. That would be for you."

"Young Thorpe, you mean?"

"None other. And he's out in the clear, it seems, with about as clean a bill of health as you could ask for. And me, I don't rightly know yet whether I should be feeling glad or sorry."

"In the name of God, how?" I demanded. "And where has he been all this time?"

"When I think of those dumbbells in that hospital and those still dumber ones in that police precinct I could use words would put me out of the Holy Name society!"

"Man, will you shove on?"

"It now comes out—now after four precious days, mind you—that last Monday night about nine o'clock a young fellow was found lying unconscious alongside a back road that's a short cut into the Nassau boulevard just up against the line of the greater city. 'Twas a Polack that drove by in a cart with his boy and found him."

"He was lying there with a nasty clip on his scalp and him bleeding, and he had no topcoat on him and no hat, and the two of them—the two of them—his and his kid—they led him into the cart and they stuck along until they run across a county patrolman, and the county patrolman calls an ambulance from the nearest hospital—it happens to be it's a hospital on the back side of Flushing of the name of—name of—"

"Damn the name!"

"I'm with you there. Anyway, an ambulance comes and aboard it is an interne. And what a fine young piece of cheese that interne must have been. Because the youngster that's hurt has no money in his pockets and there's nothing in his pockets for to identify him by, that gallant young sawbones jumps at the conclusion that he has here a case of a drunk falling down and hitting himself a hard knock on the head. So when he gets to the hospital they take his word for it and so it goes down on the blotters as an unknown patient suffering from concussion of the brain, possibly complicated with alcoholism."

"So the poor lad, having been X-rayed to see if there's a fracture of the skull—but there was none—stuck away in a bed in their casualty ward and there he lies, delicious part of the time and totally unconscious the rest of the time until today. About an hour or maybe two hours ago he comes to himself and he's clothed in his right mind at last. And the first thing he does is he tells 'em his name. And, of course, he's Gregory Thorpe, which anybody on the job with the intelligence of a sick grasshopper might have guessed that for himself any time these last three days. He says he left Bridgeton about dusk of Monday evening heading for Manhattan, and just beyond Jericho a pedestrian halts him and asks him for a lift. So he pulls up and the foot passenger climbs in, and from what he remembers of this here party it can be none but Mister Daniel Gleason, him that's been playing hookey from the Purple gang. So they roll along for maybe it's twenty minutes till they come to a dark place where the trees bordering one of those big private estates overhang the road, and then young Thorpe feels a terrible smash on his head and that's the last thing he does know. So that explains why, when the killing took place, Gregory Thorpe was dead to the world up wards of a hundred miles from here with ice packs and a bandage on him and about as perfect an alibi as any man could ask for. And that explains how this here sapbrain of a Danny Gleason is caught out in Michigan wearing Gregory Thorpe's tan cap and polo coat and driving Gregory Thorpe's borrowed green Folger."

"I don't know yet myself whether young Thorpe, him being still weak and shaky, has been told of the killing—probably not. But I do know this. 'He's tuming, and tuming, and oggering for to see his sweetheart, and he's threatening to get right up and start for here without she's brought to his bedside, and so the tall end of the message I have is she'd better be on her way forthwith, else he'll go off into a high fever."

Before he got that far I was indoors, taking the stairs three treads at a jump, and Bray was on my heels with the last words of his tale issuing from him in jerks.

Iceberg Mien
Not Needed to Retain Virtue

BY DORIS BLAKE.

When a girl starts confiding that men are trying to break down the fences she has built for years, you know right away she's going to complain about a lonely life and a dateless one. Also, that there's something wrong with the fences! They suggest at once a formidable female, amply if not defensively virtuous and suspicious of every little harmless advance a man might make. With this set up, the wonder is that she has any experience at all.

Not that we argue for looseness of conduct. That doesn't get a girl as much in the long run as being formidable, really. But we do argue for humanness, warmth, understanding of people, and their motives.

"Evidently," writes "Claire," according to men a good girl is no longer appreciated. But a good girl does not have to be an iceberg! She doesn't have to set herself up on a tall throne giving audiences to men, as it were. She doesn't have to feel she is in constant danger of attack. That's what's wrong so often with the Miss Lonesomes. Their whole attitude toward men is wrong. They assume a lot of ridiculous notions that a less formal association with boys would quickly dissipate. Women of the type cannot have brothers or male cousins or fathers close enough to them to humanize them.

It's easy enough these days to learn how to "handle" men if the need arises. But you must use modern tactics, not old fashioned imperialism. You have to get out and around where men are and learn about them from them. You'll find that even the "messenger" ones aren't so bad when you get to know them. But you don't even have to get to know them if you don't want to. There are plenty of others, men who'll take you at your true worth—but who see no fun whatever in squinting around a girl always on the defensive whether there's a reason or not.

"I am getting older," wails "Claire."

"And men tell me they have yet to meet a girl of my age who hasn't had some kind of affair. . ."

Again, pour and fiddlesticks! You only hear talk like that from girls who do not know men, girls who set themselves up as super-beings and consequently make understanding of men impossible.

If you want male companionship—believe in men! Don't be a consoir. Don't expect perfection. Be human.

Service Club Will Tell Debs of Revue Plan

First Party Will Be Held at

In Lake Bluff. They are giving the party for their house guests, Mrs. Amory Perkins of Washington and Middleburg, Va., the Arthur Whites of Virginia, and Anthony Torr of the British embassy; and the Lester Armours, who are just back from Scotland, and Mrs. Armour's sister, Mrs. Charles Wells of New Orleans. Mrs. Wells has been staying with the Armours' four children while the Armours were away and she will be leaving for her home next Monday.

Mrs. Linn's brother, Seymour Blair, will arrive in Chicago on Sunday after an extended absence abroad, where he has been living. During the time he is here he will be with his father, Edward P. Blair, who is arriving with him at 1516 Lake Shore drive. The senior Mr. Blair went abroad several months ago to visit his son and his daughter, Miss Edith Blair, who also lives abroad.

Meekers to Entertain for Their Daughter.

With their daughter, Mrs. Horace Gray, renewing acquaintance this evening with two of her best friends, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker do not expect to get a word in edgewise at the dinner they are having on the terrace of the Century club. Among the Meekers' guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Whitehouse of New York, Mrs. Arnold Whitehouse, also of New York, and Mrs. W. Davies Sohler Jr. of Boston. Both Mrs. Whitehouse and Mrs. Sohler were girlfriends of Mrs. Gray, who before her marriage was Katherine Meeker.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse are at the Drake hotel during their brief visit to Chicago and the Fair. Mr. Whitehouse is now minister from this country to Colombia. Formerly he was the United States minister to Guatemala. Mrs. Sohler, who is with her children at the Drake, has an interesting Chicago connection, for her grandfather was Silas Cobb, a pioneer of the city.

Mrs. Gray arrived in the city this morning with her two sons, Horace Jr. and Arthur Meeker Gray, for a several weeks' visit.

Miss Joan Ryerson, who had expected to leave yesterday to enter Bennington college in Vermont, instead is installed in one of the executive rooms at the Essex hotel where she has been for more than a week. Although she is getting along nicely she probably won't be able to go to college at all this fall.

She has infantile paralysis, in a mild form luckily, and she sounded very cheerful and optimistic when we talked to her yesterday about her plans, which, under the circumstances, cannot be anything but vague. Her brother, Tony, is leaving on the 12th for the Brooks school at North Andover, Mass. Their mother, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, is with her mother, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, in Lake Michigan, commuting between there and the hospital.

As soon as Mrs. John W. Gary arrives at home next Monday she will plunge into plans for St. Luke's annual fashion show, which this year will be on Oct. 18. Mrs. Gary is president of the women's board which stages the showing. She and her hosts in Scotland, the James Simpsons, land today in New York on the Benaranga, together with the James Simpson family, the John Simpsons, and William Simpson.

Horse Show Sunday at Dunham Woods.

The second annual horse show of the Dunham Woods Riding club promises to provide an exciting and interesting afternoon on Sunday, starting at 2:30 o'clock, for the many who are to ride in the show and for the several hundred who have engaged parking spaces around the ring. There will be numerous carloads of horse lovers from Lake Forest, Winnetka, the city, Wheaton and various other places driving to Wayne to attend the show.

Entries have been pouring in; in fact, the three gaited saddle horse class became so crowded that the committee decided to divide it in two. Some of those who will ride in this are Miss Adelaide Atkin of Winnetka, Mrs. Joy Morton II, her daughter, Betty; Mrs. Perry Dryden and Mrs. Edward McDougall of Geneva, Miss Joan Dunham and Mrs. George Woodruff of Wayne.

The Henry T. Stantons' son, Jimmy, will have an entry in the five gaited class, and Miss Libby Chase is planning to bring several of her riding ponies from Lake Forest to enter the show. Among them will be Adelaide Chaffield-Taylor, Kay Goodman, Ida May Minotto, and Marshall, Milton and John E. Hughes Jr. and Edward White.

A new class is the family class, in which the mother and father and at least one child must show. In it will ride the Perry Drydens and their son, the Nathan McDougalls and young Nate; the Joy Mortons and their son; the Edward McDougalls and their son; the David McDougalls and their son; the Charles C. Wests and their daughters, and Dr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Orth and their daughter.

Every one in Wayne is having house parties over this week-end and the Dunham Woods inn will be filled with guests. Too, Miss Atkin, Miss Dorothy Schmitt and Miss Helen Bell will be at the inn as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III, who have an attractive little house not far from the inn.

Judging the show will be Wayne Dinmore of Beverly Hills, secretary of the American Horse association; Valentine Crane of St. Charles, and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett of Lake Forest. Among those active in arrangements for the show are Mrs. West, Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham, and Mr. Morton and Mr. Dryden.

Marshall Wedding to Be Simple Affair.

The Benjamin H. Marshalls have decided that the wedding of their younger daughter, Dorothy, to Richard Wright Simmons, son of Mrs. George W. Simmons of St. Louis, which will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the Marshalls' studio in Wilmette on Sept. 30, is to be a very simple affair. Mrs. Richard H. Fleming, the former Betty Marshall, will be her sister's only attendant, and James Pope, with whom Mr. Simmons has been

GASOLINE ALLEY—LUCK IS FICKLE

Old Fashioned Silk Creates a Frock That Plays a Modish, Versatile Role

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—(Special.)—The frock that makes an effort to be all things at once, in old fashioned colors like garnet, mulberry, and wine, and extremely chic for early fall. These dresses are endowed by the dressmakers with adaptability, so they can get about on workday occasions and step into the playgirl atmosphere of the evening.

The Jane Regny frock shown in our sketch is one of these new versatile frocks of heavy bengaline silk. It is mulberry colored and is very simple when worn without the ruffled collar, and the ruffled collar is a detail that adds to the charm.

The silhouette of this dress is the narrow line of clinging bean proportions that is going over big here in Paris. The dress has two bias bands down the center front and back, and these bands hide knife plaits at the outside edges, placed between knees and hem, and giving a slight flare at the bottom. The dress is one piece, and has a plain square neckline and the smart just-below-the-elbows sleeves.

Separate from the actual frock, but giving it special chic, is the bolero jacket made of a wide ruffle sewed up under the arms to make sleeves, and having a heading as a collar, and two straps that cross on the bosom and button at the waistline in back. The black velvet sailor hat is a smart detail, with its pink feather trimming.

Decorate New Handbags with Metal Signs

Bigger and Better Buckles
Are the Style.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Metal slabs, squares, discs, buttons, replicas of life saver circles, eye-dime triangles, huge buckles and anything that is large and space filling decorate the newest handbags.

You can find sleek black bags glistening with frosty silver clasps, wide frames or the same black expanses simply accented with a huge silver square on which you sport your monogram, the bigger the better.

Some of the cinnamon brown suede affairs are knockouts with glowing gold decorations and the copper gadgets that shine on other brown pouches, envelopes and strap numbers are quite the smartest things you can find.

Chromium is still flashing from gray and blue bags. It's probably the most satisfactory metal you can be interested in, as it is untarnished and undulled, no matter how shabby you treat your money bags. Bronze and copper, have startling possibilities. . . you can dress up the plainest bag and have a swanky 1933 model with a three letter monogram or diamond shaped ornament.

There will be no complaining this fall about bag capacity. The things are getting bigger and better, with the best planned compartments, pockets, extra slits, double mirrors, harmonizing combs, slipped depths for your valuables and even an outside extra pocket to take care of your day's quota of fags. They are as complete, as efficient, as the best designed super week-end case, slim, smart, compact and just what you want to keep under your shopping elbow.

New evening bags have sprouted feathers. . . they are the most frivolous, most feminine trifles you can dangle from your wrist. . . one shop has some breath-taking ostrich feather evening bags that combine bag, muff and fan, you can get them in practically any and every color you may need to dramatize your pet evening gowns.

Charm Is Now in Reach of Every Woman

Individuality Is Keynote of Beauty Today.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's interesting and no end encouraging the way women are judged today. Time and again you hear this sort of thing:

"I wouldn't say she was a great beauty, nor a beauty at all, but she has . . ."

Style or personality or vitality or great charm or a glamorous background. Anyway, it's what she has cultivated and not what we used to think the Good Fairy endowed her with at birth. And I say that is encouraging—because it gives every woman a break; that is, every woman smart enough to take up with what she has, add all the other talents she can acquire, and be a pictorial somebody.

The amazing thing is that some women are, according to the old code far from beauties in any sense of the word—but they create the illusion of beauty and that's all that's asked today.

I happened to run into a young matron the other day about whom a number of people had raved. In any discussion of good looking women her name was enthusiastically reported. Yes, it was admitted that she really is not a beauty—but she has—

And she has vitality above all else—a zest for life; an alert, eager interest in everything and everybody. This keenness is reflected in the bright eyes, as well as in the woman's good grooming and an unusual smartness in dress. The latter is arrived at on a very limited income, since the young matron's family fortune collapsed along with many other lately departed fortunes. The perpetual youth of this woman and her wide-awakeness to everything, including cosmetics, fashion, and so on, is what makes her a leader when names of attractive women are mentioned.

There's another young matron, who recognizes that her tall, slender figure, her slightly angular lines, make modernism her best bet. She is not pretty—but she's never left out of a list of the distinguished. She's enshrined herself in a very modern apartment (again on limited money) and goes in for modern things.

Piquant Plaids Brighten Tips of "Tennessee Star"

Tennessee Star.
BY NANCY CABOT.

"Tennessee Star," the recognized star pattern of the state!

And it offers the very best opportunity yet presented for using up those scraps of saucy plaids that have been accumulating for months in the scrap bag hanging in the closet.

If you haven't plaid pieces, the star may be made of prints, of course, though the plaid seems to accentuate the points of the star and carry out the geometrical scheme of straight lines and sharp angles.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 5 South Dearborn.

One Sensitive Child Rebels Against Movies

Mrs. Bevans Declares
She's Not Abnormal.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It is not often that mothers write me asking for advice on getting their children to the movies! It is usually the opposite way. So this letter is refreshingly different. She writes:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I am writing again for more advice.

"My 10 year old daughter is invited to a movie party to see a mystery story. She doesn't like them and doesn't want to go, but all her friends are going. Ought I to urge her to go and overcome her fear of such a picture?"

"Our girls rarely go to the movies, as I'll have to admit that they are rather 'high strung,' although they lead very normal lives and have the reputation of being good children. (I say that at the risk of sounding awfully smug. But I'm wondering if I have been too careful, and so created a fear of harmful pictures. I don't want them to grow up taking life too seriously. I've always had to contend with that myself and don't want to pass it on to them."

I certainly feel that a sensitive, imaginative girl of 10 should not see any film her mother thinks is not suitable. If children do not care for the movies there is no good reason for taking them. And if they are high strung there is even less reason. Mystery plays or thrillers are bad for young children. My correspondent says, "But I am wondering if I have been too careful and so created a fear of harmful pictures."

One cannot be too careful for the harm done is usually irreparable.

However, on the other hand, if there is a real fear of movie houses as such, due to some unpleasant association, it might be well to try to dissipate it.

There are good films such as the animated cartoons, some of the good slap stick comedy, and certain feature films, and a few visits to see these will probably work the cure. Later on, when the children are older and more stable, they will probably like some of the more exciting films, the thrill compensating for the shivers.

SHARKEY SPEEDS UP TRAINING FOR LEVINSKY FIGHT

Will Go 4 Rounds with 2 Partners Today.

Starting this afternoon, Jack Sharkey will lengthen his boxing drill from two to four rounds against two partners in preparation for his 10 round bout with King Levinsky at White Sox ball park next Friday night.

The same procedure will be followed tomorrow and Sunday. The former heavyweight champion will begin tapering off Monday by boxing only two rounds again. He will do his last sparring Tuesday. On Wednesday and Thursday he will indulge in only bag punching, shadow boxing, rope skipping, and body callisthenics.

Sharkey Shows Vigor.

Sharkey's drill yesterday was considered more impressive than his first here Wednesday. He showed more vitality and vigor, and sparred Chester Matan was bombarded with a wide assortment of punches, which included hard straight lefts to the face and terrific left hooks to the waist and body, mixed with vicious right hand uppercuts to the chin. He was on the verge of being knocked down several times.

After Sharkey concluded his workout yesterday several of the spectators predicted that Levinsky would win. They contended that the Chicago fighter is too game for Jack.

Sharkey declared that he is not worried about the outcome of the bout. He realizes that Levinsky is awkwardly clever and a wild swinger, but hitting youth who doesn't fight in conventional style. This will make his triumph a little harder, that's all, he said.

Doesn't Fear Levinsky.

"I've met such boxers as Max Schmeling, Primo Carnera, Tommy Loughran, Jack Dempsey, Harry Wills, George Godfrey and the like, so why should I fear Levinsky?" Sharkey declared.

Pete Wistort, South Chicago heavyweight, who served as sparring partner for Max Baer against Schmeling, is to join Sharkey's camp today. He is to share the scheduled four round workout with Matan.

Sharkey began his drill at 2:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He punched the fast bag for three minutes and then he put on the gloves for his two round boxing exhibition.

Matan on Defensive.

In the first round Matan was content to stay on the defensive and Sharkey didn't do much damage although he showed his superiority throughout the round. He landed a vicious right hand uppercut below the heart and chin near the end of the round which made Matan gasp for breath.

The sparmate was the aggressor during the first minute of the second round. He landed a hard right to Sharkey's head and Jack missed a right counter to the ear. But Sharkey quickly made up for this by punishing his opponent with a two handed fire to the stomach and face that had him dizzy. Sharkey's best punches were a left hook to the head and right uppercuts to the chin.

Crowds Watch Levinsky.

While Sharkey is in his light in Chicago Levinsky is king at his Grand Beach, Mich., training camp. Scores of youngsters and vacationists crowded around the ring to watch him leap and throw his punches at four boxing partners for five rounds yesterday.

The King worked two rounds with Real Harris and then he went one each with the smaller Roy Williams, Ed Wills and Larry Johnson. He was at 204 after the workout. He is attempting to pare down to 200 for Sharkey.

Matan and Bob Stone were signed last night to meet at six rounds next Friday on the Sharkey-Levinsky card.

WRESTLER MAY RECOVER; HUNT FOR ASSAILANT

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Police tonight still were seeking the assailant of Mar Allah, Toledo, O., welterweight wrestler, who was stabbed in the back as he left the ring after a wrestling match here Tuesday night.

A knife wound was inflicted as Allah passed through the crowd, but his assailant escaped during the ensuing confusion. Physicians said that Allah probably will recover, but that his wrestling days might be ended.

MOON MULLINS—MOUTH HAPPINESS

MIXING WORK AND PLAY

King Levinsky playing an old fashioned game of leapfrog to help him get into condition for his bout with Jack Sharkey. Levinsky is training at Grand Beach, Mich., and Sharkey is going through his workouts in Chicago. The fight is scheduled for a week from tonight at Comiskey park.

Canzoneri Is Still Champ to New York

punches had shown a distinct sign of wear.

Ross apparently is in condition. He worked at a fast pace and finished with the same speed he started. But today he didn't appear to advantage. In fact, one of his opponents, Ray Meyers of New York, a tall upstanding lad whose left was a bit more accurate than the champion's, although not so deadly, gave Barney a licking in one round. Meyers was third on the program and while he had been sent in to hook with his left in imitation of Canzoneri's style, he either couldn't do it or wouldn't. Meyers peppered Barney with lefts to the head and frequently brought his right hand over to the same target.

Joe Dougherty of New York led off the boxing for one round. He crouched and came in as directed and Barney made short work of him, hammering him around the body with his right, the blow which the former champion, Benny Leonard, believes will be his best against Canzoneri.

Hook Stops Carlton.

Then came Frankie Carlton of Jersey City, who later stopped the final round of the workout. Barney met his aggressive tactics in kind and just before the end of the first three minutes staggered him with a vicious left hook to the jaw.

Dublinsky Bout Features Cicero Program Tonight

Two boxing shows will be presented tonight, one at Cicero stadium, 19th street and 62d avenue, and the other at Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Harry Dublinsky, Chicago boxer, will meet Jacquettie Elverille, formerly of Davenport, Ia., in a 10 round contest at the Cicero arena. Elverille will be making his local debut as a professional. Before turning pro three years ago he boxed here as an amateur under the name of Jack Elverille. Other matches:

Steve Paldi vs. Joe Koko (4). Popeye Huber vs. Carl Sealie (4). Sammy Adams vs. Walter Statkus (4). Jack O'Connell vs. Johnny Reba (4). Smiling Springer, 128 pound fighter, is matched with Joey Bosak of Blue Island in a five round match at the fronton. George Engel, South Bend, Ind., lightweight, and Ed Smith will clash in the main supporting contest. Frank Ketter is matched with Eddie Dumas, Matt Dour boxes Bob Chambers, and Pete Blanchard engages Mickey Landis at four rounds. There also will be a wrestling bout between Hassan Ahmed and Mike Mantich.

Six matches were arranged yesterday to support the six round contest between Laddie Tonelli and Honey Boy Brown at Western stadium Tuesday. They are:

Billy Gladstone and Joe Koko (5). Clem Reed and Roosevelt Haines (4). Ralph Mote and Moss T. Branner (4). Lemmy Cohen and Vince Perino (4). Eddie Ward and John Pekovich (4). Frankie White and Tony Canzoneri (4).

Tight Races Mark Rodeo Title Events

Championship races in all divisions of the World's Fair rodeo at Soldiers' field tightened up yesterday and with the leaders closely bunched indications were that several of the titles will not be decided before the final events on Sunday night. Several of the leaders are so closely pressed by the other contestants that one event may change the standings.

George McIntosh of High River, Alberta, Canada, is leading the bareback riding contest with a total of 3,999 points on 13 broncs, and Stats Jacobs of Merriman, Neb., is second with 3,975 points. In the calf roping Herb Meyers of Okmulgee, Okla., is first on 14 calves with a total of 237.2 seconds, an average of 23.4 on each calf. Jake McClure of Lovington, N. M., is second with 362.2 seconds, an average of 26 seconds.

Pete Knight of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, is leading in bronc riding with 4,582 points and Earl Thode of Casa Grande, Ariz., is second with 4,520 points.

The battle for the championship in the steer wrestling has been seceding back and forth between Dick Shelton of Tilden, Tex., and Dick Trullitt of Stonevale, Okla. Shelton was first on 12 steers with a total of 217.1 and Trullitt second with 226.3. On the third tenth steer Trullitt took the lead with 239.3 seconds and Shelton scored 252. Now Shelton is again in the lead on the 14th steer with 289 seconds and Trullitt's 273.2. Last night's summaries:

THIEF TAKES SUIT FROM ROSS WHILE HE'S IN THE RING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Swannanoa, N. J., Sept. 7.—Sneak thieves invaded Barney Ross' cottage this afternoon while he was engaged in boxing in the nearby arena and made away with a suit of clothes and an extra pair of pants. Nothing else was taken.

"A few years ago, if some one had stolen my suit I'd now be going around in my ring trunks," Barney said when he discovered his loss. "Who ever got the suit is welcome if he'll promise that Canzoneri won't grab my title Tuesday night in New York."

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

TWO prize fights of more than ordinary interest will be committed to New York and Chicago next week. One brings together two of the greatest lightweights of all time—Barney Ross of Chicago and Tony Canzoneri of New York. Ross will carry his 135 pound crown into the arena at the Polo grounds Tuesday night.

The other boxing headliner is scheduled for Comiskey park a week from tonight between Jack Sharkey, once the heavyweight champion, and King Levinsky, a former fish peddler.

The promoters of both shows scoffed at depression. Tim Mara, the New York entrepreneur, guaranteed Ross $30,000 to defend his title against Canzoneri, from whom he won it at the Chicago Stadium less than three months ago. Sammy Wolf will pay Sharkey $25,000 for his services against Levinsky whether he wins, loses or draws.

It appears that Mr. Wolf has optimized Mr. Mara. The only boxing event of importance that has made money in Chicago in months was the international Golden Gloves. The Chicago Stadium Operating company lost $10,000 on the Ross-Canzoneri match which, I repeat, brought together two of the strongest all around 135 pound fighters in boxing history. What then does Wolf expect to do with grade B beef?

The Chicago show must draw $40,000 to break even. Terms of the contract require Wolf to have Sharkey's money in the bank 24 hours before the bout. The Boston fighter has a privilege of taking 40 per cent in case that amounts to more than his guarantee. Levinsky gets 20 per cent, if there is any per cent left after Sharkey is paid off.

LA BORDE WINS DISCUS THROW IN ITALIAN MEET

TURIN, Italy, Sept. 7.—(AP)—United States track and field athletes today won one title in the national interuniversity games in Mussolini stadium, took second place in another event, and qualified two men for the finals in two others.

Henri Laborde of Stanford won the discus throw to set a new meet record with a toss of 48.9 meters (160 feet 5-16 inches), while Johnny Morris of Louisiana State qualified for the finals of the 110 meter high hurdles, and Ivan Fuqua of Indiana qualified for the 400 meter dash finals.

The lone American setback came in the 3,000 meter run in which Joe McCluskey, formerly of Fordham, was passed in the last few yards by Umberto Cerati of Italy. Cerati's time of 8 minutes 43 seconds also set a new meet record.

Morris and Fuqua both won trials and semi-final heats during the day of competition. Morris setting a new meet record of 14.6 seconds in his semi-final victory and Fuqua running his semi-final heat in 49.1 seconds, also a new mark for the games.

The four American athletes were members of a United States team of eight which recently completed an all-conquering tour of Europe and the Scandinavian countries. The other four have returned home.

DODGERS RECALL THREE.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today recalled three players, who will report at the training camp in Miami, Fla., next spring. They are Pitcher Ray Phelan of Montreal and Pitcher Lefty Perkins and Outfielder Len Koenigs of Buffalo.

Beebe, Wall Lose in Dixie Women's Golf

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(Special).—Central states girls were repulsed today in quarter-final matches of the women's Mason-Dixon golf tournament. June Beebe of Chicago lost to Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C., on the 18th green and Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., was defeated by Jane Cothan of Greenville, S. C., 3 and 2.

Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., and Fritz Stifel of Wheeling, W. Va., are the other semi-finalists.

Kansas Quarter Back to Join Portsmouth

Lawrence, Kas., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Elmer H. W. Schaake, former quarter back of the University of Kansas, said today he would leave tonight or tomorrow for Portsmouth, O., to play with the Spartans of the National Professional Football league.

 [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
 New York, Sept. 7.—Heavy buying of United States government bonds produced the strongest market for these issues in several weeks on the expectation that the treasury's Sept. 15 financing "if any," as remarked yesterday in bond circles, would not amount to more than a small issue of comparatively short term obligations. On the stock exchange the Liberty loans and long term treasury issues mounted 1-32 to 9-32 points on a turnover of more than $1,000,000. In the over-the-counter market, however, where the bulk of the trading in these issues is done normally, dealers reported many sales today of single blocks of $1,000,000. It was estimated that "upwards of $25,000,000" of government issues changed hands here today.

Banks Chief Buyers.

The bulk of the buying today was done by banks throughout the country on the presumption that the treasury would not give notice by Sept. 15 that it would call the First Liberty Loan 4½ for payment on Dec. 15, 1933. This issue is outstanding in the amount of $535,982,600.

Thus, the "fire" in today's market was in the belief that the treasury would concern itself only with the maturity a week from today of $220,-389,500 of 1½ per cent certificates of indebtedness. In this connection, it is understood that well over 50 per cent of the issue is held by the federal reserve.

One Issue at New High.

In most instances closing prices of government bonds on the stock exchange were at or near the best prices for the day. One issue, the treasury, 3½s, scored a new high at 101 13-32ds. The first Liberty loan 4½s, which are vulnerable for a call for payment, claimed the major gain for the day of the list, that of 9-32ds point.

German bonds were an outstanding weak spot in the foreign list, dropping from 1 to 3 points. Aside from the political disturbances in Europe, the chief unsettling factor is the continued delay in the transfer of cash and blocked mark certificates, as agreed on by Dr. Schacht, head of the reichsbank.

Soft spots appeared in other foreign bonds, including some of high grade.

These included French 7½s, Saisons City 6s, Italy 7s, Belgium 7s, and others.

Domestic corporation bonds held in a narrow groove following today's sudden decline. Gains and losses were about evenly balanced in second grade rails and utilities.

O'CONNOR TELLS BANK DEPOSIT GUARANTY PLAN

Plea to Postpone Program Denied.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency, in an address at the closing session of the American Bankers' association convention at the Stevens hotel yesterday announced that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation would be in operation by Jan. 1 to guarantee bank deposits up to $2,500.

Walter J. Cummings, executive assistant to Secretary of the Treasury, and E. G. Bennett, banker and business man of Ogden, Utah, Mr. O'Connor announced had been named by President Roosevelt as two of the three directors of the corporation. The controller, himself, is ex-officio the third director.

Thus did the administration deny the request of the bankers' association to delay putting into operation the guaranty of deposits.

Add 1,500 Bank Examiners.
The general outline of the corporation's setup, Mr. O'Connor said, had been tentatively approved by the President and a list of 1,500 men qualified as assistant bank examiners had been compiled to examine the 8,000 state banks outside the federal reserve system for entrance to the guaranty corporation.

The principal provisions of the banking act of 1933 relating to the guaranty of bank deposits were given by Mr. O'Connor as follows:
"A temporary federal deposit insurance fund" will become operative on Jan. 1, 1934, which will insure deposits in each member of the fund up to $2,500.

"Members of the fund will be all member banks licensed before Jan. 1, 1934, by the secretary of the treasury, and non-member state banks with the approval of the state supervising authority, after certification by the corporation of solvency and examination and approval by the corporation.

Pay 14 of 15 of Deposits.
"Both member and nonmember banks must pay to the corporation an amount equal to one-half of 1 per cent of the insured deposits certified as of the 15th of the month preceding the month they were admitted to the fund. (One-half of this payment will be made upon admission and the other half upon call by the directors of the corporation.)

"The permanent insurance is effective on July 1, 1934, as to all national banks certified by the controller of the currency, and all state member banks certified by the federal reserve board, upon such banks becoming class A stockholders in the corporation, and nonmember banks having the benefit of such insurance until July 1, 1935, by becoming class A stockholders of the corporation in compliance with the act."

In becoming class A stockholders, the banks must subscribe to class A stock of the corporation in an amount equal to one-half of one per cent of their total deposits.

Permanent Plan Next Year.
Under the permanent insurance features of the act beginning July 1, 1934, instead of a flat guaranty up to $2,500, as follows: Deposits not exceeding $10,000 are guaranteed by the corporation in full; deposits from $10,000 to $50,000 are guaranteed 75 per cent and deposits exceeding $50,000 are guaranteed 50 per cent.

How little chance the bankers' association had of persuading the administration to delay the guaranty of deposits was indicated in this statement by Mr. O'Connor to the convention:

"Fully realizing the magnitude of the operations involved, the pitfalls which must be avoided, and the non-divergent path which must be followed, as one member of the board of the corporation, I approach the task humbly but with a grim determination of success."

May Regain Postal Deposits.
To their up his banker audience the speaker held out to them the hope that they might get back the deposits that had been deposited in the government postal savings banks. With bank deposits guaranteed, he pointed out, congress would be justified in repaying the law entirely. Postal savings deposits, due to withdrawals from banks, had increased from 347 millions on June 30, 1931, to 1 billion 160 millions on April 30, 1932, with an indicated 25 million dollar increase since then.

The government, through the operation of the Federal Reserve banks, the controller's office, and the FPC, Mr. O'Connor said, is now making a survey of all the banks in the United States. Difficulties may arise, however, in the state banks in some states because of necessity for additional legislation, and in others because changes will have to be made in state constitutions.

Plan for Enrollment.
His suggestions for procedure for enrolling banks in the guaranty fund will be as follows, he said:

First, each bank applying for insurance will be furnished with blank forms to be completed by the banks setting forth each asset under a proper heading and the amount of its deposit liabilities and obligations to other creditors. This will save much time and the examiner will then check the item and appraise it.

Second, an examiner who knows the values in the particular state, with necessary assistants, would be assigned to each state capital to work with the state banking commissioner and all examiners in the state would clear through the examiner at the capital.

Third, the names of banks insured and their location would be given simultaneously.

The controller denounced critics of the guaranty scheme who say that it will squeeze the little banks, particularly those in the rural areas.

DISCUSSING DEPOSIT GUARANTY

J. F. T. O'Connor (right), United States controller of currency, chatting with William Taylor, chief national bank examiner of the Seventh federal reserve district, at the American Bankers' association convention at the Stevens hotel yesterday. Mr. O'Connor told the bankers of the administration's plan to put the deposit guaranty plan into effect at once.

Bankers Draft New Code; Few Changes Made

Several modifications of the NRA regulations under which the nation's banks are now operating are proposed in the permanent code adopted yesterday by the American Bankers' association. The code adopted yesterday is to be presented to the recovery administration for approval.

The two most significant departures from the temporary code now in effect relate to hours of labor and minimum wages.

A clause is inserted allowing banks to employ persons "without previous banking experience" at a wage not less than 90 per cent of the minimum established. The "minimum" set by the new code is the same as the scale now in effect. Under the present rules the basic wage scale ranges from $12 to $14 a week according to population.

Minimum Wages Set.
A $15 weekly minimum is set for cities of 500,000 population or over. For cities of 250,000 to 500,000 population the minimum is established at $14.50. For cities of 25,000 to 250,000 population the minimum is set at $14. Absolute basic wage is set for towns below 2,500. It is provided, however, that in cities of the latter class wages of all employees shall be increased not less than 20 per cent if such a boost will not require a wage in excess of $12.

The other significant departure from the recent regulations provides for a modification of the present standard forty hour maximum week averaged over a thirteen week period. The code permits banks in certain localities to work employees for forty-eight hours a week where there is heavy seasonal activity, such as crop harvesting or periodical industrial activity.

Plan for Emergency Hours.
The new section reads as follows: "In districts or sections of the country where the seasonal nature of commerce, agriculture, or industry, making necessary the moving of some product within a limited period, imposes on the banking facilities an unusual demand, employees of banks subject to such peak demand may work forty-eight hours per week for a period not to exceed sixteen consecutive weeks in any calendar year. Any increase in hours of employment shall be reported monthly to the banking code committee provided for herein."

The child labor clause provides a minimum age of 16 years, but allows the employment of persons of 14 and 15 years of age for not more than three hours a day. These hours must come between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. and shall "not interfere with hours of day school."

F. M. Law, Bankers' New Head, Pledges NRA Aid

The bankers of the country pledged themselves to support of the President's recovery program yesterday when the newly elected president of the ABA, F. M. Law, Houston, Tex., in taking office said: "With your approval, as your president, I shall announce to Mr. Roosevelt that the bankers of this association are going to do everything permissible to good bankers to make the national recovery act work so that it will become a blessing to every man, woman, and child under the American flag."

Gold Hoarders Still Defiant; Begin New Metal Sales Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—(Special.)—Most of the 320 defiant gold hoarders uncovered by recent federal investigations are standing pat despite new dispensations in President Roosevelt's revised gold orders. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings revealed today.

Meanwhile, 10,000 ounces of newly mined gold have been received at the treasury department for exportation under the revised orders promulgated a week and a half ago. Sales by the treasury of this metal to domestic consumers or abroad will begin tomorrow, when the treasury for the first time will quote an official price on gold based on the world price.

U. S. CONVERSION LOAN OFFERED FOR 220 MILLION

Exchanges for Matured Issue Only.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—A small but important conversion loan, the first in recent history, is being offered by the treasury department at its Sept. 15 financing program, Dean G. Acheson, acting secretary of the treasury, announced tonight.

With approximately 220 million dollars of treasury certificates maturing Sept. 15, the treasury is offering to issue new nine months certificates to all holders who wish to make the exchange. The new issue will bear interest at the low rate of one-quarter of 1 per cent. Acheson announced. The maturing issue paid 1 1/2 per cent interest, making a 1 per cent saving which the treasury hopes to effect by the transaction. In actual cash, this means a saving of $1,650,000.

Issue Limited to Exchange.
Only enough of the new one-quarter per cent certificates will be issued to meet those of the maturing certificates which are tendered for exchange, closing the new issue to all outside buyers. Holders of the maturing certificates who do not wish to make the exchange, may present their certificates for payment, and their demands will be met out of the billion dollar cash balance the treasury has on hand.

The new financing is not only the first outright conversion loan, but the first treasury borrowing since the beginning of the depression which did not involve a call for money excess of refinancing requirements. The government is coasting along with a billion dollars of the billion and a quarter it amassed on Aug. 15 still on hand to meet day-to-day requirements.

Issue Exempt from Taxes.
The new certificates will be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all federal income tax applications.

Applications for the new certificates at the federal reserve banks and branches and at the treasury department, Washington. Banking institutions generally will handle applications for subscribers, but only the federal reserve banks and the treasury department are authorized to act as official agencies.

The certificates of indebtedness will be issued in bearer form, in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000, with two interest coupons attached, payable on Dec. 15, 1933, and June 15, 1934.

DOLLAR GAINS QUARTER OF CENT AGAINST FRANC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] New York, Sept. 7.—The dollar moved within a narrow price range today in terms of principal foreign currencies. The final quotation on the French gold franc indicated a gold value for the dollar at 69.46 cents, as compared with 69.22 yesterday, a gain of about a quarter of a cent. The final quotation on the franc was 5.64 cents, against 5.65 cents yesterday. The British pound appreciated slightly in terms of United States funds, reaching $4.54, as compared with yesterday's price of $4.54. The Canadian dollar closed at 55.14 cents in United States money.

RESERVE BANKS KEEP UP BUYING FEDERAL BONDS

Add 38 Millions but Other Credit Drops.

The federal reserve board's inflation drive gained additional headway in the week ended Wednesday with the stopping of the purchase of government bonds by the 12 Federal Reserve banks, according to the weekly report released last night.

During the week the reserve banks added 38 millions to their holdings of government securities. For several weeks the acquisitions had been made at the rate of 35 million per week and before that only 10 millions per week were being added.

Still Use Gold Bond Notes.
The report indicated that these purchases are still being made with federal reserve notes by buying its bonds (and that the reserve banks have not yet begun to use asset money [no gold backing] to buy the bonds. Circulation of federal reserve notes increased nearly 57 million dollars the week ended Wednesday, the largest increase in many weeks. Circulation of asset money increased only 1 1/2 millions.

While the federal reserve banks were thus expanding credit for the federal government by buying its bonds they were continuing to contract their outstanding commercial credit. Their bills discounted dropped nearly 9 millions for the week.

Member Banks Sell.
Reports for member banks in New York and Chicago, also released yesterday, indicated that the member banks were selling the government bonds that the reserve banks were buying. Holdings of government bonds by member banks in New York dropped 38 millions and similar holdings of Chicago member banks dropped 13 millions.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank continued to carry the brunt of the load in government bond purchases. It bought 16 millions of the 38 million acquired by the twelve reserve banks combined.

The reports on member banks in New York and Chicago showed that despite a big push in Washington for an expansion of credit and in the face of exhortations by administration leaders at the convention of the American Bankers association this week bank credit continues to contract.

Total Credit Shrinks.
Total outstanding credit of the New York member banks shrank 15 millions and that of the Chicago member banks 30 millions during the week. Most of the shrinkage in total credit was due to the selling of government bonds.

The reports indicated a drop for the week of about 5 millions in gross deposits of Chicago member banks and a drop of 20 millions in New York.

Brokers' loans in New York declined 15 millions for the week, all of the shrinkage being in the loans made for out of town banks.

Chain Systems' Sales in August Above Year Ago
Sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. for August, 1933, were $15,657,274, compared with $15,528,204 for August, 1932, an increase of $129,070, or 0.83 per cent. Sales for the seven months up to Aug. 31 increased $1,448,920 from $95,990,710 in 1932 to $97,439,630 in 1933, or 1.51 per cent.

The S. S. Kresge company reported that sales increased 12.5 per cent from $8,047,748 in August, 1932, to $9,020,922 in August, 1933. For the first eight months of 1933 sales were $74,053,222, against $76,592,777 for the same period of 1932, a decrease of 3.3 per cent.

Sales in August of the J. C. Penney company rose 32.1 per cent to $13,203,542 for 1933, from $10,747,070 in 1932. Sales for the first eight months of the year are almost 8 per cent above those of the like period last year.

August sales of S. H. Kress & Co. were $5,416,829, against $4,861,610 a year ago, or an increase of 11.4 per cent. Sales for the first eight months of this year were $38,818,783, against $38,550,094 in the like period of 1932.

A 'Preferred' Creditor Finds Out His Status

"The unenviable position in which a 'preferred creditor' frequently finds himself inspired the following story, which is told by J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency, who spoke yesterday before the ABA.

A creditor of a large corporation, the controller related, called on the president of the firm.

"I see you are in the bosom of a receiver," the creditor said.

"You mean the hands," the corporation head replied.

"Well, I am not familiar with such things," the creditor said.

"O, don't worry, you are a preferred creditor."

"What does that mean?"

"It means," the president came back, "that you know now you won't get anything while the common creditor won't know for a year or more."

The advice of RFC Chairman Jesse Jones to nation's bankers to "be smart for once" and liberalize loaning policies is easier given than followed, according to the almost universal view of delegates to the ABA convention.

"What can a country banker do with the money he has?" a southern Illinois banker asked yesterday. "I leave it on deposit in Chicago and get no interest. It might as well be at the federal reserve. I don't want to load up on bonds with prospect of inflation of the currency. Now the RFC tells me to lend to business men. Well, that's what I have been doing ever since I started banking 30 years ago. I suppose if I went up the street passing out loans to everybody I could get rid of my money, but even the government can't convince me that is sound. When I find some who wants money and give reasonable assurance of ability to repay, I will lend. But those people don't want money."

For years to come whenever bankers get together stories will be swapped about the historic banking events in March, 1933.

Many tales—some fanciful—were told yesterday in the corridors of the Stevens hotel where the American Bankers' convention is meeting. Here's one reputedly authentic:

A former national bank examiner told a conversation he had several years ago with the president of a large bank in western Pennsylvania. The bank's clientele was large and its depositors were scattered throughout many states and some foreign countries. The president told the examiner that he had always had a wish to see all the depositors of his bank but that he feared his desire would not be realized. The conversation took place in 1928.

In March 3, this year, the former examiner—now a bank executive—received the following telegram from the head of the Pennsylvania bank: "My life long wish was fulfilled today."

Washington, D. C., wants the ABA convention in 1934, and New Orleans is bidding for the 1935 gathering, but no decision has been made.

Arthur Reynolds, former chairman of the board of the Continental bank here, has become an ardent press agent for California's much talked of climate.

"I've never felt better in my life," said Mr. Reynolds yesterday who is now vice chairman of the board of the Glanville Bank of America in San Francisco. Both Mr. Reynolds and A. F. Glanville are attending the bankers' convention here.

POWER OUTPUT GAIN OVER LAST YEAR NARROWS Increase Last Week Was 11.8 Per Cent.

The favorable margin which electricity production, both for the nation and the Chicago district, maintained in the week ended Sept. 2 over production in the like week of 1932 was somewhat less than in the preceding week.

The national output, according to the Edison Electric Institute, was 11.8 per cent over that in the parallel period of 1932. The increase was the smallest of the summer and compared with 13.5 per cent for the preceding week and with 15.2 per cent for the week ended Aug. 19.

Production totaled 1,637,317,000 kilowatt hours, in comparison with 1,635,394,000 in the preceding week and 1,464,700,000 for the week ended Sept. 3, 1932.

Chicago Gain 11.8 Per Cent.
In the Chicago district the electric power output was 97,168,000 kilowatt-hours, compared with 87,087,000 in the corresponding week of last year, an increase of 11.6 per cent.

The percentage of increase in output, put compared with a year ago, has now shown a steady drop for the last four weeks," says the announcement of the Commonwealth Edison company.

"This, however, is largely the result of cool, bright weather this year, compared with warm weather last year, as proven by advance information that the four day period ending Wednesday, Sept. 6, with a complete reversal in the weather conditions—very warm this year and very cool last year—shows an increase of 18 per cent, the best showing since the recovery began."

Nearly Comparison Given.
Following are the output in kilowatt-hours and percentage comparisons with last year for the Chicago district:

Week	1933	1932	Per cent
Sept. 2, 1933	97,168,000	87,087,000	11.6
Aug. 26, 1933	96,330,000	85,028,000	13.3
Aug. 19, 1933	95,245,000	83,703,000	14.6
Aug. 12, 1933	96,008,000	83,008,000	16.7

Output in the central industrial region for the week ended Sept. 2 was 100,000 tons of steel for shipment, compared with 13.2 per cent for the preceding week.

SEES TAX WASTE IN ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY PLAN

If the navigation benefits predicted for the St. Lawrence waterway are correct, construction of the shipway would be a serious peril to existing investments of American railways, Samuel B. Botsford, executive vice president of the Buffalo, N. Y., Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday. He spoke before the convention of the Railroad Employers and Taxpayers' association at the Congress hotel.

He said he believed the navigation benefits have been overstated, and that the project is based on the ground that the expense is justified by any proof of adequate return to taxpayers. While the project is considered a power development in New York state, the middle west and northwest regard it as a navigation development, he said.

WHISKY PRICES SOAR AS MAKERS HOLD OLD STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 7.—The price of two popular brands of whiskey has been advanced to 72.50 a case of 12 quarts to the drug trade by the Overholt distillery and the large distilleries owned by the National Distillers corporation, according to the Dow-Jones circuit.

The price has risen from about $50 per case in the last two months. It is said that higher prices are in prospect, since the distilleries prefer to hold their limited supply of old, white-label for blending purposes after repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

STANDARD OIL HEAD BALKS AT FIXING PRICES

W.S. Farish Explains Report of Revolt.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—(AP)—A sputtering bomb that for a while threatened to prevent the full execution of the $12,000,000 oil code apparently had been smothered tonight only a few hours before the industry's great experiment in controlling oil production was to begin.

The flame that lighted the bomb was the report, first verified in high oil circles and then officially discounted, that W. S. Farish, board chairman of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, largest oil company in the world, had declined to cooperate with the planning and coordination committee of the oil industry now at work here perfecting the oil code.

Farish replied with a statement saying: "We shall be glad to supply any data desired and will of course abide by any and all decisions made under the code, but I do not wish to be placed in the position of helping to frame a policy which I do not favor but for which I would inevitably be held responsible."

Report Telephone Talk.
The report purported to describe a telephone conversation between Charles F. Roesser, Texas oil man and member of the committee, in Washington, and Farish in New York, in which Roesser asked for certain facts.

Farish, it was said, not only declined to furnish these facts but also said the planning committee was not representative of the industry, that it had no legal right to fix prices, that allocation would have to be cut from the official 2,400,000 to 1,000,000 barrels a day, and that he hoped the committee would "make a mess" of its efforts to erect a crude oil price structure.

Secretary Ickes, administrator of the oil code, also took a hand in being heard by the committee. "I am unwilling to believe that any responsible officer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey would make any such statement," he said.

"My understanding is that the company subscribed to the code, and my only information is that it is going along loyally and enthusiastically, cooperating with other producers and the government in carrying out the spirit of the code."

Farish Explains Stand.
New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—W. S. Farish, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, tonight issued the following statement:

"There has been a serious misinterpretation of my attitude toward a request that I participate in an oil price fixing conference by submitting a scheme for crude oil."

"Bole for price fixing in the oil industry is unnecessary and wrong, and will work hardship to every motor car user in the country by advancing his costs considerably. I would be less than frank if I had not outlined my personal views to Mr. Roesser when he called."

"We shall be glad to supply any data desired and will of course abide by any and all decisions made under the code, but I do not wish to be placed in the position of helping to frame a policy which I do not favor but for which I would inevitably be held responsible. You might as well commission a free trader to work out a high tariff policy."

Opposes Committee's Views.
"The planning and coordinating committee are virtually all men who have been strong advocates of price fixing. I agree with a recent statement credited to Secretary Ickes that it would be better to wait and see what effect the balancing of production and consumption has in the way of correcting the oil difficulties. I see no need for price fixing and I believe that the American public will oppose it when its consequences are felt."

Reports in oil circles ever since the work on the code began some weeks ago have alleged the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey against price fixing, which not only is permitted by the code but which Secretary Ickes said might be used at any time if necessary. For the last few days the planning committee has been attempting to work out schedules and differentials which the administrator might employ if prices were finally fixed.

Oklahoma Cuts Output.
Oklahoma City, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Oklahoma corporation commission today announced an order cutting the state's allowable oil production at $40,000 barrels daily, a reduction of 61,500 barrels, to meet the federal code allocation. The order is effective at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Steel Output Sags to 45% Due to Code

With new business in steel still light, and automotive consumption in general, outside sizeable specifications from Chrysler, slowly subsiding, steelworks operations have declined to 45 per cent of capacity, compared with 47 per cent last week, 50 a fortnight ago, and 53 three weeks ago, according to the Iron Age. The average at Chicago has receded from 48 to 43 per cent.

The national rate, even so, is still far above that prevailing in the same period of 1932, which was only 15 per cent, the Daily Metal Trade recalls.

Consumers are not committing themselves to new contracts in finished steel, pending final "fixation" of marketing practices in harmony with the requirements of the new code, comments the Iron Age.

Changes in Terms Confusing.
"While basic prices for the remainder of the current quarter have all been announced," says the Journal, "there have been numerous changes in extras and other terms which are temporarily a source of confusion to both sellers and buyers."

"The caution of sales staffs has been accentuated both by the fact that the new extra lists have not been officially approved and by the knowledge that misinterpretation of code provisions can lead to the imposition of fines."

"An added uncertainty is provided by a division of opinion on the extension of the initial code prices through the fourth quarter. Although a number of producers, particularly in the Chicago district, have opened their books at unchanged quotations for the final quarter of the

PACKERS PILE UP FERTILIZER FROM U. S. BONUS PIGSHOGS MAINTAIN

Trading Fairly Brisk;
Cattle Sell Lower.Can't Give It All Away, So Must Be Buried.

Mountains of fertilizer—composed of ground up slaughtered pigs—are piling up in the locality of the stock yards in various parts of the city as the government proceeds with one of its latest adventures in planned economy—raising of prices and piggy wags.

The fertilizer is being produced faster than it can be disposed of and "dump yards" are being taken to ground up and thrown into the smaller pits, piles outside packing houses are growing rapidly. As the fertilizer is undried and contains high, half-rotten and all parts of the animals which were destroyed, something of a sanitary problem is developing.

Can't Give It All Away.
Packing houses at some of the small points have been instructed to give the fertilizer away to whoever wants it for his fields, but requests for it have not been sufficient to take care of the surplus.

Packers authorized to give pigs for the account of the government and bonus pigs in the program to reduce the pork supply for the coming winter. The government found farmers with about 75,000 pigs waiting for them when trading opened about a half the number was purchased under a half the price, leaving a holdover of around 35,000 pigs—equal to about one day's kill. Practically all the leading packers in the country are working at capacity killing and tanning pigs for the government.

Farmers continue to send pigs to the slaughter in large numbers despite efforts to hold the movement in check long enough for the surplus to be cleared up. R. C. Ashby, vice president of the National Pork Producers' Association, yesterday was appointed by the Washington administration to take immediate charge of the permit system at Chicago. He was instructed to hold the daily quota here within the packers' capacity.

Slaughter 2 1/2 Millions.
The slaughter of pigs over the whole country was estimated near the 2 1/2 million mark yesterday, or slightly more than 60 per cent over the government intends to kill before Oct. 1. Piggy sow to continue to run far below the quota, or about one to every 25 pigs slaughtered, whereas the government had expected pigs to run only four to each sow pig. Because of this some are advocating an extension of the plan for piggy sow since at the present rate it would be impossible to reach the 2,000,000 mark by Oct. 1.

It was reported in the yards yesterday that the corn-hog committee of 25 representing the hog raisers will ask Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to increase the slaughter of pig quota in order to balance the shortage of piggy sows in the receipts.

LARD PRIZES HOLD WITHIN NARROW RANGE; UNEVEN

Scattered losses were on the selling side of lard yesterday, with buying mainly on scale orders. Prices held within narrow limits, however, with the close 5 cents higher on September and 2 1/2 cents lower on the distant futures.

Domestic demand for cash lard was reported as fairly good. Cash lard was quoted at $5.60 at the close, with the close 5 cents higher, the latter being up 1 1/2 cents for the day and the close 5 cents higher. The day and the close 5 cents higher. The day and the close 5 cents higher.

Buyers found only a small supply of commercial hogs in the market after direct shipments and government pigs had been deducted from the receipts. Arrivals were estimated at 60,000 at the close of the day, which included 40,000 pigs imported for the government and 8,000 hogs for the market. Trading again hit a fairly brisk pace when sellers managed to get fully steady prices.

Tops and Average Unchanged.

The extreme top and general average prices were unchanged at $4.60 and $3.90, respectively, comparing with a top of $4.45 and average of $3.80 at the close of last week. Prices were mostly 15 to 25 cents above Thursday last week, but showed losses of 15 cents in comparison with the corresponding day in 1932.

Supplies of commercial hogs on the market have been dropping, and the bulk killing program of the government is being maintained. While receipts at the Chicago stock yards for the first four days of this week, only 232,000 of the pigs, standard and heavy, were slaughtered by packers to be used through regular market channels.

Bulk of Pigs Tanked.

The remainder sold for the account of the government, of which 35 percent consisted of pigs to be destroyed in the days of last week packed at commercial markets slaughtered 32,000 commercial hogs. A year ago the eleven percent for the four days was 255,000 and two years ago 277,000.

Chicago run of 10,000 cattle at the market, and prices declined 15 to 25 cents in most divisions, with trading sluggish most of the day. Losses compared with a week ago. Top grades of steers with at the lowest point in several months.

Lambs responded to the influence of light supplies early yesterday, advanced as much as 50 cents at the start and as order buyers appeared with some of the largest buying orders of the week.
